Human Relations Committee To Be Proposed At TM

Members of the Equal Opportunity Committee told the Selectmen Monday night that "community reinforcement" will be needed to comply with Chapter 622 guidelines and to insure that every citizen in town is treated equally. The committee will sponsor an article on the Town Meeting warrant, proposing a town-wide human relations committee be established.

The ad hoc committee of the School Committee was formed last spring to investigate programs which would help Winchester schools meet Chapter 622 requirements. The law prohibits bias of any type in the public schools, including bias in curriculum and staffing.

At the meeting Monday night Constance Papas told the Selectmen that some of the programs the Equal Opportunity Committee was recommending fell under the jurisdiction of the town rather than the school system.

"Our major concern," she said, "is that to truly comply with Chapter 622, we can't stop with the school system. We need a broader base than the schools."

Papas added that the next "proper step" would be to establish a town-wide committee.

John Moore of the Equal Opportunity Committee, said that some areas which the proposed human relations committee could look into are recreational programs, human services programs, and town activities.

He noted it would be appropriate for the committee to have a budget, to start some racial awareness programs.

The Equal Opportunity Committee will now be working on a formal proposal of responsibilities for the committee and how its members will be appointed for the Town Meeting article.

The Selectmen favored the proposed townwide committee, although Chrm. Edward O'Connell said he was not in a position to be "lavish in generosity with town funds."

"But," he added, "we want to make a personal, official commitment."

Harris Gibson outlined the progress of the Equal Opportunity Committee to date for the board. He said a final report from the ad hoc committee will be presented to the School Committee in the spring. The

Horn Pond People Seek Reason For Flooding

Winchester is really "caught in the middle" between Woburn and the Mystic Lakes when heavy rainfall causes flooding and everyone, from the residents of the Horn Pond area to the town manager, is asking what can be done about it.

About two dozen residents of the Horn Pond neighborhood near the Woburn line spoke to the Selectmen Monday night about flooding conditions which threatened their homes Thursday.

The residents claimed Woburn "indiscriminately" opened the plank dam on Pond street, flooding Winchester streets and private property.

James McHugh of Canal street urged the Selectmen to "take action" with the city of Woburn to control the level of the pond during heavy storms.

"Our area was hard hit," he said. "It's lucky that no one was hurt. There are a lot of school children in that area."

McHugh noted that the level of Horn Pond was artificially raised a few years ago, posing a flooding threat to Winchester residents below during a heavy rain.

He said it was the first time his home was flooded and added the area escaped severe flooding during the 1955 Hurricane Diane.

McHugh said that the water quickly left the area Thursday night.

"Something happened somewhere," McHugh said. "It was like someone pulled a plug."

Town Manager Thomas Groux said he

School Committee Approves $200,000 Budget Cut Monday

The School Committee is working to reduce its proposed budget for next year by approximately $234,000.

At a public meeting of the School Committee and the Finance Committee last Thursday, the FinCom recommended a reduction of $204,000 from personal services, $30,000 from other expenses and $2,000 from equipment expenses.

These recommendations apply to the total published budget request for fiscal year 1980 of $9,297,195, which is more than $550,000 higher than this year's budget.

The FinCom calculated the recommended cut by allowing cost per pupil to increase only by negotiated salary increases in personal services and other expenses by a 7.5 percent inflation rate.

Increases in the school budget and personnel costs over the past 10 years are attributed to many factors, including collective bargaining, town expectations of its schools and state-mandated programs.

At a meeting Monday night, Supt. William C. MacDonald presented the School Committee a list of proposed cuts, developed by the superintendent, John Fallon, assistant superintendent for administration and members of the central office staff.

After lengthy discussion and comments such as, "The cuts were not recommended with happiness and were not accepted with happiness," and "If funds become available, we would hope that the School Committee would consider putting some of these programs back," the committee accepted the following proposed cuts: central office: $1934, to level the summer school budget; $2400, to level the adult education budget; $2500, to reduce summer workshops by 10 percent from the proposed budget; and $2700 to delete three summer school courses.

Proposed cuts for the high school were accepted, with questions on other reductions there to be discussed later. The reductions accepted by the School Committee were: $20,604, by reducing proposed teaching positions by one and one-half at the Bachelor's-five level; and $1880, by eliminating the German, Latin, Science and Ski Clubs proposed for next year.

Further cutbacks at the high school may be achieved by a change in the system used for class sections, according to School Committee Chairman Constance Papas. Instead of providing an unlimited number of sections, Papas said, there would be only a certain number of sections, thereby reducing staffing needs.

At the junior high school level, the committee accepted proposed cutbacks of $537 at Lynch, by eliminating any proposed new extracurricular programs such as a French Club; and a cutback of $1719 at McCall, by reducing the hiring salary of an assistant principal to the lowest step. Also at McCall, the committee approved a proposed cut of $14,179, by reducing the number of proposed teacher aides from four positions to one half of a position. $4900 was also cut for half a custodian's position at McCall.

The elimination of one half of a custodian's position at the elementary schools was also approved, saving $4900.

Proposed reductions were also approved for special education programs. The committee approved a 10 percent reduction in special needs instructors or alternatively in teachers for special education, thus cutting $8400 from the proposed budget. They also approved to cut special education summer workshops in half, thus saving $2250. Supt. Macdonald said there might be a chance of funding the summer workshops with grants, but added that there is no guarantee of doing so.

Under the system services category, the committee approved a proposed cut of $111,431 from the proposed budget for sabbaticals.

Chairman Papas said the cuts in the sabbatical budget are only potential, not automatic cuts. "We have to provide money in the budget for the maximum amount allowed for sabbaticals," she said. "We have to wait for the requests to come in before we'll know how much can be cut here."

Also under system services, the committee approved a proposed cut of $900 from a proposed salary increase for a school physician.

Another cut of $6000, reducing the number of instructional substitutes, was approved. The reduction of after-school intramural programs, saving $4884, was also approved.

The School Committee will discuss the recommed cuts of about $30,000 fom other expenses, cuts of approximately $2,000 from equipment expenses, as well as unresolved questions on cuts in personal services tonight at 7:30.

The committee is scheduled to take the final vote on its budget Feb. 5. After the final vote, according to Chairman Papas, the committee will continue to work on cuts until town meeting in May.

Regional Voke School Superintendent Faces School Committee Charges Fri.

The School Committee of the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School voted Tuesday night to accept a statement of 16 charges, relating to the alleged misconduct of the school's superintendent, John Connolly.

The vocational school in Wakefield serves 12 communities, including Winchester.

The statement of charges was presented to the School Committee by the ad hoc subcommittee on special procedures, which has been investigating charges of mismanagement by the superintendent.

Connolly's attorney, William J. Lee, was notified of the ad hoc committee's action Monday by the School Committee's counsel, George Waldstein.

The School Committee also voted to adopt procedures drafted by the ad hoc committee for a hearing on the charges, set for Friday at 7 p.m.

Entering into a long-term, three-year lease of a motor vehicle without prior knowledge and-or approval of the Northeast School Committee, the lease being dated Sept. 20, 1976, with the New England Car Leasing as Lessor and the School as Lessee ;

Authorizing payroll action and payments to himself and several other Northeast employees out of state and federal grant moneys without prior knowledge and-or approval of the Northeast School Committee, and contrary to policies of the federal government, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the Massachusetts Department of Education, Division of Occupational Education. This involved several grants and the action of the superintendent-director was contrary to information given by him repeatedly to the Northeast School Committee as to his actions;

Keeping important information from the Northeast School Committee concerning the recall of state and federal grant moneys, beginning with the letter from Dr. Manning of March 10, 1978 through the August, 1978 regular school committee meeting, at which the committee was told by the superintendent-director that there was a problem due to federal bookkeeping procedures, which required ratification of certain payments. Said letter, dated March 10, 1978, was not made available to school committee members until late in August, 1978, after information about it appeared in the local newspapers;

Responding to the Division of Occupational Education inquiry concerning the intent of the School Committee in a vote of Sept. 11, 1975, by transmitting to the division page 14 of the minutes without informing committee members of the correspondence. By transmitting said minutes, misleading the Division of Occupational Education into believing that the said vote truly answered the inquiry of the division, as to the authority of the superintendent-director to cause himself and other school employees to participate in receiving moneys from certain grants in exchange for personal services.;

Withholding from the School Committee and the School Committee's legal counsel a letter of Sept. 7, 1976 from Dr. Manning of the Division of Occupational Education, concerning recall of funds from Project P. S. 14176, Phase two add-on. During the months of September, October, November and December of 1978, this letter was not among documents in the school file pertaining to the School Committee investigation of state and federal grants; it was not made available to the committee's legal counsel during that time and was not made available to school committee member O'Donnell when he specifically asked for it in November, 1978; and awareness of the letter came about as a result of Mr. O'Donnel reading a copy of the so-called Bonin letter, which made a reference to it, and the Manning letter was not available to Mr. O'Donnell personally, or to the School Committee until November, 1978. Mr. O'Donnell had to obtain that letter from Dr. Manning personally on Nov. 19, 1978;

Instructing business manager Mr. Sanville to say nothing to the school committee members and others concerning the existence of the March 10, 1978 letter from Dr. Manning, recalling state and federal grant money;

Causing the long-term employment (14 months; at least $12,000) of Mr. Kevin Barry, son of a school committee member, without authorization or prior knowledge of the Northeast School Committee;

Responsibility for overexpenditures in the maintenance budget for the past three fiscal years through unnecessary and wasteful employment of substitute custodians;

Refusal to provide written or oral explanation of the events of Feb. 8 and 9, 1978, concerning the regularly scheduled school committee meeting, and the state-imposed emergency conditions, in spite of serious questions and charges which have been raised and in spite of repeated requests for such explanation made by Mr. O'Donnell and other school committee members at school committee meetings;

Repeated refusal over a 20-month period to recommend alternate applicants for the position of property

Bartlett School Damaged Sat. By Three Fires

Three fires of suspicious origin that damaged two rooms of the Bartlett School on Church street Saturday night are under investigation by police and fire officials.

When all apparatus responded at 11:45 p.m., firefighters found two fires burning in the entryway to the principal's office and another in the closet of a ninthgrade classroom in the southwest corner of the school, Firechief Robert W. McElhinney said.

The building's fire alarm system was activated by two heat detectors, according to the chief.

The alleged arsonist entered the building through a side door near the gymnasium, according to police reports.

There was also another fire of incendiary origin on Saturday night at the Dairy Barn on Main street.

Chief McElhinney said the fire was started with flammable fluid and matches in the soft drink machine outside of the front door of the Dairy Barn.

Two cellar fires on Thursday started in the electrical controls of gas burners in flooded basements, according to fire officials.

Firefighters responding to a 8:42 a.m. alarm for a fire at 27 Elm st. found a fire burning in the area around the hot water heater in the basement of the house.

The fire broke out when the water level in the basement reached up to the flame in the heater, fire officials said.

At 12:35 p.m. on Thursday, all apparatus responded to a fire at 85 Brookside ave. On arrival, firefighters found smoke coming from the gas burner in the cellar of the house.

Good Fortune, A Fresh Start: Chinese New Year Greetings

It's a good time of the year to celebrate a holiday with lavish foods, family get-togethers, street parades and bright colors.

And the Chinese are doing just that. Today is the fifth day of the 15-day Chinese lunar New Year, the year's biggest folk holiday for Chinese people everywhere in the world.

In small villages and towns in the China of the past, the celebration lasted for 15 days - from the new moon to the full moon. There was dragon dancing in the streets, schools were on vacation and businesses were closed.

Although the holiday is now officially celebrated in China for only a few days, Chinese families in the Boston area, Winchester included, are still observing century-old traditions with festivities, 21-member committee has divided up into four parts, each addressing a different area to make schools comply with Chapter 622.

These sub-committees have outlined recommendations for programs in affirmative action, racial awareness, and curriculum.

Last week the School Committee approved $21,800 for fiscal year 1980 for proposed Equal Opportunity programs.

Gibson said the Equal Opportunity Committee has worked effectively since its formation, and that the committee will not die if a town-wide committee is formed.

"We've had our peaks and valleys," Gibson said, "but people haven't had a chance to become complacent."

The committee has brought in speakers from the state and other communities to talk about racial awareness and their programs.

The Equal Opportunity Committee, which was charged by the School Committee to deal with racial awareness specifically in the schools, was formed following the release of a Justice Department report last spring. The report recommended that the town take action in addressing racial problems after the only black teacher at the high school resigned because of racial attitudes expressed by some students in the school.

United Methodist Women To Meet

Arthur F. Fultz will be the special speaker at the United Methodist Women general meeting at Crawford Memorial Church next Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Arthur Fultz, director of counseling, Resource Center, 5 Spruce st., is a licensed psychologist who has been working in counseling for over 20 years. He is also an ordained Methodist minister who brings to his professional work a deep Christian commitment.

Fultz has established a new center here in Winchester to provide all types of counseling services. He will speak of the wide scope of these activities which are designed to serve all ages, families, young adults, the middle ages, the retired, and all needs, vocational testing, career changing, retirement planning.

Fultz is already known for his earlier counseling work of the YMCA in Woburn, and for his avocation as an organist, substituting occasionally as organist at Crawford Memorial.

accountant, in spite of the School Committee's unwillingness to accept his first recommendation (which was that of the son of a school committee member), and repeated recommendation by the superintendent-director of the said son of a school committee member;

Authorizing payroll action, causing payment from state and federal funds to the superintendent-director's son, John Connolly Jr., without making same known to the School Committee and without making the School Committee aware of the superintendent-director's authority and responsibility concerning certain grant projects, especially the project commonly known as NEMAC;

Misleading the School Committee concerning the management role, authority and duties of the superintendent-director in administering certain federal grants, especially the project known as NEMAC;

Recommending a candidate for the position of supervisor of attendance, who was neither certified nor certifiable for the position, and who was the son of a school committee member;

Inadequately carrying out management procedures in respect to admissions policies and practices regarding special needs students;

Failure to supply all the information on federal and state grants and on communications with state and federal agencies as requested by committee members in October, 1976;

Causing his administration and his recommendations and policies to suffer loss of the confidence of school committee members and public officials within the district, by his actions as already set forth herein, and, in addition to the foregoing, in other actions in the course of: interviewing applicants for positions, choice of applicants to recommend for employment, excessive expenditures, and exercise of faulty judgments as to the necessity for expending funds for certain purposes.

Board Meets

The Mystic Valley Mental Health and Retardation area board will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, at 7:30 p.m. in the main hearing room of the Burlington Town Hall, Center street, Burlington.

The agenda includes a continued discussion of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center Association's operations grant application.

Winchester residents serving on the board are Katrin Cooper and Deborah Cary.

Building Dept Cracks Down On Sign By-Law

The Building Department has just completed a survey of the town, and is in the process of notifying building owners who are in violation of the sign bylaw.

The bylaw was approved at the 1975 spring Town Meeting and became effective July 1976.

The objective of the bylaw, is to restrict private signs which tend to overload the public's capacity to receive information, which violate privacy, or which increase the probability of accidents by distracting attention or obstructing vision.

The storeowner is permitted one sign, not to exceed 10 percent of the storefront.

Stores that have an entrance other than the storefront or a wall facing a public parking lot or street, are allowed a secondary sign, not to exceed five percent of the storefront.

Some of the types of signs that are not permitted include freestanding signs in excess of two square feet, billboards, moving signs, roof signs and signs attached in any manner to a utility pole, tree or light structure.

Signs legally erected before the adoption of the bylaw that do not conform to the provisions of the bylaw, must be made to comply by July 1981.

Final Picture - Lending Party To Be Held In Winchester

The final picture lending party of the 1978-79 season will be held on Feb. 11, from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Boodakian Rug Gallery, 1026 Main st. People who cannot attend at this time should have a friend come and choose a picture.

Pictures currently on loan should be taken to the gallery on Feb. 10 between 10 and 11 a.m. If borrowers cannot do this, call Mrs. Maurice Ponti to make other arrangements.

The picture lending program allows its patrons to borrow three pictures a year for a period of four months each, with the proceeds of the ticket sale going to the Winchester Art Association Scholarship Fund. The money is used to give art scholarships each year to qualified Winchester High School students.

Paintings are loaned by professional artists and accomplished local artists. Subscribers may wish to purchase a painting they have borrowed in order to add to their own collections.

Current subscribers may renew their memberships at the Feb. 11 party. Inquiries about joining this program may be made by calling Mrs. James Houlihan, membership chairman.

food and gatherings of friends and family.

The formal celebration of Chinese New Year began in the Tang Dynasty, A.D. 618-907. Twelve animals comprise the symbolic cycle of the Chinese lunar calendar - the rat, ox, tiger, hare, dragon, serpent, horse, ram, monkey, rooster, dog and boar. Each is honored once in every 12-year cycle. The first cycle began in 2637 B.C.

In 1979, the Chinese are celebrating the year 4677, the Year of the Ram.

People who are born in 1979 are considered to be sensitive, refined, aesthetic types with considerable talent in all the arts. Indeed, according to interpretations of the symbols, success or failure for those born this year will depend upon whether they can shepherd their ability and energy into a single field.

The holiday, also called the Spring Festival, comes at a time when spring is at least in sight, if not around the corner.

And according to Chinese folk tradition, the New Year means a fresh start, says Jeanne Tahnk of Winchester, who has been teaching local residents Chinese recipes that might be included in holiday fare at her cooking school on Main street.

"Before the New Year, the Chinese buy new clothes, get new hairdos, put flowers in their homes and pay up their debts," explains Mrs. Tahnk, a native of Taiwan.

"We don't want to start the New Year owing someone money."

Beginning the New Year with a clean house is another tradition for Chinese families. But it all has to be done before the day itself.

According to custom, there should be no house sweeping on New Year's Day, to avoid sweeping good luck out the door.

"Good luck" and "good fortune" are the holiday messages. Printed on red paper (red symbolizes happiness and good luck), the messages are posted on the door of Chinese homes as a greeting to visitors.

Extending good luck wishes in visits to family and friends is a big part of the New Year celebration for the Chinese, who are family oriented, Mrs. Tahnk points out.

"People drop in on relatives and friends they usually don't see. It's like Christmas time in this country."

But unlike the Christmas tradition, the Chinese don't usually exchange gifts during the New Year holidays.

"Guests do bring gifts in the holiday spirit when they visit - often a special food such as sausage, or maybe whiskey or wine," Mrs. Tahnk explains. "And children receive money for good luck from their parents on New Year's Eve," she notes.

But within the closely-knit Chinese family, Mrs. Tahnk says, the gift-giving is often connected to respect for the changes in the life cycle.

"If you are visiting an old uncle and you are already earning money, it is traditional to take him money as a good luck gift," she points out.

"When you were little, he always gave you money as a good luck symbol. Now it's your turn to help," she says, adding, "In China, the older you get, the more treasured you are."

New Year is a time for young and old in Chinese families to get together over large banquets of holiday foods. The big feast is New Year's Eve.

"A table holding a bit of everything - fish, chicken, beef, sausage, pressed duck and more - means that the family will eat well during the coming year," Mrs. Tahnk explains.

Fish symbolizes "something extra" in the new year. Rice cakes made with honey symbolize sweetness.

Do Chinese families living within the American culture celebrate differently than those living within a predominantly Chinese culture?

"Perhaps some members of the older generation emphasize the holiday more here because they're homesick," Mrs. Tahnk observes. "It's good to adapt to American life, but we hate to see our culture disappear.

"Maybe living in a foreign country also brings the family closer together?" she wonders. "But even in China, " Mrs. Tahnk continues, "most families are close.

"You grow up together, why shouldn't you be close?" she says, voicing a bit of her own Chinese wisdom.

Historical Society To Visit Textile Museum Sunday

The Winchester Historical Society has planned for Sunday a field trip to the Merrimack Valley Textile Museum in North Andover. The museum features exhibits of the implements used in the production of textiles dating from the days before and after the industrial revolution.

The manufacture of textiles was largely responsible for the growth of such towns as Lawrence and Lowell. The Middlesex Canal was built for the dispersal of mill products to distant markets.

Anyone interested in this facet of local history may join the members Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at the Archival Center.

Reservations should be made with Mrs. Harold Gold, 21 Jefferson rd.

Generous reward offered.

For Senior Citizens ...

Another mystery ride is coming up again today. Participants will leave the Jenks Senior Center at 11 and return at 2:30. Roast lamb or baked schrod will be the luncheon choices. Cost of the trip is $9:50.

The February Monthly Luncheon will be held at the Episcopal Church on Feb. 6 at noon. For reservations, call Hilda Hope at 729-1317 after Feb. 1. Cost: $1.50.

The Meals on Wheels program got under way the week of Jan. 15. Two meals per day, five days per week will be delivered to those unable to prepare their own. The cost is $12.50 per week. Seniors needing this service, should contact Ann Hughes, the program coordinator at 729-6578.

Larry Hutching's investment class will resume in February. Budget planning for seniors, making a will, the advantages of trusts, and insurance for seniors are among the topics to be discussed, often with an outside specialist.

A Valentine's Day party will be held at the Jenks Senior Center on Feb. 14. The party will run from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. Seniors should sign up by Feb. 8 and note if they plan to bring cookies or cake. Entertainment is planned for the party.

A representative from the new Regional Housing Assistance Program will be at the Jenks Center Feb. 12 to describe a new home sharing program for the elderly. The program is an effort to match older people in search of housing with area homeowners and-or apartment owners, preferably elderly, looking for roommates.

Tax assistance in filing state and federal income tax forms is available free at the Jenks Center every Tuesday and Thursday, 9-11 a.m., beginning Feb. 6. No appointment is necessary. Participants should bring all forms to when they come for tax assistance.

On Feb. 12 there will be a training session for individuals interested in working on the information, referral phone lines. Training time is 9:30-11:30 a.m. If interested, please call 729-2111.

The beginning day for the new Yoga and Creativity Workshop has been changed to Feb. 6 and the class will end in time for the luncheon that day. Paulett Taggart of the Winchester Drama Workshop will lead the quiet stretching yoga exercises that tone up the body. Although the size of the group will be limited to assure individual attention, both new and former participants will be welcome to this six-week series. Men and women are welcome to the workshop. For further information, call Paulett Taggart at 729-6669.

Hydro-Power: Energy Source to Consider

By CONGRESSMAN ED MARKEY

With the recent 14.5 percent increase in the price of imported oil, mandated by the "sheiks" of OPEC, there is a new awareness in Washington of the need for more research into new energy sources.

But there is already one energy source that is far from new, although it could provide New England with some relief from continued dependence on fossil fuels. That energy source is "low head hydro."

"Low head hydro" is the term used to describe the use of small-scale dams to generate electricity. With approximately 10,000 dams in existence (of which only a small percentage are operating), New England is particularly well suited to the development of hydroelectric power. A recent preliminary inventory by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has identified 2000 of these dams which, if developed to their maximum potential, could supply the megawatt equivalent of at least seven million barrels of oil annually. This is about eight percent of our region's current needs and about 15 percent of the added power New England will require in the next decade.

"Low Head" or small-scale dams are those generally classified as below 100 feet in height or those with generating capacity below 15,000 kilowatts. Once used as a means to turn water wheels to grind grain, they are gathering interest as an alternative energy source. Of the nearly 10,000 dams inventoried by the New England River Basins Commission, 1814 were in Massachusetts. Only 32 of those were listed as in operation.

One of the great obstacles to further development of new dams and the continued "retrofitting," or refurbishing, of existing dams has been the licensing process. Aware of the duplication and delay inherent in its licensing procedures, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission last year adopted a short form licensing application. I have signed a letter to the chairman of FERC requesting that every step is taken to ensure that the licensing process is kept simple and quick. Following in the footsteps of the federal regulators, both the Massachusetts Energy Office and the Energy Facilities Siting Council have recommended legislation to simplify the state licensing process.

The technology of hydroelectric power has been well proven over the years. The environmental effects of low head hydro development are small compared to those for more conventional energy sources, such as coal. Additionally, there is a great economic benefit to the state through the jobs and revenue that new dams would bring to Massachusetts.

Because new development requires large capital outlays, the economics of small dams must be geared to careful financing. However, the government has been lackluster in backing its verbal support for low head hydro with adequate funding. As a member of the House Energy and Power Subcommittee, I worked closely with a New York Congressman, Richard Ottinger, to insure that low head hydro was well supported in the President's energy bill. Together, we won support for an amendment to the bill that authorizes grants and loans for low head hydro feasibility studies and construction.

To date, only $10 million has been appropriated during fiscal year 1979 for feasibility studies. The president's FY 1980 budget asks for another $10 million. But no money has yet been appropriated, or requested in the president's budget, for construction loans. Although Congress authorized up to $100 million for loan monies in FY 1979 and 1980, the House Appropriations Committee did not approve a single penny. And now in his austerity budget designed to combat inflation, President Carter has seen fit to ask for nothing for this important project.

One of the great causes of inflation is the high cost of imported oil. Residents of Massachusetts know this all too well. Until more is done to finance development of alternative energy sources - instead of writing legislation designed to benefit the domestic oil "sheiks" - then America will not be able to wean herself away from fossil fuels toward new energy sources, such as low head hydro. And until we find an answer to huge trade deficits resulting from the high cost of foreign oil, we can expect little long-term respite from inflation.

Low head hydro is not by itself a panacea for the energy crisis. But it is one alternate energy source that deserves the support - both verbal and financial - of Congress.

Funds Needed

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is a strange, indeed ironic, paradox that the telephone (which was invented by a teacher of the deaf right here in Charlestown while he was trying to devise a means of helping the deaf to communicate), should have proven to be of inestimable value to people who can hear throughout the entire civilized world, but of no value whatever to most of those people for whose use it was originally intended.

By the very nature of their affliction they (the deaf) were precluded from making use of it. "Telephone" means "distant sound" and they could not hear the sound.

Today, however, they can "see" the sound, thanks to one of the miracles of modern electronics. Portable machines, like small protable typewriters, have been developed, which can convert the ordinary telephone into a tele-typewriter. Deaf people, or hearing people wishing to converse with deaf people, can, by means of these devises, send visual messages over the regular Bell Telephone System, local or long distance. In this way, it helps them join the mainstream of modern communication.

I am trying to raise enough money to buy a couple of these machines for installation in the Winchester Public Library. Therefore, I plead with all those who are deaf, or are friends or relatives of those who are deaf, or just those who are thankful that they are not deaf, to join my campaign and contribute a dollar or two to the "Fund for Deaf Communication," c/o care of Joseph Cioni, Winchester Savings Bank or if by check send it to me, and I will turn it over to Joe.

The fund has already started. In three days, I have collected almost $100, and The Star came out only three days ago! Please send a small contribution.

Disaster

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Winchester chapter of the American Red Cross is interested in finding residents who would like to help with the development of a disaster program in Winchester, either to assist at the planning level or as a volunteer worker in case of need.

If anyone is interested in this type of work, we would appreciate his leaving his name at the Winchester Red Cross Chapter House, 39 Church st., 729-2300.

Thank you very much.

Disaster Chairman

Vandals Strike

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Needless to say, I was deeply disturbed by the vandalism and fires set in our building Saturday evening. However, I would like to compliment the Winchester Fire Department for the efficient and rapid manner in which they fought the fire and for their kindness to me. Because of their thoroughness and efficiency, school resumed without incident on Monday morning.

Norine T. Casey

Poetic Response

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

May I submit the following few lines to The Star in response to a letter from several high school students published recently:

Pot you got, then maybe not,
Sex forsooth squashed in a booth.
More stunned are we as we deduct,
Your skill at English to destruct!

M. Mangantz.

Baby Born

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I want to thank the Winchester Police and Fire Department ambulance men for helping me and my family in the early morning hours of Dec. 23.

We have a beautiful granddaughter, born that morning.

Thank you again for being so helpful and so kind to us.

Dishonest?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I though someone should write about Mr. Guptill and what he has done for our elderly.

Even if he lied and it took 14 years to catch him, he has been so valuable to our elderly.

He gave up a large amount of money to take this job. He really hasn't done anymore than our "great men" did during Watergate. Being dishonest is getting to be the thing today.

What good is a college degree today? Most people could get along with just common sense. People who have these great degrees don't use them wisely and become selfish along the way. These smart Alec's couldn't survive on minimum wage and feed a family. No way, but they expect the low paid man to do this.

Louise Chase

Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Just thought I'd drop a note to let people know how much the new Meals on Wheels program from Winchester Hospital means. For a small cost, a person can avail himself of a hot meal and a sandwich in a well-balanced nutritional fashion five days per week.

Nutrition, to my way of thinking, is one of the most important integrated parts of a coordinated home health program.

Dietary concerns of the elderly and chronically ill are very seldom given the proper priority.

Thanks to Winchester Hospital and Barbara for making it available to the many who need it.

Maureen Winn

Talented

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On the evening of Jan. 10, we had the pleasure of attending the opening of a new show at the Next Move Theater in Boston. This original musical comedy revue entitled "This End Up," written and performed by the Next Move Theater Company, is an outrageously funny and clever spoof on our American Culture a la "Saturday Night Live."

The show, already critiqued as a "smash," boasts a cast of four very talented, extremely versatile actors - Martin Anderson, Karen MacDonald, Lanie Zera and Brad Jones.

It will be of particular interest to the children and parents who have been involved with Winchester Community Theater, Children's Theater, Inc. to note that two of the multi-talented actors of this show, Martin Anderson and Karen MacDonald, have come to Winchester on many occasions to instruct our children especially in the area of improvisational acting.

Two other members of the Next Move Company, Cynthia Caldwell and Geraldine Librandi have also worked with our children. In 1976, Geraldine taught a six-week acting course in the studio at the home of Mrs. Carlene Samoiloff.

It is with a great deal of pride and dedication that Winchester Children's Theater attempts to provide this caliber of instruction and exposure in acting as well as in other areas of the theater to the children of Winchester.

Hats off to all the members of the Next Move Theater Company. We wish them continued success and, for us, a continuing relationship with the children of Winchester

Town Watch

An interesting point came out of the Selectmen's meeting Monday night when the board was discussing the installation of new MBTA signs at bus stops.

Arthur Dunbar, who was against the signs for cost and "eyesore" reasons, noted there are more man-made standing objects in town than there are people. In other words, the telephone poles, fire hydrants, store signs, etc., etc., outnumber the men, women and children.

Dunbar also wondered if the man-made objects outnumbered the trees. Gives you something to think about, doesn't it?

Ever thought about running for a town office?

If you're not happy with the way things are being run in town, you might be interested in becoming a candidate for a seat in local government.

You don't know anything about it?

Any questions you have about the practical aspects of running a campaign, the legal requirements of running for office or just about what's involved in becoming a candidate for local government, will be answered at the League of Women Voters' candidates' workshop Tuesday evening from 7:15-9:15 at the public library meeting room.

Sorry - We made a mistake in our Jan. 25 article on the WHS student class ranking system, discussed at the School Committee's meeting on Jan. 22.

We said the current policy is to report a student's class standing by deciles only, rather than to report step-by-step class rank.

The present policy is, in fact, just the opposite, according to school officials. The current procedure is to report the exact rank and grade-point average, not just the decile.

More town residents have taken out nomination papers for town government positions.

Seeking re-election are Town Moderator John J. Sullivan, Board of Health Chairman Jeanne Thomas, public library Trustee James W. Blackham Jr. and School Committee Chairman Constance D. Papas, in addition to Selectman Edward F. O'Connell and Assessor Sumner M. Beal Jr.

Robert C. Ericson and Alvan G. Smith Jr. have taken out papers for selectman positions.

Those who seek town offices must take out nomination papers by Feb. 15 and return the papers with the proper number of signatures by 5 p.m., Feb. 20. Elections are held on the last Tuesday of March.

The Massachusetts Open Meeting Law says that notice of meetings of all boards, including committees, commissions aand sub-committees, however elected, appointed or constituted, shall be filed with the Town Clerk and posted at least 48 hours before the meeting.

50 Years Ago

The stories reprinted here were taken from old editions of The Winchester Star and were compiled by Henry Simonds, local historian. By and large, these articles are taken from the same month they appear here, 50 years ago.

A Red-Letter Night

The capacity of the Town Hall was taxed to the very limit last Friday evening, Feb. 1, the occasion being the concert and dance of the Winchester Fireman's Relief Association, known locally as the annual Fireman's Ball. Always one of the red-letter nights of the winter season in town, the hall has been a sell-out for many years past and there was not a vacant seat in the hall last Friday when the curtain arose on the first of several fine acts of Vaudeville which preceded the general dancing.

Decorations of palms and cut flowers lent an attractive note to the stage setting while the appearance of the firemen who served as ushers and aids in their dress uniforms of blue and silver was wholly pleasing.

Miss "Flo" Nickerson acted as mistress of ceremonies for the entertainment program and introduced first Constance and Cappo who were billed as "two men in a fast dancing act." They proved as good as their advance notice, even if Cappo was pretty much a pocket edition as grown men go. The latter danced a solo number which brought much applause.

Franklin and Pierce, a man and woman in a western comedy skit, had everyone laughing and in a good humor for the advent of Mae and June Ritchie, two cute kiddies, who won their audience from the start with their clever singing, unusually good acrobatics and eccentric dancing.

Sang and Chung, introduced as "a couple of boys from Russia," but who looked and dressed like Chinamen, sang several songs in close harmony and wound up with a "Hie'land Fling," in which Chung showed what the well dressed Scot is wearing in addition to his kilties.

Miss Nickerson, herself, kept the audience happy with rapid fire monologue and songfest, and if she was a bit hard on Selectman "Harry" Stevens and "E. P." Sullivan, her sketch was no less popular.

"Billie" Williams, widely known radio entertainer who is no stranger to Winchester, gave much pleasure with her artistic playing of her big ornate accordian, and as an added attraction, introduced Miss Grace Williams. Miss Williams, a soprano with a wide range, was heartily applauded after singing the favorite "Mother Machree."

The bill was brought to a close by the Pennsylvania Comedy Four, a quartet of colored entertainers and vocalists with good voices and a different brand of humor. A couple of their songs were out of the ordinary and their closing dance in which they imitated a pullman train was one long laugh. We particularly enjoyed their "Sons of Old Black Joe" number.

At the conclusion of the entertainment program the hall was cleared under the direction of Janitor "Ed" Callahan for the general dancing which continued until 1 Saturday morning. Joyce's Orchestra of Woburn, under the direction of the imimitable "Tommy" Gigliotti, furnished the music. Another Winchester boy "Bennie" Chitel played the traps with the team.

Throughout the evening firemen held open house for their friends and visiting firemen at the Central Station where refreshments were served and an opportunity afforded to inspect the apparatus and equipment of the plant. Drivers Everett Kimball and Robert Scanlon with Firemen David Meskell and John O'Melia were in charge of dispensing the refreshments, O'Melia and Ray Hanscom filling in as "KPs."

At the hall everything ran smoothly, though it was 11 before the crowd thinned out enough to permit much of any satisfactory dancing on the floor. Chief David DeCourcy acted as floor marshal for the dancing. Deputy Chief John J. Gorman was assistant floor marshal; J. J. McCarron, floor director; Hugh K. Skerry, assistant floor director; and Capt. Edward Fitzgerald, chief of aids.

Even Then...

The sewer made its customary and frequent visit yesterday. Stores (and it is reported some dwellings) about the center have their usual cellar-full of this and that. The Star cellar at this point is about waist deep, with none of the several pumps of the various town departments in condition set to work.

The last big flood found the same condition (as regards the pumps) and the contractor from Stoneham who promised his outfit failed to show up.

Tom Quigley came to the rescue to the tune of some $200, and it looks as though he is going to again jump into popularity. Meanwhile they say the goods in one cellar are bumping against the ceiling and that some 24 places are more or less afloat.

Just at present we are lending a kindly and sympathetic ear to those of our neighbors in their difficulties and thanking the powers that be that beyond the loss of our heat and the possible ruination of our health we have nothing to lose in the 12 feet beneath our first floor, for it was ruined long ago.

We suppose the Assessors will know of the flood anyway, so why keep it a secret? No remuneration appears possible, and we can enjoy it as much as the next fellow so long as the money holds out.

Workshop For Candidates By League Of Women Voters

The League of Women Voters' (LWV) candidates workshop on Tuesday from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. in the public library meeting room includes a panel of speakers who will explain various aspects of participation in town government.

The workshop is entitled "Don't Stand There, Run!" and was organized by the LWV because of the league's concern over the lack of qualified candidates for town offices and town meeting.

Speakers at the workshop will be: John Sullivan, Winchester Town Meeting Moderator; Barbara Hankins, Selectman; Nina McCulley, Campaign Manager; and Margaretta Thuma, Editor of the booklet, Inside Winchester.

John Sullivan will speak on the duties of a town meeting member: the responsibilities, the time consumed, the procedures of the meeting, and how to be informed on the articles in the warrant.

Barbara Hankins, selectman, will discuss the demands made on one's life by the job, the legal requirements for running, and how to assess one's constituency and estimate one's chances.

Nina McCulley, an experienced campaing manager, will discuss how to get a campaign started: the key people needed, the necessary organization, and the finances.

Margaretta Thuma, Editor of Inside Winchester, will discuss the role of the newspaper in a campaign.

Dr. David Ashton will be the moderator for the panel discussion.

The workshop is being run as a town service and is available for anyone in Winchester who is thinking of running, or who might think of running for office, this year or ten years from now, according to a LWV member. The workshop is informational and does not imply a commitment on the part of anyone attending, the member said.

Advance registration is requested by calling Jean Mortensen, 729-7424 or Vicki Wiedwald, 729-7321. There is no fee for the workshop.

Church Players Hold Tryouts For Comedy

Winchester Unitarian Players have scheduled their spring production, "Round and Round the Garden" by English writer Alan Ayckbourn, for March 29, 30 and 31. The play is a modern comedy and will be directed by Edward T Burdekin of Belmont.

Six amusing roles are available in the age range 30 to 50. The lead is Norman, an aimless assistant librarian trying to develop a romance with his sister-in-law. She is Annie, a youthful spinster who keeps house in the country for her invalid mother while fending off a local suitor, the veterinarian Tom.

Reg and Sarah, Annie's brother and sister-in-law come down from London to help out for the weekend. Norman makes a pass at Sarah and the action is complicated by the arrival of Norman's business-like wife, Ruth. The interactions of these unusual characters provide great comedy.

Tryouts for these parts and for backstage opportunities will be held in the Michelsen Room, Winchester Unitarian Church, Monday and Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m.

Selectmen's Notes

The Board of Selectmen appointed five residents to the Swimming Pool Committee Monday night. The residents, interviewed for the positions Jan. 22, will investigate the construction of a swimming pool for community and school use.

Appointed were Harrision Chadwick, Richard Donovan, Ann Howell, Steve Poulos, and Eugene Racek.

Town Meeting in November approved the establishment of the Swimming Pool Committee. The five members will report on possible design, size, site, and costs of the proposed pool.

The town committee will probably work in conjuction with an already formed citizen's committee, the Winchester Swimming Pool Committee. The citizen's committee has raised funds to go towards the design fees and construction of a pool.

MBTA Signs Questioned

The MBTA is going to have a difficult time getting approval to place new bus stop signs in Winchester, following a discussion of the Selectmen and an MBTA representative Monday night. The board didn't deny installation of the new signs, but all members said they would have to hear a compelling reason of need for the signs before approval was made.

Joseph Cormier of the MBTA brought in samples of the proposed bus stop signs. The postings are printed red and black with bus route information, no parking logos, and bus stop logos.

Approximately 40 signs would be installed in town along the bus routes. Cormier said the signs were proposed to standardize bus information in Boston and surrounding communiies.

Barbara Hankins asked Cormier who would be responsible for repairing the landscape dug up when installing the 40 poles. She also asked about the upkeep of the signs.

Cormier said a contractor would be responsible for the signs installation and upkeep for one year. After that time, the upkeep would be the responsiblity of the MBTA.

Arthur Dunbar, who has opposed the sign installation since the proposal first came up said, that the MBTA's money would be better spent on rolling stock, instead of new signs. He asked Cormier what the cost of the project is to the MBTA, a question the representative could not answer.

"I'd vote against it," Dunbar said, "because I think it's a waste of the taxpayers dollars."

Other members of the Board of Selectmen were against the signs because of aesthetic reasons. But a final decision to okay or deny the postings has been delayed until after a meeting of the traffic safety committee.

"If there is a reason I should be considering these signs more seriously," Mrs. Hankins said, "I want to know what it is."

Registrar of Voters

The Selectmen interviewed three nominees from the Democratic Town Committee for the position of Registrar of Voters. The board will announce the appointment next Monday night.

Each nominee is a member of the Democratic Town Committee and expressed interest in assuming the position.

Mary D. Serieka O'Brien has been a member of the Democratic Town Committee for 10 years. She is a Winchester native and has been involved in politics since she was 16 years old.

Mrs. O'Brien was a Town Meeting member for three terms, has been a poll worker, and presently is a school crossing guard.

Roberta Strange Jewett is a graduate of Winchester High School and has been a member of the Democratic Committee for four years. She is active in church affairs and has been a poll worker for five years.

The third nominee, Ernest Geannaris, has been a Winchester resident for 12 years. He is presently employed at Star Market in Woburn.

The appointment of the new registrar will replace the position previously held by Henry Murray, who passed away in December.

Fire Chief Says Smoke Detectors Valuable

Smoke detectors will not prevent fires, will not protect your property (especially if you're not at home), and will not put the fire out for you, says Fire Chief Robert W. McElhinney.

But in case of fire, McElhinney points out, they will increase your chances of awakening from sleep, getting out of the house and getting to a phone to call the fire department.

A recent example of the value of smoke detectors in signaling danger was a fire in a house on Highland avenue Jan. 1.

A smoke detector alarm alerted three sleeping boys to a fire which, according to fire officials, started either in the family's television set or in a TV-game unit attached to the set.

Fire Department crews worked throughout the storm and days after to clear up flooded streets, such as Manchester road. (Staff photo by Karen Webber)

In a fact sheet on smoke detectors for town citizens, Chief McElhinney notes some fire statistics which challenge some commonly-held assumptions, such as "there's usually plenty of time to get out" of a burning house.

According to the fire chief, more than 5,000 persons die and over 300,000 are injured each year by fire in residences. Most fire deaths and many fire-related injuries are caused by smoke, not flames, the chief says. Over 70 percent of these deaths and injuries occur between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Most people underestimate the danger of death from night-time fires, the chief contends. People think the smell of smoke would awaken them during a fire, he says.

"This might be true," McElhinney notes in the fact sheet, "if acrid-smelling smoke were the only thing produced by a household fire. Unfortunately," he continues, "many home fires smolder slowly for hours before they burst into open flames."

While this incomplete combustion is taking place, according to the fire chief, large quantities of toxic gasses, including carbon monoxide, are produced.

Carbon monoxide is the same odorless, tasteless and colorless gas that causes death when people breathe automobile fumes in a closed garage. If a person is asleep when this gas enters his room, the chances are he may never wake up, the chief explains.

People cannot count on having plenty of time to get out of the house, McElhinney adds. There might be time, he says, if someone is awake and has time to round up other occupants and if none of them has inhaled too much smoke or carbon monoxide. We must remember, the chief stresses, that toxic gasses are present long before flames become visible.

The use of smoke detectors can help to avoid dangerous situations caused by fire. Chief McElhinney offers the following information to people who are wondering about purchasing a smoke detector for their home:

Approved smoke detector units can be purchased for prices ranging from $20 to $50, depending on the model chosen;

About 9,000,000 smoke detectors are sold each year;

The smoke detector purchased should be listed or approved by a nationally-recognized testing laboratory such as Underwriters Laboratories Inc. The approval means that the detector is certified to meet basic performance standards;

There are two basic types of smoke detectors available: photoelectric and ionization. Both types are approved by nationally-recognized testing laboratories and either can do a good job in the home;

There is no radiation danger from ionization smoke detectors;

A smoke detector on each level of the house gives the best protection. Detectors should be installed in the following locales: one in the hallway outside each sleeping area and one at the foot of the basement stairway and not in the stairwell itself.

In a two-story house, one should be installed in the hallway near the stairway leading to the second floor;.

A smoke detector should never be installed in the kitchen or within six feet of the kitchen area;

All smoke detectors should be ceiling-mounted and not less than two feet out from any wall;

Very little maintenance is required for smoke detectors. A monthly test and a monthly cleaning with a vacuum cleaner are necessary.

Questions pertaining to the purchase or the installation of smoke detectors, Chief McElhinney says, should be directed to the fire department at 729-1801.

Larceny, Breaks, One Assault Reported In Previous Week

In police news this week, two men were assaulted early Saturday morning on Coolidge road.

Police said three Winchester residents came to the station to report that at approximately 12:30 a.m., they were walking on Coolidge road, when a car with three men inside pulled up to them. Two men got out of the car, the residents told police, assaulted two of them, got back in the car and left.

Several incidences of breaking and entering and larceny were reported to police during the past week.

Last Tuesday, between 3 and 4:18 p.m., items valued at $2500 were taken from a home on Baldwin street. Included among the missing items were candlesticks and a setting for 12 in sterling silver; a service set and chafing dish in silver plate; a pocket watch; two jewelry boxes; and miscellaneous jewelry pieces.

On Friday, someone broke into an apartment on Lewis road sometime before 6:30 p.m. and took three Oriental rugs, a watch, a silver box collection and a number of Hummel figurines. The value of the items taken was estimated at $1000.

That same day, a resident of Lake street reported that the battery of his car had been removed sometime during the previous night.

On Saturday, $180 in cash was reported missing from a home on Arthur street.

It was reported from a residence on Swanton street on Monday that a Briggs-Straton engine from a compactor, valued at $200, had been taken from the cellar of the building during the weekend.

Also reported on Monday was a case of breaking and entering on Sargent road. No details are yet available on that break.

Monday evening, a car parked in the high school parking lot was broken into and the glove compartment was rifled.

In another car-related incident, police said a vehicle was stolen from a lot on Webster street sometime between 6:30 p.m. Thursday and 6:30 a.m. Friday.

The report of another stolen vehicle, this one from a Lewis road parking lot, was received by police Monday morning.

Disaster Committee Reorganizes

Under the leadership of Paul McLaughlin, Winchester Red Cross Disaster chairman, the members of the committee met last week to discuss the problems facing the committee as it prepares to help Winchester families if and when any kind of disaster strikes. The Disaster Committee aims to be ready to cooperate with police and town officalis in case of blizzard, fire, train wreck, flood, earthquake, etc.

At the reorganization meeting last week the following responsiblities were assigned: shelter management, Kathleen Kirkpatrick, R.N.; communications and fuel, Wikliam Kirk; food and liaison with town agencies. Tom Wahl; temporary housing, Janice Eyden; information and publicity, Betsy Cole; special needs and replacement of household items, Kathy Cook; individiual assistance, Helen Couture; Disaster site coordination, Paul McLaughlin.

To be ready and equipped to act on short notice, Paul McLaughlin says, more members are needed on the committee. The committee will meet next Thursday and welcomes the help of other citizens. Anyone willing to serve should telephone the chapter house at 729-2300 for the time and place of the committee meeting.

BEAUTY RESCUE
When Cold Winds Blow
Few things can devastate the beauty of your skin faster than the icy winds of February and March. As the chill air blows against your face, hands, and legs, it draws moisture from the cells and windburns the delicate surface tissue. A Few Seats Still Left For Winton Club's 'Rainbows'

This is the final production week. The 58th annual Winton Club Cabaret Show is on the boards and receiving well-deserved appreciation and acclaim. The cast and the production staff have survived all the weather that January could rain on them and everything in Winchester is coming up "Rainbows."

Sunday afternoon the entire show was put together for the first time, and as the various committees began to interweave their responsibilities.

Larry Alford of Jerome Cargill organized his production staff, and outlined to the cast what was expected of them and the supporting committees, and then it was rehearsal time for the following hours. It takes many run throughs to achieve the timing necessary to make a cabaret show move and flow. This is the put together rehearsal where lights, costumes, and expanded music are all added at once, and most performers need to regauge their timing, especially after rehearsing with a piano or tapes.

Music is the all important key ingredient that holds, moves, and sparks a cabaret show. Winton Club's musical director is Lawrence Suvak. He has been a resident of Winchester for the past eight years; his original home was Ohio where he received his degree in music at Baldwin-Wallace College.

He is presently teaching at Berklee College of Music in Boston and holds his master in music from the New England Conservatory. Suvak is a veteran of many pit orchestras, including the North Shore Theatre and the Chateau de Ville.

He is a well known free-lancing director in the greater Boston area; and, this is his fourth year as the music director of the musical shows produced at McCall Junior High.

Mrs. John Culver, chairman of this year's cabaret show, has assembled an outstanding cabaret committee for this year's production. Four of her members-at-large are past show chairmen, Mesdames, McGovern, Sutherland, Duffy and Kelley.

Chairman of makeup, Mrs. Ralph Swanson produced the 50th Winton Club Cabaret. Mrs. Karl Sorger who innovated the elegant wine contest is again fulfilling that chairmanship.

Mrs. Howard Abbott stepped in to fill at a very late date the demanding chairmanship of properties. Mrs. Abbott not only has to either collect, find, borrow, or make the needed "props," she also has to make sure that each "star" has the right prop at the right time.

Mrs. Geroge Rivinius, president of Winton Club, does not head up a chairmanship in name, but each day can be found either at the Winchester Town Hall helping on costumes, or floor decorations, and is quietly available whenever the need arises.

A few table seats on Friday evening are available and can be obtained by calling Mrs. John Wiseman, 729-0616. Balcony seats are available at the box office.

Library Exhibit

For the month of February the Winchester Public Library is featuring an exhibition of prints by local photographer Marjorie McCann-Estridge.

The theme of the show, located in the display case on the main floor, is "The Way We Were...The Blizzard of 1978." It portrays downtown Winchester during and after the storm of last February that left more than 23 inches of snow in a windy 24-hour period.

The pictures, in black and white, recall the quality of the days during and following the record storm, when pedestrians outnumbered automobiles, and families walked into the center with sleds and skiied in with knapsacks to buy their groceries.

Clarence S. Borggaard, initiator of the Fund for Deaf Communication, receives a contribution from Thomas E. Dickinson, Winchester Savings Bank. Leila-Jane Roberts, director of the town library, tries out a machine which enables those with hearing loss to participate in telephone communication. The town library is interested in having the machines for use by those with hearing problems, if funds can be raised to purchase them. (Staff photo)

Building Department Urges Homeowners Obtain Permits

The Building Department is alerting all homeowners to the necessity of obtaining building permits, prior to the commencement of any new construction or alterations to existing building.

The Massachusetts State Building Code which was established by Chapter 802 of the Acts of 1972, requires the issuance of permits for new construction of any kind and most types of building alterations, electrical work and the installation of heating equipment, plumbing and gas fixtures.

The following are examples of some types of work that require a permit; additions of any kind including sundecks, modification of walls or partitions, replacement of roofing or siding, installation of an inground or above ground swimming pool, enclosing existing open structures, erecting accessory buildings of any kind, installation of fireplaces, chimneys, wood burning stoves, wiring, heating equipment, plumbing and gas fixtures.

The best assurance that the work is performed in a safe and proper manner is to be sure that the person doing the work has a permit. If he has, the work will be checked by a competent licensed inspector from the buildilng department, whose responsibllity is to insure a proper installation for the health and safety of the homeowner.

Residents who have any doubt that a permit is required, should contact the Building Department Office.

FOR HOT WATER OR STEAM IT'S THE WEIL-MCLAIN BOILER
If your home is hot water or steam heated, or you would like it to be, we at FEDERAL are certainly in a position to help your family's comfort.
Hot water or steam heating systems have many advantages that will bring your family real comfort during the colder months. Just imagine no hot spots, no cold spots, no wide temperature variations, and floors always warm and draftless.
It's possible with the WEIL-MCLAIN hot water heating system. Water heated in a WEIL-MCLAIN BOILER is circulated through WEIL-MCLAIN BASEBOARDS placed along outerwalls . . . surrounding your home with a ring of warmth . . . blocking out cold where cold comes in. Because the cost of heating your home is surely a factor in your choice of equipment, we recommend the WEIL-MCLAIN boiler. With the baseboard heating system, a WEIL-MCLAIN BOILER IS automatically controlled to match every dip and rise of the thermometer. You get just enough heat; not overheating some of the time and eventual waste of fuel. Our sales engineering department is staffed with men who are recognized experts in fitting the WEIL-MCLAIN hot water heating system in your home's needs.

Saturday Movies At Lincoln School

The Winchester High School sophomore class presents bargain priced Saturday movies at the Lincoln School auditorium from 2 to 4 p.m. Admissions is $1 and refreshments will be sold.

This week's feature is "the Ghost and Mr. Chicken." Next week's (Feb 10,) movies will be "The Incredible Journey."

"The Ghost and Mr. Chicken" is an hilarious comedy starring Don Knotts. Knotts plays a small time newspaper reporter who wants to make a big scoop, but in order to he must stay overnight in a haunted house.

College Representatives Visit WHS Wednesday

Every Wednesday after school at 2:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the high school, the Guidance Office will be conducting a minicollege program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, the following institutions will be represented, Johnson & Wales College (Rhode Island); U.S. Air Force Recruiter, and U.S. Navy Recruiter.

Parents Tour Winchester High School Next Week

For several years now, the Parent Faculty Association of the high school, in cooperation with its staff has sponsored "Classrooms-in-Action" tours. Any parent who has children in the system, but particularly those who have children in grades eight through 12, are invited to come and experience a day in the life of a high school student.

This year two full day tours are scheduled for Monday, and Wednesday. In addition there will be a half day tour Tuesday, which is a released time day. February 12 has been set aside as a snow day, in case one of the scheduled tours has to be cancelled.

Tours will begin at 8 a.m. in the high school auditorium, where the visitors will meet their guides and will end at 2:30 p.m. The half day session, Tuesday, will run from 8 a.m. - 11:30 a.m.

Prents should sign up ahead of time with one of the guides listed below for the day which they wish to attend.

These tours are part of the Parent Faculty Association's efforts to help parents learn more about the high school and its educational opportunities. Included are the modern science department and other well-equipped academic areas, the music rooms, the gym, the industrial arts center and the home economics and business departments.

Lunch in the teachers' lounge will provide a well deserved rest period, (Dutch treat).

There will be time to observe various classrooms as they operate during a regular school day. At the end of the tour, Principal Larocco and Mr. DeBiase, Guidance Department head, will answer questions.

For further information, call any of the following tour guides: Carla Lele, 729-5837, Feb. 5; Mary Barger, 729-4760, Feb. 6; and Ann McGovern, 729-2661, Feb. 7.

Unitarian Nursery To Take Applications At Open House Feb. 13

School News

St. Mary's School To Participate In Catholic School Wk.

St. Mary's School in Winchester joins with the other parochial school in the Archdiosease of Boston in celebrating Catholic School Week from Feb. 5 through 9. The theme this year is "next to the Family, the Catholic School."

The Catholic school tried to impart a Christ-centered education, making faith a part of each day.

Some of the activites planned for this week are an evening family mass on Monday, at 7:30 p.m. in the church. Classroom visitation will be held Tuesday morning. The week will continue with a teacher appreciation day, and end with a professional day for teachers all day on Friday at St. Charles parish, Woburn.

Registration for new puppils will also take place that week, Monday through Thursday, starting at 10 a.m. through 1 p.m. in the school office. Pre-kindergarten, kindergarten, and grade one enrollees need birth certificates.

Lincoln Parents Plan Meeting

The Lincoln Parents Association will hold a meeting next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school library, to enable working parents to attend.

President Lucy Peck will conduct a short business meeting and introduce the board members.

The speaker of the evening will be Dr. Gleason, superintendent of curriculum. He will explain the testing program in the elementary schools.

Voke School Open House To Be Wednesday

The Northeast Regional Vocational School, Hemlock road, Wakefield, invites interested eighth grade students and their parents to an open house Wednesday from noon to 2:45 p.m.

Transportation should be arranged by each participant. Adminstrators, guidance counselors, and teachers will be on hand to answer questions.

Last year over 2000 students and parents visited Northeast at the open house.

Film Program

A family film program will be held in the story hour room of the junior library Sunday, 2:30 p.m. It is requested that at least one adult accompany each group of children.

There will be a Tuesday afternoon film program for school-age children at 1:30 p.m.

The film feature this week is "Santiago's Ark", the story of a Pureto Rican boy who dreams of seas and ships. With his friends, he decides to build a ship on the roof top of the apartment house. Through the encouragement he receives in ghetto surroundings, he realizes that dreams are indeed worthwhile and can come true. This film is 47 minutes in length.

McCall Names Cast For Musical Oliver

The students at McCall Junior High School are looking forward to their annual musical production. This year, producer, Paul G. Davis, of the McCall music staff and director, Sally Murdock, have selected the smash musical "Oliver!." It will be presented at the school auditorium on April 6 and 7 at 8 p.m. A performance for elementary students and senior citizens will also be given.

Assisting with the production are Neil Gillis, technical stage advisor; Leslie Eggleing, rehearsal pianist; Lawerence Suvak, orchestral director; and Susan Burns, choreographer.

Casting has been completed and rehearsals are well underway. The total cast numbers 120 students, with another 100 students involved on the production crews.

The main characters are, Oliver, Dominic Shea; Fagin, Artie Oliver; the Artful Dodger, Michael Trabucco; Bill Sikes, Brian Milauskas; Nancy, Pilar Pittas; Bet, Karen Sereika; Mr. Bumble, Scott McAdams; Mrs. Corney, Karen Carter; and Mr. Brownlow, David Sheehy.

Storm Causes Flooding, Property Damage

does not at this time have an accurate account of how Woburn handled the dam control at Horn Pond. He has circulated a memo to all town department heads requesting the information.

In addition, Groux said he will be in contact with the mayor of Woburn and MDC officials who control the dams at Mystic Lake.

At the Arlington-Medford end of town, Groux is trying to determine if the dams were dropped.

"Winchester was in the middle," Groux told residents at the Selectmen's meeting. "The MDC was holding the plug at one end and Woburn was controlling the faucet at the other."

Groux noted that proper roles of communities and the state must be established to monitor stream flows and dams.

William Newman of the Woburn Water Department pumping station which controls Horn Pond dam, told The Star that several factors contributed to the flooding in Winchester.

He said the Jan. 21 rain-snow storm left the ground choked. Although his department recorded only two and one-half inches of rain Thursday, the ground couldn't retain the additional rainfall and overflow occurred.

The Woburn representative said the storm was the largest non-hurricane type of storm since 1955. Increased property development (more homes, foundations, and so on) made the flooding problems worse in 1979.

He also noted the dams had been "set for the winter" and no matter what happened on the Woburn end, flooding would have occurred.

"Mother Nature was just showing her power," he said.

The residents of Horn Pond feel a safety mechanism is needed to avoid future flooding problems. Groux said he would be checking to see if flood control gates were installed at Pond street when the level of Horn Pond was raised.

Groux added he would investigate the control of the Mystic dams, to insure that water that enters Winchester's waterways, has an exit.

Most town departments report that as of Tuesday, the flooding problems were under control.

DPW Director Walter Tonaszuck said that "everything is back to normal." Tonaszuck said the DPW rainfall gauge measured over four inches of rain from the storm.

The town yard was again a problem area for flooding. Reconstruction for the yard is in the planning stages, and Tonaszuck said the recent flooding problems are being taken into consideration.

Tonaszuck said the banks of the stream by the yard were never graded properly. With proper grading, and land elevation in the yard, the new DPW complex should be set for heavy rains.

The building which suffered the heaviest flooding, the Water Department building, is scheduled for demolition under the reconstruction.

"I'm not afraid of construction on this site," Tonaszuck said.

The Fire Department started receiving calls from residents Thursday at 1:25 a.m. Reports were that water was coming through electrical fixtures in homes.

According to Chief Robert McElhinney, the department went to 163 homes for flooded basements and pumped out about 50.

As of Tuesday, two pumpers were still out on the road, pumping.

The Fire Department noted Brookside avenue, Manchester road, Jefferson road and the Cross street area were hard hit.

Thursday, two cellar fires, the as a result of flooded basements, started in the electrical controls of gas burners. Minimal damage was reported from the fires.

Town Engineer John Ciarcia is awaiting official word on just how severe the storm was. He believes the rainfall might reach the 100-year storm level.

The 100 year storm is a federal standard which has been developed. The government measures 10, 50, 100, and 500 year storms at selected stations throughout the states. From the tabulations, expected flood levels are determined. The severity of a storm increases from 10 year to 500 year.

Ciarcia noted Cross street, Lowell avenue, and Winter street were also areas of heavy flooding, and added there were many isolated instances of cellar flooding in town.

On Thursday, the water was at its highest peak at around 8 p.m., he said.

Season Ends On Losing Note As Woburn Soundly Defeats Sachem Tracksters

By KEN JACOBSON

The Winchester High School track team ended the season with a disappointing loss to Woburn, 58 to 28. As Winchester entered the Lexington fieldhouse, they were hoping for a very close meet. But this did not occur as the tracksters were soundly defeated by the Woburn Tanners, despite excellent performances of Ed Kirkpatrick, Andy Wilsak, and Ken Kirk.

The meet began with a victory as Loukas Natsis out ran two Woburn hurdlers to the finish line with a solid time of 6.3. The other hurdlers participating for Winchester were Steve Criscione, John Wiseman, and Wayne Ciarcia.

The 45 yard dash saw Phil Mulvaney, Jason Lucero, and Rich Doron running against three tough Woburn opponents. In a close and exiiting race,Phil Mulvaney captured a third place for the Sachems.

Winchester was represented in the shotput but John Shattuck, Richard Montouri, And Rich Beal, who was filling in for Bob Cooke. Strong throws by Shattuck and Montouri brought firt and third repectively. Other shotput competitors from Winchester include Jay Gill and Chris Potts.

The combined efforts of Paul Mafera, Phil Mulvaney, and Tim Langely in the high jump were not good enough to stop the league-leading jumpers form Woburn as Winchester was swept.

The 600 was the race to watch. Winchester's Ken Kirk battled Fred Kirk, an excellent opponent from Woburn.Ken Kirk ran an outstanding time of 1: 18.2, his best time of the year, but it was not fast enough, as Fred Kirk, the best 600 yarder in the league, finished with a 1:17.8.

Other runners for Winchester were Mark Schwartzman, Ken Jacobson, Jim McKenna, Jim Cullen, Andy Matchindola, and Jim Papathias

Don MacMillan and Tommy Wilsak, running against the best 300 yarder in the league, obtained third and fourth place with times of 35.5 and 35.6. Sophomores Tim Mahon and Paul McCarthy also ran the 300.

Senior captais E Kirkpatrick and Andy Wilsack continued to demonstrate their outstanding track abilities. Ed Kirkpatrick, who seems to be improving with every race, obtained a first place in the 100, with his best time of the year 2:22.9 Jim Wilbur ran a strong race and finish third.

Others runners from Winchester were Feza Kopriucu, David Schuiteman, Phil Kirkpatrick, and Steve Quinn.

The one mile was one of the bette4 races of the day as Andy Wilsak beat Mike Flynn, an impressive sophomore from Woburn holds the third best time in the league. The remaining runners in the field were David Criscione, John Provenzano, Jim Connolly and Peter Delgreco.

The two mile watchers saw Tom Doocey put in a tremendous effort in placing third against the strong Woburn two-milers. Other fine runnrs for Winchester wre Rob and Joe Flynn.

In the mile relay, Winchester ran against a hot Woburn team. The tTanners achieved the best time of any of the other relay teams in the league. The runners for Winchester were Ken kirk, Ken Jacobosn, Ed Kirkpatrick and Andy Wilsak.

Winchester finished the season with a disappointing 3 to 6 record. With a few breaks in the Wakefield Burlington and Belmont meets, the season record could have easily been 6-3.

The boys' track team lost their last meet of the season to Woburn, leaving their season record at 3 and 6.

Dexter Excels On Bucknell's Swimming Team

Bucknell's women's swimmers have notched two victories in as many outings thanks, in part, to the consistent swimming of freshman Elizabeth "Bitser"Dexter. Dexter, from Winchester, excels in the 50 and 100 yard breaststroke.

She has not lost a race this season. In the Bisons' 68 to 62 victory over Cornell early in December, she won the 50 yard breaststroke in :34.6 and the 100 yard breast in 1:14.1 She also swam on the victorious 200 medley relay.

"Bitser" swam equally well when Bucknell defeated Swarthmore, 79-40, on Tuesday. Once again, Dexter paced a victorious medley relay and won the 50 yard breaststroke. She bested all comers in the 100 breaststrokes, but, since she was entered unofficially, her performance did not count.

Bison women's swim coach Connie Brennan said, "Bitser is a strong swimmer and very consistent. She is a fine team swimmer, with a good attitude toward the sport."

The Sports Arena

Gary Tedesco was high scorer during the Winchester-Reading game. Although the Sachems lost, 75 to 50, Tedesco chalked up 22 points. (Staff photo by Dan Walsh)

Lynch Boys' Basketball Boasts Best Record In Years: Six Wins, One Loss

With the season just past the mid-way point the Lynch boys' basketball team is off to its best record in recent years. The team has won six out of seven games with its most recent victories coming over Clarke Junior High of Lexington and each of the two Woburn Junior High teams.

On Jan. 19 co-captains Chris Hoffman and Paul Williamson led the way with 19 and 12 points respectively. Their efforts helped Lynch drop Lexington's Clarke Junior High team from the undefeated ranks. Employing an effective 2-2-1 full court press the Crusaders opened up a 17 point half-time lead and coasted to a 48 to 41.

Last week's action found Lynch up against the rival Woburn Junior High teams. While not quite as sharp as in some early contests the Winchester entry was able to come away with two more victories.

In Tuesday's game Lynch enjoyed a home court advantage and defeated Woburn's Kennedy Junior High. Jeff Perkins (18 points) and Tim Hoffman (21 points) provided the scoring punch. The Crusaders were able to withstand a fourth quarter Woburn surge with some help off of the bench from Steve Macdonald as Lynch came out on top by a close 52 to 48 margin.

The Lynch B team was also victorious over Kennedy Junior High due to the offensive work of Paul O'Brien, Dave Palumbo, Steve Driscoll and Ivan Adler. This was complemented by the aggressive rebounding and defensive team-work of Gary Ameral, Don Hoffman and Rob MacDonald. Although the B teams record is not quite as impressive as that of the A team, their hustling attitude has been consistent throughout the early season play.

On Friday Lynch traveled to Woburn's Joyce Junior High and came home with a 48 to 37 win. Effective inside rebounding by Keith McCarthy and a balanced offensive attack whick had three players in double figures proved too much for the Tanner's to handle.

The team's record now stands at six wins and only one loss. Coach Bill Chase attributes this year's success to experience and on court discipline. The starting five played together all last year on the Lynch B team with a winning record of six wins, two losses.

Chris Hoffman and Keith McCarthy have been playing on the team since they were in seventh grade. Many of the boys have gotten a tremendous amount of experience from playing in church leagues and at summer camps.

There is no substitute for practice, experience and hard work. The efforts of these boys toward basketball are bing rewarded with a winning record this season.

Sachem Pucksters Lose Two, Record 2-10

Winchester's Jack Collins, No.7 in black, watches teammate Ron DiVencenzo's shot go by Watertown goalie John Vlachos into the net. Sachems lost to Watertown, 7 to 4.

By DAVE LA FAUCI

Winchester's hockey team lost two games last week to drop its seasonal record to two wins and 10 defeats. Last Wednesday the Sachems were beaten by Watertown, 7 to 4. On Saturday Lexington was the victor, 5 to 0.

In the Watertown game, the Sachems got on the board first. At 3:45 of the first period Hugo LaFauci intercepted a Watertown clearing attempt and cut to his right. LaFauci then fired back to his left, beating Watertown goalie John Vlachos just inside the left post.

The Winchester lead did not last long. The Sachems were called for charging at 4:25. Twenty seconds into the Watertown power play, Bob Johnson took a pass at center ice and cut down the right wing. Johnson swung a Sachem defenseman and centered the puck to Earl Duggett. Duggett's quick shot beat Surabian to the left side of the net.

Watertown grabbed a 2 to 1 lead just fifteen seconds later. John Pinzone made a good rush through center ice. Pinzone cut to his right and fired a slapshot from 30 feet out. The shot beat Surabian, again to the left side of the cage.

Ron DiVencenzo got the Sachems even at 6:34. His blast from the right point beat Vlachos to the the far corner. DiVencenzo was assisted by Bubba Sanford and Skiff Sizemore.

The rest of the period featured wide-open hockey, but there was no further scoring. The Sachems had the better scoring chances but were throttled by some fine goaltending by Vlachos and their own inaccurate shooting. On several occasions Winchester's forwards shot the puck right into Vlachos instead of picking an open corner of the net.

Winchester's nemesis this season has been a second period letdown. Again this was the case. At 0:24 of the period Jim McCaughey scored from the left point to give the Red Raiders a 3 to 2 lead. Less than a minute later, Bob McPhail sank a 10-foot backhand shot to increase Watertown's margin to 4 to 2.

Winchester answered at the two minute mark. Bubba Sanford made a rush down the right wing and fed Skiff Sizemore in the slot. Sizemore's quick shot beat Vlachos to the short side. The Sachems had narrowed the deficit to 4 to 3.

Watertown got the pivotal next goal. Brian Frain was positioned in front to tip Bob McPhail's centering pass by Surabian at 8:43.

The Red Raiders took advantage of a power play opportunity to increase their lead to 6 to 3 before the second period ended. Bob Johnson was the marksman as he converted his own rebound at 11:11.

In the third period Winchester closed to 6 to 4 when Ron DiVencenzo got his second goal of the afternoon. DiVencenzo's rocket from the right point caught the top left corner of the net at 9:29.

The Sachems could get no closer. Bob Johnson added an insurance goal for Watertown when his slapshot from the left wing caught the right side of the cage. Johnson's goal came at 14:29 and made the final score: Watertown 7, Winchester 4.

On Saturday Winchester found itself up against a team with tournament aspirations. The Lexington Minutemen played like a tourney team as they outshot the Sachems 44 to 10 and outscored them 5 to 0.

In the first period only excellent goaltending by Bob Surabian kept the game from turning into an early rout. Surabian faced an onslaught of 18 Lexington shots in the period. He stopped 15 of them.

He was unable to keep the Minutemen from getting a quick jump. Only 58 seconds had elapsed when John Coughlin's slapshot from well out on the left wing caught the right corner of the net.

At 7:36 the Sachems were called for charging. Here Lexington displayed an impressive power play. They moved the puck well and got off several testing shots on Surabian.

The pressure paid off at 8:28. Mark Leach's shot from the left point was stopped by Surabian, but Joe DiGrazia was able to slide the rebound under him. The Minutemen now led, 2 to 0.

Glenn Nazarian made it 3 to 0 at 13:26. Nazarian was positioned to the right of Surabian with his stick on the ice. A shot from the left point found its way through a maze of bodies and deflected off someone in front onto Nazarian's stick. The puck was in the net before Surabian could react.

The Minutemen again dominated play in the second period. They fired 13 shots at Surabian, managing to beat him twice.

At 3:17 Mike Sadgather's backhand shot off a two on one break made it 4 to 0. Drew Hurley made it 5 to 0 at 6:50 when he worked a pretty give and go with Chuck Defrancisco. At the play's completion Hurley had only to tap the puck into the open net.

Hurley's goal finished the second period socring. The third period was scoreless. Surabian was forced to make 13 stops in the last period, giving him a total of 39 for the game.

The Sachems did not figure to beat Lexington. Watertown on the other hand, was beatable. With a rebuilding team the "could-have-beatens" are the season's real disappointments.

Bowling Group Meets Last Week

Weather caused a smaller than normal turnout last week for couples-A-Go-Go bowling group but the spirit of competition persisted nevertheless. Matches were very close with almost all teams splitting the points.

Productivity of a bowler is measured by the ability to continually raise an average after weeks of bowling. This was accomplished by Guy Mafera plus one, Bob Pawlak plus one, and Chat Watts plus two.

Hosts for the evening were Guy and Carol Mafera.

Tracksters Compete In Coaches' Tourney

By BILL HART

Sara Fotsch, captain of the Winchester girls' winter track team, received a telegram recently from Senator Kennedy nominating her to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. She passed the physical apptitude test, forwarded her credentials to Annapolis, and is waiting word of their decision. That's due in April. Her alternatives are the other two academies. However, for the present, Fotsch sat in the stands at the new indoor track and tennis complex at Harvard University last Saturday evening encouraging her teammate, Jane Terry, in the second annual girls' coaches' invitational track meet.

Fotsch was elected captain of the newly organized varsity girls' track team by her teammates.

"I suppose I was chosen captain," said Fotsch, "because I was the only one who would go through the initiation. I was put into the showers and then they covered me with baby powder."

Fotsch runs the mile. Not last Saturday. She ran the first 75 yeards and twisted her ankle. "Must be my broken down shoes," said Fotsch later. "I've got a trick ankle, anyhow. I'd better invest in a new pair for better support."

"The team is seeing the best high school girls in the state at this invitational." said Tom Kline, head coach of the boys' and girls' winter track team. "I excused one of the girls for the Junior Prom otherwise she would have been here, too," said Kline looking down at his athletes from a row higher in the stands.

Kline and his girls are having a very successful season, five wins and no losses. He looked a bit tired. He was with the boys' track team during the day, arrived at the high school at 4:15 p.m., immediately jumped into another bus to be with the girls"team for the invitational which began at six.

"The girls needed the experience at a meet of this size," said Kline. "Many of these girls are going to the states next month so they need this type of meet to see what they're up against."

Fotsch agreed with her coach. "I didn't realize that there was so much good competition," said Fotsch. "The experinece is good. We are a little wiser by being here."

"Michele DeMars should have qualified for the finals," said Fotsch. "She won her heat but she didn't realize that there were other heats in her event." Fotsch remarked. "that's some of the experience we gained by being here. Next time she'll race against time rather then to take a first in a slow heat," Fotsch added.

De Mars ran a nifty 12:30. The sixth place fnisher in the finals had a 11:54. The other two-miler on the team is Kathy Welch.

Jane Terry did qualify in the 50-yard dash and took a second place in the finals with a 6.3. She might have had first but she was a little slow getting off the blocks. Kathleen Driscol, a senior, runs the 300. She ran 39.2. That was seven-tenths of a second off the time of the sixth place finisher in the finals.

Barbara Meyers, a junior, does the high jump. Her best jump this year was 4 feet, 11 inches. Luren Fryklund runs the 1000. She ran a 2:59 in one of her meets this year. To some who are not familiar with times, that's good! And she is only a sophomore. "The assistant coach, Mr. Cantillon, will work with her," Fotsch said.

"The next meet will be agianst Falmouth and Reading," said Fotsch. "That'll be a good one."

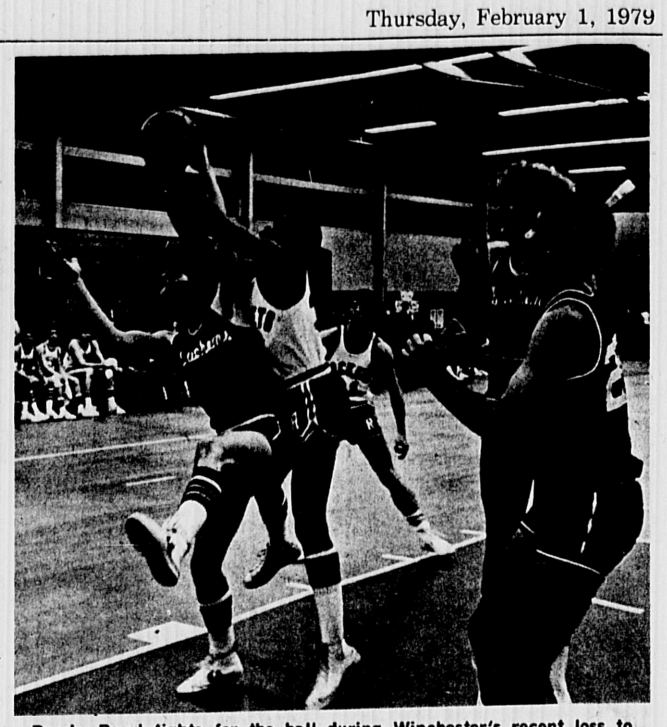

Nancy Buguey of Falmouth set one of the five records Saturday night with a 4:56.5 in the mile. She' ll be running against Sara Fotsch. Yes, this will be a good one!

The team practices every afternoon in the high school gymnasium. When it gets too crowded, the girls take to the streets. Most of the girls run on their own over the weekend. Fotsch also enjoys running the roads of Winchester.

"I have certain routes that I marked off," said Fotsch. "I'm running more and more. One day I ran Johnson road for a three-mile run.I always seem to get lost on Johnson road. When I finsihed on this particular day, I got so lost, I ended up doing evelen miles."

The experience of the invitational last Saturday night gave Driscoll, Fotsch, Terry, Demars, Welch , Fryklund, and Eileen Curry a better shot at the state championship this month.

Another new girls' varsity team, new routines, new worksouts but not new on talent. That's always been there. These runners won't get lost on a "Johnson road" in the states. It's one big oval, with many heats, plus the now valuable experience of the Winchester Sachems knowing their competition and times.

Hikers Invited To Enjoy Canal On February 19

The Middlesex Canal Association will hold a winter hike Feb. 19 at 1 p.m. Interested hikers should bring snowshoes, cross country skis, or if no snow, skates and good walking boots, to view a lovely wooded section of the old Middlesex Canal, starting at the Wilmington Town Park (opposite Brewster's Lumber Yard, Route 38.)

Stanley Webber, Wilmington board member of the Middlesex Canal Association who has preserved this best remaining portion of the canal, has given the association the go-ahead for the event.

Besides the section of the Webber land, which ends by a canal passing pond, hikers will see the Ox-bow with its facinating grooves carved in the bedrock by 50 years of towrope wear on the sharp bend and the remains of the Maple Meadow Brook Aqueduct. The latter two sights are a part of the Wilmington Town Park.

Hikers may bring themoses of hot coffee and cocoa to join in a tailgate social back at the Wilmington town parking lot. The total length of hike is two miles.

The association reminds readers that the old Middlesex Canal was one of the first completed towpaths in the United States (20 years before the Erie.) Granite for the famous Quincy Market was carried on canal barges from the Tyngsboro and Westford quarries from the banks of the Merrimack River on through the 20 locks from Chelmsford, Billerica, Wilmington, Woburn, Winchester, Medford, Somerville and Charlestown, then pulled by cable on a branch canal to Haymarket Square and Boston Harbor.

Swim Team Picks Up First Win

The Winchester High boys' team picked up their first win of the season defeating Don Bosco with a final score of 49 to 34.

Showing great dedication, the boys practice every morning from 5:45 to 7 a.m., under the leadership of coach Vin Palumbo and tri-captains Mark Opel, Paul McDonough, and Chris Porter. With a turnout of only 13 boys, the swim team does not have the overall depth of their competitors.

In the meeting against Don Bosco, the Sachems started off with a strong medley relay consisting of A. Christy (backstroke), M. Estabrook (breastroke), M. Minutoli (butterfly), and M. Opel (freestyle). The boys had an easy win, finishing with a time of 1:58.5.

Tri-captains C. Porter and P. McDonough swept the 200 yard freestyle placing first and second with a winning time of 2:11.4. The 200 yard individual medley saw B. Berkley and C. Greene finishing with second and fourth while A. Christy and tri-captain M. Opel finished second and third in a quick 50 yard freestyle.

Junior M. Estabrook finished second in the diving event scoring a total 116.39 points. The score at the end of the diving was tied 19 to 19.

Once again M. Minutoli went on to win the 100 yard butterfly with a winning time of 1:01.5, while J. McNamara swam into third place. M. Opel and B. Berkley swept the 100 yard freestyle with a winning time of 1:00.5. M. Minutoli won the grueling 500 yard freestyle (20 laps) with a time of 5:43.9 while P. McDonough swam into third place. C. Greene and S. Hurley swam into third and fourth place finishes in the 100 yard backstroke, while C. Porter and M. Estabrook dominated the 100 yard breaststroke taking first and second with a wining time of 1:11.7.

The meet closed with the 400 yard freestyle relay as the team of A. Christy, C. Porter, B. Berkley, and P. McDonough swam to first place with a winning time of 4:20.7. The second relay team of B. Sullivan,, J. Krueger, S. Hurley, and J. McNamara finished third.

The Sachems swam next against Burlington High School in an unofficial meet, winning with a final score of 90 to 80.

Last Saturday, the team swam against Malden High and were upset by five points. The Sachems started out with the strong relay team of C. Green, M. Estabroo,, M. Minutoli, and C. Porter who finished first with a winning time of 1:47.5., while the relay team of C. Greene, M. Opel, J. McNamara and S. Hurley swam in with third. C. Porter and P. McDonough handily placed first and second in the 200 yard freestyle with a winning time of 2:14.1. B. Berkley and C. Greene finished second and third in the 200 yard individual medley while A. Christy and M. Opel captured second and third places in the 50 yard freestyle.

J. McNamara finished third in the diving event with a total of 81.10 points. The score at the end of the diving was Malden over Winchester 20-18.

J. McNamara finished second in the 100 yard butterfly, while B. Berkley and M. Opel swam to second and third in the 100 yard freestyle. The 500 yard freestyle saw M. Minutoli and P. McDonoough taking first and second with a winning time of 5:59.3. Sophomores A. Christy and C. Greene finished second and fourth in the 100 yard backstroke while the 100 yard breaststroke brought C. Porter and M. Estabrook second and third place victories. The final score in the breaststroke was Malden over Winchester 37 to 36. The relay team of A. Christy, S. Hurley, M. Estabrook, and P. McDonough, lost the meet by a hair, ending up in second place with a time of 4:09.6.

The boys have their last meet of the season Saturday, at Northeast Regional Vocational School in Wakefield where they will swim against Belmont.

Australia extends over nearly three million square miles and has a population of eleven million, less than four people to each square mile. New Zealand, with its much smaller area averages about 24 people to the square mile. In both countries, all the big cities are on the sea, and in Australia all six state capitals are, too. The only important exceptions in Australia are the federal capital, Canberra, which was created for political reasons, and some picturesque mining towns.

Mystic Valley Orchestra To Present Concert Feb. 10

The Mystic Valley Chamber Orchestra will present its third concert of the 1978-79 season Feb. 10, at 8:15 p,m. at the First Congregational Church of Winchester, Church street. The concert will be repeated Feb. 11, at 3 p.m. in the First and Second Church of Boston, 66 Marlborough street, Back Bay.

The program includes Beethoven's "Piano Concerto No. 3" in C Minor, op. 37. with soloist Anne Franciose of Winchester. This will be Franciose's second appearance as soloist with the Mystic Valley Chamber Orchestera. Also to be performed are Entr'acte from "Rosamunde," by Franz Schubert, and "Serenade No. 2" in A. Opus 16, by Johannes Brahms. The orchestera will be under the direction of Charles Ellis.

Winchester residents who will be performing with the Mystic Valley Chamber Orchestra are, Sharon Casper, violin, and Michel Perrault principal viola.

The Mystic Valley Chamber Orchestra, a non-profit organization, began in the summer of 1976 with a small group of string players meeting for weekly sight reading sessions of chamber music repetoire. The enjoyment was such that the ensemble continued into the fall of that year embarking on its first concert on March 20, 1977 at the Malden Public Library. Since that time the orchestra has enlarged to 45 members, and presents regular concerts at the First and Second Church of Boston, in addition to the many concerts they have performed in Arlington, Lexington, Belmont, Malden and Medford.

The Mystic Valley Chamber Orchestera will be collaborating with the Master Singers of Lexington on March 17 and 18 for a concert of Dido and Aeneas, by Purcell.

The orchestra members are chosen by audition and include music students from the area's conservatories and music schools, as well as musicians who earn their livings in diverse fields. They rehearse weekly in Belmont or Medford.

Tickets for both Saturday and Sunday performances are $2 ($1 for students and senior citizens). They may be obtained at the door or by calling 729-3773

Win. Hospital Hosts Coffee For Volunteers Wednesday

An orientation and coffee for prospective adult men and women volunteers will be held on Wednesday, at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. in the hospital board room.

At that time Phyllis Hollinshead, director of volunteer services at the hospital, will explain the importance of the role of the volunteer in a hospital setting. Volunteers Barbara Ashley of Winchester and Averill Olson of Reading, vice-chairmen of the Friends of Winchester Hospital, will explain and show slides depicting some of the 20 volunteer services sponsored by the Friends.

Opportunities vary from non-patient areas such as the coffee shop, central supply, information desk, and laboratory office to working closely with patients on the Kraft Kart, messenger service or on patient care service. Volunteer opportunities are available mornings, afternoons, or evenings.

Volunteers are an important part of the patient care team at Winchester Hospital. By d9nating a few hours of time each week, volunteers can gain the personal satisfaction that comes in knowing their efforts are needed and appreciated.

For more information call the Volunteer Department at Winchester Hospital, 729-9000, extension 278.

Senior service telephone line hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Call 729-2111.

Task Force On Alcoholism To Meet Monday, 7:30 p.m., In Waltham

The February meeting of the Metropolitan-Beaverbrook-Mystic Valley Regional Task Force on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism will be held in the Board Room of the Middlesex Regional Alcoholism Treatment Center, at Middlesex County Hospital, 775 Trapelo Road, Waltham, on Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The Task Force serves the communities of Belmont, Waltham, Watertown, Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Wilmington, Winchester, and Woburn.

The Task Force seeks to involve area residents in order to achieve a broader representation of area alcoholism needs and to promote treatment, training and prevention programs. Interested citizens of the nine communities can participate in restructuring the organization so that it can most effectively serve the area.

At its February meeting, the Task Force will also be considering its recommendations to the Governor's Advisory Council on Alcoholism, which is seeking involvement of citizens and local groups in public hearings to be held in February and March to develop a State Health Plan for submission to the Federal Government.

Duplicate Bridge

Many moons ago, we were just decent contract bridge players. One day a friend suggested, "Wny don't you try duplicate?" Shaking in our boots, we did so and much to our surpise, we discovered that the image of "the nasty bridge player" just wasn't true at Winchester. Without even becoming aware of it, our bridge began to improve. What is duplicate and how will it help any bridge player's game?

Duplicate is a form of bridge whereby the cards are kept as dealt, in slotted boards. The cards are not played into the center of the table. Each player places his cards, face down, in front of him as the trick is played. When finished with the hand, it is replaced in the board, passed on to another table and played again by other players. Both play and bidding are more exact. An overtrick can cause you to win the hand.

example: All N-S's' are at 4H, but you, by luck or hopefully skill, make 5H, will win the board. The most important learning experinece is to see what other players have done with the same cards. A score sheet which accompanies the board supplies this information.

Just to point out that we are not all experts - here is a typical hand with a variety of results.

Lexington Academy Starts Fall Testing

Testing for Lexington Christian Academy will be held on Saturday at 8:45 a.m. Information may be obtained by calling the main office, 862-7850, or by visiting the school, 48 Bartlett ave., Lexington.

The academy draws students from over 50 towns, including towns as far north as Gloucester and as far south and west as Quincy and Holden. Recent years have seen student enrollment increase dramatically, so that currently the school is at capacity enrollment, according to academy officials.

A major program to eliminate the school's indebtedness was begun in October of 1977. The effort is drawing to an early conclusion due to the supportive response of board of trustee members, parents and friends of the school, so that current projections indicate the academy will be debt free by the end of this fiscal year, academy officials said.

Host Families Sought For Teachers Visiting States

The American Host Foundation is accepting applications for its 1979 program. This past year 600 teachers from Western Europe and Great Britian spent a month in 45 of our United States.

The American Host Program is an educational one which makes it possible for European teachers to spend a month living in American homes for a better understanding of each other. One thousand and eight hundred families were involved in the program in 1978.

Massachusetts, because of its historical position in our country's development, is one of the states that many of the teachers hope to visit. The program therefore needs many host families in this area.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Covino of 9 Sanborn st., have been in the American Host Foundation Program since 1973 when their first visitor was a young teacher from France. Since then their guests have been from Great Britian, Germany and Finland. Their 1978 guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bates of Essex, England, were very much impressed with Winchester's "wooden houses and neat landscapes," entrolled with the "absolutely charming duck pond and library," and were most appreciative of the "helpfulness of the people." They found the MBTA easy to use and used it often.

Winchester's proximity to Boston and surrounding historical areas makes it convenient to be a host family. Guests like to make use of the public transportation system and not to depend on the host family.

Three groups of teachers will be with host families starting June 29 and ending Aug. 30. Residents who would like to have a guest in their home for either a seven, 10 or 14 day stay, contact Fran or Ernest Covino, 9 Sanborn st. They will gladly send an application blank, provide particulars and share their experiences.

Contacts may also be made by writing directly to the American Host Foundation, Box 803, Garden Grove, Calif. 92642.

Epiphany Church To Host Concert

A sacred music concert will be presented at the Parish of Epiphany, 70 Church st., by Musica Sacra on Feb. 11 at 4 p.m. This choral group is conducted by James Armstrong, an instructor of Music at Mount Holyoke College.

Armstrong is an exciting director, and with the group, is introducing audiences to infrequently performed works like Benajamin Britten's "The Sacred and the Profane" which will be included in the program.

The public is invited to attend. A free-will offering will benefit the organ fund.

Copies of the Century Publications Guide for Publicity Chairmen are available at no charge in the offices of The Arlington Advocate, The Belmont Citizen and The Winchester Star. The guide tells new publicity chairmen how to submit information about their groups for publication and what kinds of pictures are suitable for publication.

Big Bigger BIGGEST

Why not? Have your ad set in larger, darker, bolder attention-getting type! Yes, it does cost a little more. You can save a few little cents on your ad and lose many big dollars in sales. Now that really isn't economy, is it? It is especially important to have a big, attractive ad if the items you are selling are perishable or have a short season. Call us at 643-7900 to place your CPI Classified ad. Remember, one call places your ad in all three of our publications.

REAL ESTATE by Ann Blackham

DO YOU REALLY OWN LAND?

Do you really own the land you live on? Yes, but not unconditionally. There's no question that you, your family, and heirs have strong historic rights to your own land. You can build on it, dig in it, keep others away from it, sell it, give it away, or borrow on it.

But your rights do not override certain public rights. A utility company may buy rights-of-way for power lines. The telephone company may have the right to a five-foot easement for poles along your backlot line. Similar easements are purchased or granted for local electric power lines, underground sewer piping, natural gas lines, and water supply piping.

You should know about all easements, rights and claims made on your land while you are living on it. This is the reason for a title search prior to purchase. When it's completed, you'll know if your title to the property is, or is not, free and clear of all "encumbrances" and, if not, what they are.

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER. PHONE 729-1663. We're here to help!

Bentley College Hosts CPR Seminar

The Bentley College Alumni Association together with the Massachusetts Heart Association will sponsor a heart saver program in cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), Feb. 24, beginning at 9:15 a.m. and continuing through the day.

The seminar is designed to instruct particpants in a program of prevention and care of the heart attack victim. The course will also give information on signals and actions for survival and provide instruction in rescue breathing and the clearing of obstructed respiratory passages.

National surveys have shown that the training of the general public in CPR has had a significant statistical effect in saving the lives of heart attack victims.

Registration for the seminar is limited to the first 100 persons.

Dr. Stanley B. Weld Dies Jan. 26

Dr. Stanley B. Weld of West Hartford, Conn., obstetrician and gynecologist, and founder and editor for 22 years of the Connectiut State Medical Journal, died Jan. 26. He was 88 years old.

Born in Winchester, in 1890, the son of George Albert and Fannie Ayer Weld, he came to Hartford in 1916 as an intern in Hartford Hospital. His paternal grandfather served as paymaster under Admiral Farragut on the Mississippi River in the Civil War and his maternal grandfather was assessor and town clerk in Winchester for many years.

Dr Weld prepared for college at Winchester High school from which he graduated in 1908. At Dartmouth College he was a member of the croos country squad, Kappa Sigma fraternity and the Jack-O-Lantern board, and in his senior year was president of the Dartmouth Christian Association.

In 1971 he was named Secretary of the Year, having served as class secretary since 1962. After graduation he continued to be active in alumni affairs, serving a term as president of the Dartmouth Club of Hartford.

In 1916 he was graudated from Harvard Medical School. During world War I he served as a first lieutenant in the U.S. Army Medical Corps, later advanced to Major in the Medical Reserve Corps.

For 45 years Dr Weld served the citizens of Hartford and vicinity in the pratice of his specialty. A room in the State Medical Society's building in New Haven was named in his honor and that of the society's secretary, Dr. Creighton Barker. In additio to his editorial duties he found time to be president of the local medical society, having served previously as secretary of both the local and county medical societies. He was a member of the Council of the State Medical Society for many years, a delegate to the American Medical Association, representative of the latter on the Council of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, chairman of the local committee on Applicants for the American College of Surgeons, and chairman of the advsiory Committee of the state Journal Advertising Bureau in Chicago. During World War II he was a member of the local committee on Recruitment and Assignment.

In addition Dr. Weld was Worshipful Master of Hartord Lodge of Masons in 1920 and served for three years as president of Hartford Hospital Medical and Surgical Staff where he rose to the position of visitng gynecologist and obstetrician. For many year he was also gynecologist at McCook Hosptial in Hartford and consultant to many hospitals in Connecticut.

He was active in the Immanuel UCC Chuch, Congregational, of Hartford where at one time or another he was a member or chairman of almost every committee as well as church moderator and was finally elected deacon emeritus and church historian. He served as a director of the local YMCA and as a trustee of the Hartford Seminary Foundation. He was a member of many national medical societies as well as of the local, county and state socieites. He was a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

He found time to enjoy golf as a member of the Connecticut State Seniors and the Hartord Gold Club, was treasurer of the Great Chebeague Golf Club in Maine for 14 years, and secretary of the Connecticut Medical Examining Board for 10 years, and for several years was a member of the program committee of the Connecticut Historical Society.

Other memberships included the 20th Centruy Club, Old Guard of West Hartford, American Association for the History of Medicine, Horace Wells Club, Beaumont Historical Club in New Haven and the Hartford Musical Club.

His publications include "History of the Great Chebague Gold Club;" "History of Immanual Congregational Church;" "A Journey Into the Past: History of Connecticut State Medical Journal, 1923-1958;" "Early Medical Practice in Hartford County;" "Connecticut Physicians in the Civil War" "Saxifrage to Scalpel," and many editorials and medical historical articles.

On October 25, 1917 Dr. Weld married Sara Frances Felber of Winchester, Frances died Nov. 13, 1964. On February 5, 1966 he married Lillian Eliza Wilcox of Hartford who survives him together with a daughter Barbara (Mrs. William) McGuire of Ithaca, N.Y., two sons, Robert B. of Reno, Nev., and David C. of North Caldwell, N.H., nine grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

Memorial services were held Jan. 30, in Immanuel Congregational Church Hartford. Contributions in his memory may be made to the Book of Remembrance Immanual Congregationl Church, 10 Woodland St. Hartford, Conn.

The Newkirk and Whitney Funeral Home, 776 Farmington ave. West Hartford had charge of arrangements.

Ski-a-thon Sunday

Was it spring in January? What happened to the snow? The Massachusetts Association for Retarded Citizens (MARC) is eagerly awaiting a snowstorm to hold its first annual cross country ski-a-thon for mentally retarded people. Originally scheduled for Jan. 28, the Ski-a-thon has been postponed to Sunday for lack of snow. If there is no snow by Sunday, the ski-a-thon will be held on Feb. 11.

Organized by MARC, the ski-a-thon is co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Jaycees, Eastern Mountain Sports, Inc., and Anheuser-Busch, Inc.

Cross country skiers can join the action by obtaining a registration form from MARC, 381 Elliot st., Newton Upper Falls, 02164; telephone 965-5320; or their local Eastern Mountain Sports stores and local ski shops. Skiers then obtain sponsors.

Ski-a-thon sites are: Esplanade, Storrow drive at the Hatch Shell, Boston; Christian A. Herter Center, 1170 Soldiers Field rd. along the Charles River, Allston; Belmont Hill School, Belmont; Putterham Golf Course, Brookline; Noble & Greenough School, Dedham; Sheraton-Boxboro, Boxboro; YMCA, Cross Country Ski Area, Hopkinton; Wilder Ski Track, Veterans Golf Course, South Branch Parkway, Springfield; and Attleboro Area at the Plainville Airport site. The ski-a-thon is from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Win. Hospital Addresses Consolidation At Annual Meeting

The impact on the future of Winchester, Choate and Symmes hospitals by the 1978 vote of "consolidation in principle" of the three heany feelings we have, forces on the state and national level have been quietly marshalling for years to bring aboutn and denying requests for capital improvements. In this climate of denial, restriction and regulation, Winchester Hospital is truly on the horns of a dilemma. Shall it try to maintain modern quality health care with what it has, knowing it will very likely not get necessary government approval for needed facility rehabilitation? Shall it instead adjust to the climate of multi-institutional emphasis and try to achieve modernization through participation in a larger community health care delivery system approach?

"It would appear that, if we stand still, we will surely fall behind and that the only reasonable course to take is to move ahead toward consolidation with the hope and belief that the personal element in health care which Winchester hospital has fostered for 67 years will be apart of any new dleivery system in which it is involved."

Weedon also paid tribute to former hospital president Ree e E. James as "one of the major forces behind this bold move toward the future -- a man who had foresign and vision when osme of us did not."

In his report, Jack R. Hunter, senior vice president, referred to the impact on the day-to-day administering of the hopital by the decision to consoliate, "Decisions of a long-range nature - regarding new services, new equipment or new programs must be weighed against their projected period of use while, at the same time, carrying out a commitment to keep pace with improvements in medical technology and modern health care practices. We have the dual job of planning for the future and maintianing a high quality present day health care delivery system."

Hunter also noted that during 1978 the hospital received a full two-year accredictation by the Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Hospitals,and that major renovations were made in the Russel House located on hosapital property to provide outpatiwnt facilities for the treatment of cancer patients. He reported that the hospital's cancer program was granted a three- year approval following a survey by the American College of Surgeons.

Commenting on the hospital's finances during fiscal 1978, Hunter discounts mandated by federal and state regulations had increased during the past five years from $695,000 to $1,147,000 for 1978.

"In other words, it's costing us over a million dollars a year to do business with the federal government, the state government and Blue Cross. Unfortunately, since our primary source of income is patient revenue, this cost must inevitably appear in increases in our room rates and in other ancillar services charges.," Hunter said.

Reporting or the hopital's medical and dental staff, William L. Kermond, M.D., staff president said, "In the eyes of many members of the staff, the original concept of consolidation of the three hospitals has changed from one of survival to a broader view. To many it is now a program based on better health provision for the three communities. The contents of that program are the concerns of the forthcoming year and must include not only a consoliated hspital concept but also such things as primary care physician coverage, the location of that coverage and its quality, tri-community endorement of child health screening programs and an evaluation of the social pressures within the communities giving rise to the various stress illnesses so commonly seen by the physician."

In other business conducted at the meeting, six new members were elected to the board of directors.

James E. Barger, William S. Cummings, Area M. Sidebotham and John A.Sutherland, all of Winchester; Lawrence Drew of Reading and Robert F. McLaughlin of Woburn were elected to three-year terms.

Mathias B. Bedell of Wilmington and Henry J. Curtis, Jr. of Winchester were re-elected to three-year terms.

William B. Bu-d of Winchester was re-elected investment trustee for a three-year term.

Newly elected members of the nominating committee were Robert W. Armstrong, Jr.,Celena D. Bradlee, Stephen R. Parkhurst, Loretta S. Pharo and Charles L. Raffi, Jr., all of Winchester.

Board members presented with plaques in recognition of their terms of service to the hospital as board members of various committees were Robert W. Armstrong, Jr., Celena D. Bradlee and Stephen R. Parkhurst. Also awarded plaques in absentia were Harris S. Richardson, Jr., Donald R. Walker and John C. Forbes.

New members of Winchester Hospital's board of directors are from the left, John A. Sutherland, Winchester; Area M. Sidebotham, Winchester; Robert F. McLaughlin, Woburn; Lawrence Drew, Reading. James E. Barger and William S. Cummings, both of Winchester are also directors.

On The Cover

New York's Joffrey Ballet is one of the three major ballet companies in the country, and it is coming to Boston this weekend. But don't expect to see many tutus, or classics like Giselle. Call it trendy, or call it pop; whatever, the Joffrey thrives on modern ballet, ranging from relatively tame to wild.

The company was started 25 years ago by Robert Joffrey, who packed six dancers into a borrowed station wagon and sent them off to tour 11 states. The Joffrey has since grown by leaps and bounds into a troupe 40 dancers strong.

Home for the Joffrey is Manhattan's old City Center. And what it does there, as elsewhere, is stage ballets by some of the world's greatest modern choreographers. Many of the dances are by Gerald Arpino, who started out with the original group of six and is now the company's Associate Director. Others, some of them classics in the modern repertoire, are by Twyla Tharp, Jerome Robbins, Margot Sappington, and even George Balanchine and the Royal Ballet's Sir Frederick Ashton. The dances are from the Thirties, the Seventies, the Sixties, the Forties; the music they're set to could be classical, or it could be rock and roll. It's not a mixture that always pleases hard-core balletomanes, but it is one that nearly sold out in Boston last year and may come close this year, too.

Characteristically, the Joffrey's Boston offerings mix very new works with older ones. The Green Table, by Kurt Jooss, is a renowned and rarely performed anti-war dance that was "created between two wars as a memorial to the Unknown." It is slated for Friday night, along with two balletic tributes, by Arpino, to the dancer Danilov and to the composer Saint-Saens. The ballet that's shown on the cover is Frederick Ashton's A Wedding Bouquet, which has words (words?) by Gertrude Stein and will be performed Saturday afternoon. The two happy folks you see dancing it are Gary Chryst and Lynn Glauber. Trinity, Arpino's rock ballet, and Robbin's N.Y. Export: Op. Jazz, which is abstract, are also on the boards for this weekend, among others.

All the Joffrey Ballet's Boston performances are at the Music Hall, at 268 Tremont Street. There are three of them: Friday, February 2 at 8 pm; and Saturday, February 3 at 3 and 8 pm. Tickets cost as much as $12.50 and as little as $6, and are available at the Music Hall box office (423-3300). The performances are given as part of the Boston University Celebrity Series.

Quilling

Quilling, the art of paper-rolling dating back to the 15th century, is being revived at the South Shore Science Center in Norwell. You can learn to make three-dimensional flower, rococo, or filigree designs by rolling, cutting, and positioning thin strips of paper and placing them on velvet or paper backgrounds till you get the desired result. The quilling class is on February 8 beginning at 8:30 am at the Science Center on Jacob's Lane, in Norwell. Pre-registration is a must and you can do it today. The cost is $5.25 for nonmembers, $4.25 for members, which includes a kit of paper and a tool which is reusable for future quilling projects. Call 659-2559 for all the details.

$ Eggs-entric

The second Great Boston Egg Race — you know, the one where you have to figure out how to transport an egg as far as you can using no more energy than a #10 rubber band provides — is set for April 7 at Boston's Museum of Science. Today is a fine day to register for the event. Call Brent Jackson at 723-2500, extension 340, or write to him care of the Museum of Science, Boston, 02114. There are three age categories for the race: children, teenagers, and adults. There's no charge to enter.

Disco in Wonderland

Hustle on over to the Disco Dance Spectacular and boogie to the sounds of The Trammps and Musique, tonight at 8 at the Wonderland Ballroom, North Shore Road in Revere. Tickets cost $10 and are available at the box office (289-3080), Ticketron, Hub Tickets, and Out-of-Town.

Pat Metheny

Boston's own Pat Metheny and his group bring their jazzy repertoire to the Paradise, 967 Comm Ave in Boston tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 and 11 pm. Tickets are on sale at the box office (254-2052) for $5.50. You can also get them at Ticketron, Strawberries, and Out-of-Town.

Indian Snowshoes

Did you ever wonder why snowshoes keep you from sinking into the snow? Well, the Cree Indians have known the principle behind them for generations. Not only are snowshoes practical, they're also something of a work of art. So — Tod Crocker and birchbark canoe builder Henri Vaillancourt have put together a color videotape documenting Cree Indian crafts, which will be shown in a program at the Blue Hills Trailside Museum, 1904 Canton Avenue, in Milton, tonight at 7:30. Crocker will introduce the tape, and explain all about snowshoes. Admission is $2. For more of the details call 333-0609.

Photohistory

Photojournalist Russell Lee presents a slide/lecture tonight, documenting his work with the Farm Security Administration. Lee's photographs portray the lives of everyday farm workers during the depression, and his lecture is part of a series sponsored by the Photographic Resource Center. It's held at 8 in Morse Auditorium, 602 Comm Ave, in Boston. Admission is $2, $1 for PRC members. For additional information call 426-8402.

The Sea Horse

The Sea Horse is Edward J Moore's play about an unlikely pair of lovers: he, a merchant seaman, and she, the overweight proprietress of a waterfront bar. It opens tonight at 8 at the Open Door Theatre, 83 Perkins Street, in Jamaica Plain. Tickets cost $5 and are available by calling 522-5492. The play runs through March 15.

Chamber Concerts

Chamber music aficionados have two musical events to choose from tonight. To begin with, the Apple Hill Chamber Players perform works by Mozart, Bruch, Bottesini, and Brahms at 8 in Pine Manor College's Ellsworth Hall, 400 Heath Street, in Chestnut Hill. Admission is $5, students and those over 65 pay $2. For information and reservations call 547-7727. Half an hour later, the Boston Chamber soloists hold a Soiree Musicale featuring vocal chamber works by Poulenc, Messiaen, and Rossini at the Longy School of Music, 1 Follen Street, in Cambridge. Tickets are available at the door for $4, $2.50 for students and seniors. For all the specifics call 426-6190.

Big Band Bash

The New England Swing Club holds its first concert/dance featuring the big band sound of the Widespread Depression Orchestra, tonight at 8:30 in the George Washington Ballroom of the Sheraton Commander Hotel, 16 Garden Street, in Cambridge. Tickets are $5, available at the door, and you don't have to be a club member to participate. For all the swingin' details call 354-4497.

Groundhog Day

Today is Groundhog Day. According to folklore, if the beast sees its shadow when it comes out of its burrow, there will be six more weeks of winter. If there is no shadow, spring will be early. No one seems to know what it means if the groundhog is snowed in and can't get out at all. Groundhogs, who are vegetarians, are a nuisance to farmers, but a blessing to amateur weather forecasters.

Sha Na Na performs at the North Shore Coliseum in Danvers on Wednesday.

Choo-Choo

"Ridin' the rails" has always appealed to the romantic nature of America, and so the Museum of Transportation is celebrating the fascination with its Train and Trolley Month, which means that rail-oriented activities are planned for weekends throughout February. Beginning today at 2 pm, members of the Bay State Society of Model Engineers present a slide show and model railroad demonstrations. There are also railroad movies, an inventor's workshop where you can create your own trains from recycled materials (and keep 'em, too) — you can even make like a hobo by writing a message on the side of a railroad "boxcar." The museum is open from noon to 5 pm on weekends this month, and from 10 am to 1 pm during the week. Admission is $2.25, $1.50 for kids. It's located at Larz Anderson Park, in Brookline, and you can call 522-1200 for information.

Kids' Stuff

There's lots doing for kids and their parents today at, of all places, the Lexington High School Auditorium. Babar and the B's is the title of today's goings-on which starts out with Channel 5's Frank Avruch narrating The Story of Babar, the Little Elephant, accompanied by a 16-piece orchestra under the direction of Newton Wayland. To help illustrate the story, 200 pictures submitted by area students will be flashed on a screen. The B-part of the program follows, when the orchestra plays the music of Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Bartok, and Debussy. It's all at the auditorium at 251 Waltham Street in Lexington, today at 2 pm and tomorrow at 4 pm. Admission is $2.50. Call 369-1984 for all the deatils.

Pugilism

Brockton's Marvin Hagler takes on Olympic champ Sugar Ray Seales in a middleweight bout today at 2:30 at the Boston Garden, North Station, in Boston. Tickets for the match are $6, $8, and $10, available at the Garden's box office (227-3200).

$ Beatrice Erdely

Beatrice Erdely, the pianist, performs works by Mendelssohn, Mozart, and Chopin tonight at 8 in MIT's Kresge Auditorium, at 77 Mass Ave, in Cambridge. There is no charge for admission. Call 253-2906 for additional information.

Rail-a-Rama

The first annual Rail-a-Rama of the Mystic Valley Railway Society takes place today from 10 am to 4 pm at the Summerside Lodge, 53 Summer Street in Malden (the Lodge is the former home of the Boston and Maine Railroads Western Division Station). In addition to the rehabilitated station, there will be displays of railroad lore, operating model railroads, movies, and door prizes. The tickets, which are available at the door, are 50 cents per adult, 25 cents per child, with a $1 maximum per family. For more information, call the MVRS at 361-4445, which is a 24-hour recording.

Heron Twilight

This afternoon at 3 the Derby Square Theatre presents Heron Twilight, an adaptation of a play by Kinoshita Junji, directed by Steve Denson. The music is by Niki Tgettis of Salem, and is performed on Western instruments that reproduce Japanese sounds. The performance takes place at the Peabody Museum in Salem, and there is no admission charge beyond the usual museum admission, which is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children, students with ID, and elders. It is free for those under six. For more information, please call 745-1876.

GBYSO

The Senior and Repertory Orchestras of the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras perform this afternoon at 3 in Cary Hall in Lexington. The concert is a benefit for the GBYSO, which has members from more than 70 communities in Eastern Massachusetts and New England. This afternoon's concert includes works by Delius, Weber, Liszt, and Tchaikovsky, and is under the direction of Music Director Walter Eisenberg. Tickets for today's performance are $3.50 for adults, $2 for students and elders. For more details and ticket information, call 353-3348.

February 1/7

Concerts at the Fogg

The Fogg Art Museum begins a new series of Sunday afternoon concerts today, and introduces a new concert policy. From now on, the concerts will start at 4 pm, and the museum's Sunday hours are now 1 to 4 pm. Concert admission is by ticket only, due to large crowds in the past. This afternoon, pianist Jon Aaron will perform a concert of Beethoven, Mozart, and Ruggles. Individual tickets, at the door or in advance, are $1, standing room is 50 cents. The subscription rate for all the Fogg concerts this season is $10 ($7.50 for Friends of the Fogg). Call 495-4544 or 495-2387 for more information.

Swift Jazz

Jazz pianist Ran Blake (his Rapport is an Arista Novis disc) and Jeff Lorber's Fusion make it strictly jazz tonight at Jonathan Swift's, 30 Boylston Street in Cambridge. The sets start at 7 and 10, and the admission is $4. For more information, you can call 661-9987. Advance tickets are available at Swift's and at Ticketron outlets all over MetroBoston.

5 Monday

Horticulture

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has a wide range of classes being offered in February. Since you must register in advance, mark your calendar now. On February 14, there are two one-session classes, both at Horticultural Hall, 300 Mass Ave in Boston. Gardens of the World, England runs from 7:30 to 9 pm and costs $2.50 ($2 for members); Supermarket Gardening starts at 5:30 and lasts an hour. The admission is $2 (free to members). February 20 and 21 are devoted to a two-day workshop for teachers entitled Horticultural Resources. Both days the workshop runs 9 am to 5 pm, and the cost is $30, $25 for members. February 26 is the first meeting of a six-week Landscape Design Workshop, held at the Tufts Library in Weymouth, from 7 to 9 pm. The cost is $42, $36 for members. For more information on all the courses, call 536-9280.

Dancing

People in Motion is a lecture/dance in two parts, exploring the interrelationship of dance and athletic movement. Sam Costa, of the Ram Island Dance Company from Maine, presents his troupe. Part One is today at noon in Dockser Hall of Northeastern University on Forsyth Street in Boston and is a lecture-demonstration. Part Two, which is a demonstration followed by workshops for dancers and non-dancers (and your participation is welcomed), is Wednesday, February 7, also in Dockser Hall, this time from 3 to 5 pm. Both parts of People in Motion are free. For more information, call 437-2249.

BU Music

The School for the Arts at Boston University has scheduled two concerts this week. Tonight at 8, the Empire Brass Quintet performs as part of the Faculty Chamber Music Series. The Quintet will play works of Strauss, Hauptmann, Riegger, Grieg, and others. The concert takes place in Morse Auditorium, 602 Comm Ave in Boston. Admission is $3, $1 for students and senior citizens.

On Wednesday, the BU Trombone Ensemble, conducted by Ronald Barron, presents a program of works by Haydn, Handel, Stravinsky, and others, at 8 pm in the BU Concert Hall, 855 Comm Ave. This one is free. For more information on both concerts, call 353-3345.

6 Tuesday

A Lost World

The Worcester Art Museum is host to Tibet: A Lost World, the Newark Museum's collection of Tibetan Art and Ethnography which is on a national tour. The collection is considered by many to be the nation's finest assemblage of Tibetan arts and crafts, and includes more than 200 objects that represent both religious and secular art. Tonight's opening is restricted to members and those interested in joining the museum (which costs $16 annually, $8 for students, and $30 for families). Tomorrow, and through April 1, the exhibit is on display to the public Tuesday through Saturday from 10 am to 5 pm and Sunday from 2 to 5 pm. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for youngsters and elders. Please call 799-4406 for more information.

Brico at Wellesley

An Evening With Antonia Brico actually begins this afternoon at 4:15 in the Science Center at Wellesley College, with a screening of the film Antonia: A Portrait of the Artist. The film was produced by singer Judy Collins, who once studied piano with Brico; it was nominated for an Academy Award. Brico herself, an outspoken musician who achieved success by doing things her own way, will speak in Room 112 of Pendleton East (also at Wellesley) at 8 pm. Both events are free and are open to the public. For more information, call 235-0320.

Safe Boating

The Spring Boating Course of the Charles River Power Squadron holds its first session tonight at 7:30 in the science building of Lexington High School. Anyone over 12 can participate in the 13-week course, which is free except for a small charge for course materials. You should bring along a protractor, a straightedge, and dividers or a compass. You don't have to preregister, and you can get more information from Tom O'Shaughnessy at 484-7111 or (evenings) 862-2586.

Strangers

Strangers is the new play by Sherman Yellen, based on the love story of journalists Sinclair Lewis and Dorothy Thompson. Starring Bruce Dern and Lois Nettleton, it's Broadway-bound and opens tonight at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston Street in Boston. Tonight's performance begins at 7:30. Through February 17, evening performances are at 8, and matinees are at 2 on Wednesday and Saturday. The house is dark on Sunday. Tickets range in price from $7 to $15, and you can get them at the box office (426-9366), through Teletron (426-8383), and at Ticketron and the usual ticket agencies.

7 Wednesday

Quentin Bell

Quentin Bell, the nephew and biographer of writer Virginia Woolf (Orlando, A Room of One's Own), will speak tonight in the Lecture Room of the Margaret Clapp Library at Wellesley College, at 7:30. Bell's topic is Bloomsbury by the Sea, an anecdotal account of his youth and of Virginia and Leonard Woolf, John Maynard Keynes, and Lytton Strachey, prime movers on the English literary scene at the beginning of this century. Bell's lecture is free and open to the public, and for more information, dial 235-0320.

North Shore Music

Promoter Frank J Russo is billing it as a great Christmas present, but it's really tonight, when Sha Na Na and Dr Hook share the stage at the North Shore Coliseum in Danvers. Sha Na Na is a blast from the past, as Fifties as pedal pushers and duck tails. Dr Hook, is, well, Dr Hook: his countrified rockified music is completely his own. All the noise starts at 8 pm, and all the seats are by general admission, which is $8 in advance and $9 the day of the show. Both prices include parking. Tickets are available at Hub, Out of Town, Strawberries, Ticketron, and at the Coliseum box office, where the number is 774-6506.

Outdoors | Sargent Ski-Touring Centre

Cross-country skiing is a solitudinous sport. Your thoughts are your own as you glide through forests soft with snow.

By Maggie Hall

The Sargent Ski-Touring Centre in Peterborough, New Hampshire, is a non-profit operation run by Boston University's Human Environment Institute. Since 1974 the Centre has been host to thousands of outdoor enthusiasts who are eager for some good cross-country skiing — or snowshoeing — without making a major investment of time or money.

Cross-country skiing has enjoyed enormous popularity recently. It is a solitudinous sport. Your thoughts are your own as you glide through forests soft with snow, and you can be fairly sure that no one is going to come whizzing past you and spray snow in your face, or knock you onto the side of the trail. Another reason for the popularity of cross-country skiing is financial: it is much cheaper than downhill skiing. A tow ticket at a popular downhill resort can cost $20 per person; the fee for trail use at the Sargent Camp is $2. For anyone on a budget, that is a real attraction. Also, the basic technique of cross-country skiing is easy to pick up: most would-be skiers can walk forward, but the sideways knee-swivel of parallel skiing is more difficult to master. Cross-country skiing actually requires greater exertion than downhill, but you don't fall down as much on your first day out.

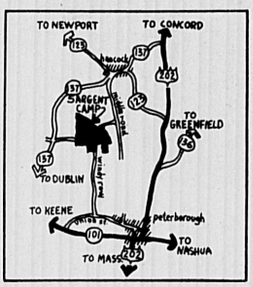

Snowshoeing is another refinement. You may feel like Yukon Jack when you strap on your bear-paws, but it is a strange and wondrous sensation to walk on deep snow without sinking in. The wide area of the snowshoe distributes your weight and keeps you on or near the snow surface. The heel-up-and-glide motion is similar to cross-country skiing.

The other big attraction of cross-country skiing or snowshoeing is the absence of ski lifts. Nothing breaks the quiet reverie of a winter's day in the woods as quickly as a chair lift rumbling past. (Nothing, that is, except a snowmobile, and this too is anathema at the Sargent Camp.) And where there are no lifts, there are no lift lines, a double blessing. You get the Great Outdoors without the great delay.

The Sargent Camp has been a BU property since 1930, but was vacant from 1968 until 1974, when the Ski-Touring Centre was activated under the auspices of the Human Environment Institute. The Ski-Touring Centre is open to the public on Friday afternoons and on weekends (and on New Hampshire school holidays); the rest of the week, the premises are used by environmental studies groups from BU, by private groups for workshops and retreats, and for outdoor challenge programs.

On Friday afternoons, when the area opens at 1, both students and the general public can use the 15 miles of groomed trails. The Ski-Touring Centre offers rentals and instruction, and environmental tours of the area. Lodging is available for people who want to make a weekend of it, although the Camp is near enough to MetroBoston to allow commuter skiing.

If you own your own equipment, you need pay only the $2 trail use fee (the rate for a season pass is $20 a person), get into your gear, and glide. If you are a beginner, or an almost-beginner who has not yet invested in equipment, you can rent cross-country skis, boots, and poles at the Sargent Camp for $8. This includes the trial use fee. If you plan to snowshoe, you can rent the snowshoes for $4 ($2 for children). Snowshoes do not require poles or special boots: you can wear any sort of hiking or sport boot.

Group lessons cost $4 per adult and $3 per child. Private lessons are $9. Semi-private lessons — that is, two or three people in a class — are $6 per person. Snowshoe orientation costs $1.50 per person, and lasts about a half-hour, long enough to give you the basics. Guided environmental tours are $3 per person, and there are four to 12 people on any given tour.

Notes:

The Sargent Ski-Touring Centre is open on Fridays from 1 to 4 pm, and on Saturdays and Sundays from 9 am to 4 pm. During New Hampshire school vacations the hours are also 9 to 4. Accomodations are available for 150 people ple, but you must have a reservation, preferably two weeks in advance, and you must think fast if you want to stay, because the winter is filling up. The rates are $8.20 per person plus $8 for meals. Children's rates are $4 for lodging and $5.50 for meals. There is no winter camping. For reservations and information, call (617) 353-3202 or (603) 525-3311, or write to The Human Environment Institute, Sargent Camp, RFD 2, Peterborough, New Hampshire 03458. For snow conditions, call (603) 525-9338.

Movies | Short Subjects

The Brink's Job
If William Friedkin had directed the movie as thoroughly as Dino de Laurentiis and his myrmidons promoted it, the result would have been much more satisfying. The Brink's Job glorifies the crime and the Boston of yesterday, and while it is nice to see Scollay Square again, the movie is sluggish and blunted. Peter Falk plays Tony Pino, an improbable mastermind. With Peter Boyle, Paul Sorvino, Gena Rowlands, and Allen Goorwitz, who gets the funniest scenes. Cheri.

California Suite
When Neil Simon hits, he hits, and parts of this movie, which he adapted from his play of the same name, are very funny indeed. Maggie Smith as an actress nominated for an Oscar and Michael Caine as her husband demonstrate impeccable comic timing and style. When Simon doesn't hit, things get bogged down. Jane Fonda is dreary as an arrogant East Coast "intellectual," you feel vaguely sorry for her, but not much else. Bill Cosby and Richard Pryor have a few good moments and many stupid ones as two doctors from Chicago; Elaine May and Walter Matthau are a couple from Philadelphia in the weakest of the sketches. The movie uses a kind of Grand Hotel conceit: one location, four acts, and variations on a love theme. Cheri; Braintree, Chestnut Hill, Danvers, Framingham.

Ice Castles

Interiors
Proof, if anyone needed it, of Woody Allen's genius. The film is poised and distant, a cool, introverted look at a family that is trying hard to be a Family, but they are too analytical to be happy with each other or with themselves. Beautiful photography and first-class acting tear at the heart. An unbelievable movie, with Diane Keaton, Geraldine Page, Mary Beth Hurt, and Maureen Stapleton. Galeria; Allston.

Invasion of the Body Snatchers

The Last Wave
A movie for a sunny day: Peter Weir's vision of the end of the world becomes more and more ominous the more it rains. Richard Chamberlain plays a lawyer in Australia who is caught up in aboriginal mythology. Aborigine actors Gulpilil and Nanjiwarra Amagula absorb your attention. The film is full of "touches," and its sinister atmosphere is underlined by the eerie music, but the apolcalypse, when it comes, is a letdown. Exeter.

Midnight Express
Brad Davis stars as Billy Hayes in a thriller (literally!) based on Hayes' memoir of his experiences in a Turkish prison. Davis is tender, brooding, and vicious, and you can cheer for him. John Hurt is superb as a drugged-out fellow-inmate. Midnight Express is one movie that will leave you weak in the knees. Cambridge Fresh Pond; Allston, Saugus, Stoneham, Waltham.

Movie Movie
Movie Movie is is really really two two movies movies, an old-fashioned double feature. Phase one, in black and white, is Dynamite Hands, the rags-to-riches saga of a poor but honest delivery boy who becomes a prize-fighter. Phase two, in color, is Baxter's Beauties, one of those little-girl-from-the-sticks-making-it-big-in-a-Broadway-show-when-the-star-breaks-her-ankle movies. Both segments have the same essential plot, the same cast, and many of the same camera angles. The script is very funny, although the actors sometimes give too much ponderance to lines that should be tossed blithely off. There are silly jokes, puns, melapropisms, mangled metaphors, and every cliche you've ever loved. Movie Movie is a gentle take-off of all those lightweight pictures of the Thirties. It is never rollicking; it's like a smile of recognition. With George C Scott, Trish Van Devere, Eli Wallach, Red Buttons, Barry Bostwick, and Harry Hamlin. Cheri; Braintree, Brockton, Chestnut Hill, Framingham, Lawrence, Woburn.

Rebel Without A Cause

Rocky Horror Picture Show
The camp phenomenon of midnight, with the action divided about equally between the screen and the audience, whose participation is ecouraged to such an extent that discounts are given to movie-goers in costume. Exeter.

The Rubber Gun Show
Directed by and starring Allan Moyle, whom you may remember from Outrageous!; high times in Montreal. With Steven Lack and Peter Brawley. Boston Nickelodeon.

Skip Tracer
In Zale Dalen's first film, David Peterson plays a skip tracer, the man who ferrets out people who default on their debts. A powerful and memorable film. Orson Welles.

A Slave of Love
A slight tragi-comedy from the Soviet Union, about a group of self-absorbed people engaged in making a movie while the Russian Revolution swirls about them. The leading lady, Olga (Elena Solovey), becomes a convert to Bolshevism after watching a few minutes of contraband film. If you can't swallow that, watch for the bits of funny business contributed by Alexander Kalyagin as a pudgy director, and the marvelously fakey last scene, with Olga riding into the sunset in a streetcar. Maynard Nickelodeon.

Superman

The Wiz
Despite the costumes, the stars and the razzle-dazzle promotion, The Wiz fizzles out. All the lights are on, but nobody's home. The big production numbers reduce a lot of beautiful dancers and beautiful costumes to a meaningless jumble because director Sidney Lumet couldn't figure out where to put his camera. As Dorothy, Diana Ross acts like a nervous wreck. You want to give her a Valium and a glass of warm milk. She uses one quivering, sick look to express fear, hatred, joy, and angst. Nipsey Russell as the Tin Man fares the best, his scenes give a hint of what the movie wants to be: a lush blend of the real, unreal, and surreal. But it falls sadly short and Michael Jackson as the Scarecrow and Richard Pryor as The Wiz are wasted. Save the four bucks and watch Judy Garland do it right on the home screen. Brockton, Circle, Danvers, Framingham, Woburn.

OPENINGS

Strangers-Lois Nettleton and Bruce Dern star in this romantic drama based on two famous lovebirds, Sinclair Lewis and Dorothy Thompson, which previews at Boston's Colonial Theatre, February 3 and 5 at 8 pm. It opens February 6 at 7:30 pm, and performances thereafter are Mon-Sat at 8 pm, with Wed and Sat mats at 2 pm. Tickets range from $15-$7, all depending on when you go and where you sit, and are on sale at the box office, 106 Boylston St (426-9366). You can also get tickets through Teletron (426-8383), and through Ticketron and other agencies. Strangers, here for a taste test before it heads for Broadway, runs to February 17.

The Glass Menagerie-Laura, Amanda, Tom, and the Gentleman Caller are the characters in Tennessee Williams's classic, presented February 9-24 by the Concord Players at 51 Walden St, in Concord. There is an open dress rehearsal on February 8, with times and ticket prices yet to be determined; thereafter, performances are at 8:30 pm February 9, 10, 16-18, and 22-24 (the February 18 show is at 7 pm). Tickets are $4, on sale starting January 25 at Richardson's Drug Store, corner of Main and Walden Sts, and there are group rates. For further information, contact Anne Brownell at 369-7757.

Heron Twilight-Is an adaptation of a modern Japanese classic that's presented by the Derby Sq Theatre, February 4 at the Peabody Museum of Salem, at 3 pm. The performance is free for museum visitors, and the museum is located on East India Sq, in Salem. For further information, you can call 745-1876.

Irene Worth and the Ariel Chamber Ensemble-The actress appears with the musical group in Narratives, a music/theatre piece by Earl Kim which is based on Samuel Beckett's works. It's at the Loeb Theatre, 64 Brattle St in Cambridge, and is performed February 9 at 7:30 pm ($8.50), and February 11 and 12 at 8 pm ($6.50 for each show). To find out about getting tickets, call the theatre at 864-2630.

The Sea Horse-Take an unlikely pair of lovers, laughter and some barroom brawls and you have a production by the Open Door Theatre of Boston, which opens February 2 at 8 pm on the Mainstage of the Boston Arts Group, 367 Boylston St in Boston. It runs Thurs-Sun eves at 8, with mats Sun at 2:30, until February 25. Tickets are $5 Fri and Sat, $4 Wed and Sun, $3 for students and those over 65, and are available by calling 522-5492. Arts/Boston vouchers are accepted.

CURRENT

The All Night Strut-A sizzling celebration of the Thirties and Forties, at the Boston Repertory Theatre, 1 Boylston Pl, in Boston. Show times are Tues-Thurs at 8 pm, Fri-Sat at 7 and 9:30 pm, Sunday at 3 pm. Tickets are $6, $7, and $8 Mon-Thurs, $7, $8, $9 Fri-Sat, available at the box office (423-6580) and at major agencies. This show is enjoying so much popularity that its run has been extended yet again, for the 4th time, through February 25.

Beatlemania-You may find teens screaming from the balcony; you may also experience a degree of deafness, since this production is more a concert than theatre proper, replete with a big light show of images from the Sixties. What you won't find are the Beatles — the four chaps here, more or less physically resembling the Fab Four, don't reincarnate the group as much as plod through Lennon/McCartney classics. Beatlemania runs through February 18 at the Shubert Theatre, 265 Tremont St in Boston. The schedule for performances is Tues-Fri at 8 pm, Sat at 2, 7, and 10 pm, Sun at 3 pm. Tickets run the gamut from $9 to $16.50. For the vast majority of your information, call the Shubert at 426-4520.

A Doll's House-Ibsen's Nora and the entire Nordic crew live again at the New England Repertory Theatre, through February 18. Performances are Thurs-Sat at 8 pm, Sun at 2 pm; there are also preview shows, $3.50 for Thurs and Sun performances, $5 Fri and Sat. For further information and reservations, call the theatre at 798-8685. You'll find it at the corner of Oxford and Chatham Sts, in Worcester. Keep in mind, too, that there are special rates for students and those over 65.

Measure for Measure-Shakespeare's comedy twinged with darkness is being performed by the Boston Shakespeare Company. Performances are given every Thurs and Sat through March 3 (during this time, Measure is in repertory with Molière's The Miser and Twelfth Night); then March 14 and every Wed thereafter, until April 11. All performances are at 8 pm, with the exception of February 1, at 7:30 pm. Prices range from $6-$4, depending on when you go and where you sit. For further information and reservations, call the box office at 267-5600. The theatre is located at 300 Mass Ave, in Boston's Horticultural Hall.

Miss Margarida's Way-Estelle Parsons as a tyrannical teacher, January 30 at 7:30 pm, and January 31-February 3 at 8 pm, at the Loeb Drama Center, 64 Brattle St in Cambridge. Tickets range from $6.50-$8.50, and there's more information at 864-2630.

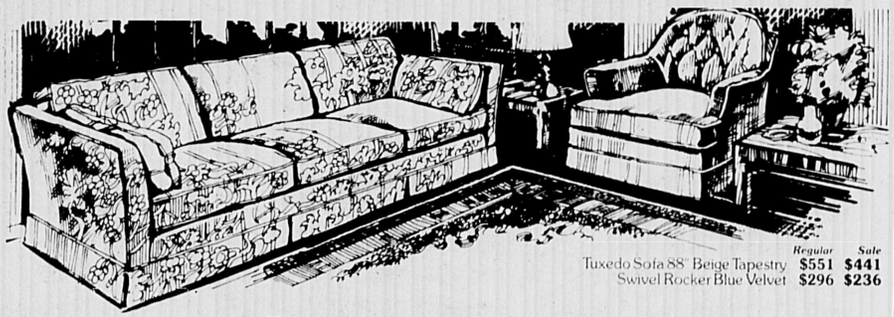

A Moon for the Misbegotten-Eugene O'Neill's drama of three characters in search of love and salvation, in an ok, if erratic, production at the Lyric Stage, 54 Charles St on Beacon Hill, Boston. Running through February 10, the show is performed Wed-Fri at 8 pm, Sat at 5 and 8:30 pm. Tickets range from $4-$5.50, thanks to weekend inflation, and can be reserved by calling 742-8703.

Not At The Palace-It's a New York musical revue, transplanted to Boston, starring Joe Masiell under James Coco's direction. Running at the Charles Playhouse, 76 Warrenton St in Boston, the show's schedule is every Tues-Fri at 8 pm, Sat at 7 and 10 pm, Sun at 3 and 7:30 pm. Tickets range from $4-$10, and are available through the box office (426-6912) and through Theatre Charge (426-8181). Palace stays here for four weeks.

This End Up-The Next Move Theatre's original comedy revue, with music, is wonderfully fresh and funny. Playing at the Next Move's Theatre, 955 Boylston St in Boston, the show runs Wed-Sun at 8 pm, presum-

HUB

Bob the Chef-604 Columbus Ave, Boston, 247-9773. Soul food eating at soul-pleasing prices. Arrive before 2 pm for eggs and grits, otherwise, settle for steaks in gravy, black-eyed peas, turnips. Don't miss out on the sweet-potato pie. Open Tues-Sat, 11 am-9 pm. No credit cards, and no liquor, but reservations are accepted.

Casa Romero-30 Gloucester St, Boston, 261-2146. Mexican dining a la Back Bay. Tacos, tostados, enchiladas, and more uncommon offerings like Pollo a la Mexicana and shrimp in garlic and coriander. There's a full bar to cool off with. Reservations are accepted. Hours: noon-2:30, Tues-Fri; 5-10 pm Sun-Thurs; 5-11 pm, Fri-Sat. AE, MC.

Dom's-236 Commercial St, Boston, 523-8838. Superior veal and pasta: Try the pesto sauce in season. Things can get expensive; 15% service is included in the tab. Full bar, reservations advised. Hours: Daily 11 am-3 pm, 5 pm-1 am. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC, House charge.

Harvest-44 Brattle St, Cambridge, 492-1115. The crop is continental and international, an extensive and ambitious menu, with prices to match. Duckling, tournedos au Roquefort. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 11:30-3 and 6-midnight. Reservations are not accepted for dinner on Fri and Sat nights. AE, BA/V, MC.

Jacob Wirth-31 Stuart St, Boston, 338-8586. A landmark of German food since 1868: wurst, sauerbraten, sandwiches, all at moderate prices. Fully licensed, one of the specials is Wirth's own dark beer. Hours: Daily except Sun, 11 am-10 pm.

Joseph's Aquarium-100 Atlantic Ave, Boston, 523-4000. On the menu here, fish outnumbers meat dishes by about five to one, which is as it should be, given the pier-side location. If you can avoid lobster, the prices are moderate. Hours: 11:30 am-10 pm, Mon-Sat; until 9 pm Sun. Full bar. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Lily's-29 North Quincy Market, Boston, 227-4242. Stylish and expensive, continental and three kinds of French cooking: Haute, provincial, and nouvelle. Full bar. Reservations are recommended. Hours: Daily for dinner, 5:30-11 pm. AE, MC.

The Red Coach Grill-43 Stanhope St, Boston, 266-1900, and other locations. A steak place like a colonial tavern, with prime rib, lobster, steak, and other heartily American fare. Full bar, moderate prices. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-11:30 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

WEST

Le Bellecour-10 Muzzey St, Lexington, 861-9400. Now open under new management, Le Bellecour offers French cooking with some other touches, like an Indonesian Sate Babi at lunch, and medallions de chevreuil, which is venison. Full bar, reservations are recommended. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30-2 and 6-10; Sat, 6-10:30 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, MC.

Le Bourguignon-79 East St, Dedham, 326-8824. Everything here is French: the cuisine, the atmosphere, and the service. Specialités de la maison include boeuf bourguinon and coq au vin de Bourgogne. Full bar plus extensive wine list, reservations are recommended. Hours: Tues-Sat noon-10 pm; Sun 5 pm-10 pm. No credit cards, cash or personal checks only.

Cafe l'Orange-Thoreau St, Concord, 369-8700. Upstairs in the Concord Depot, the Cafe is low-key, contemporary, and the cuisine is French: boneless rack of lamb, coquilles St. Jacques, duckling. Prices are moderate, reservations are accepted. Fully licensed. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11:30 am-2:30 pm, and 6-9, ('til 10 pm Fri-Sat), closed Suns. AE, MC.

The Inn at Princeton-Mountain Rd, Princeton, 464-2030. Home-cooked French food, like sweetbreads Divan, paupiettes de veau, and lamb chops en croute. Full bar, rather expensive. A reservation is a must on the weekends, and a good idea the rest of the time, too. Hours: Wed-Sun for dinner, 5-9 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Legal Seafoods-Rte 9, in the Chestnut Hill Shopping Center, 277-7300. Legal's outpost on the western front is sometimes less hectic than the Cambridge branch, especially if you are willing to eat early or late. Otherwise, the set-up is pretty much the same: the crowds, crowds, crowds are offset by the fish, fish, fish. Reservations for large parties. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11 am-9 pm; Sun, 1-9 pm. AE, and personal checks.

Old Mill-Rte 2A, Westminster, 874-5941. Down by the old mill stream, and waterfall, a traditional setting for traditional dining. Duckling, prime rib, baked stuffed shrimp. Full bar. Open daily, 8:30 am-10 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Peking Garden-27 Waltham St, Lexington, 862-1051. Sino-American egg rolls and chow mein for the bashful, and a host of Szechuan, Mandarin, and Shanghai specialities for the initiate. A range of prices: House Special Duck tops the bill at $9. Full bar. Reservations are accepted for parties of eight of more. Open Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-10 pm; Fri-Sat, 'til 11 pm. AE, DC, MC.

The William Paul House-Reservoir St (Rte 31) Holden, 829-6666. The specialty of the House is seafood, with a continental accent: baked stuffed filet of sole, seafood Mornay. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: Tues-Sat, 5-10 pm, Sun, noon-8 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Yangtze River Restaurant-25 Depot Sq, Lexington Center, 861-6031. Mandarin-Szechuan with Polynesian things as well: Gai-Har-Lo-Mein, Shrimp Almond Ding, Blessed Family Happiness. More happiness: everything is nicely explained on the menu, which is long. Full bar. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-9:30 pm; Fri-Sat, until 10:30 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

NORTH

Andover Inn-Chapel Ave, Andover, 475-5903. On the grounds of Phillips Andover Academy, but a far cry from school fare. Some of the far-flung favorites are Loempia, scampi flambe. Make sure that the pastry cart rolls past your table. On Sundays, the dinner feature is Rijstaffel, a Dutch-Indonesian buffet. Moderately priced, elegant. Full bar. Open Mon-Sat, 11:30-3, and 5-10. Sun, 10:30 am-3 pm, and 4-9 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Beef and Oyster House-143 Washington St, Salem, 744-4334. Beef and oysters, yes, but you needn't limit yourself to these eponymous delights, as there are other land and sea dishes to be had. Moderately expensive, fully licensed. Hours: Daily, 11 am-11 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Beverly Depot-10 Park St, Beverly, 927-5402. Take the Boston and Maine to the Depot, for steaks, chops, and all the trimmings, in railroad surroundings. Moderate prices, full bar. Closed on Mons, it's open for dinner 5-10 pm, Sun-Thurs; 5-11 pm Fri-Sat. AE, MC.

Bishop's-99 Hampshire St, Lawrence, 683-7143. The standard bill of fare — roasts and steaks — is enlivened by shish kebab and Arabic appetizers: tahini, stuffed grape leaves, baba ganoosh. Open daily, 11:30 am-10 pm, Fri-Sat nights 'til 11. Full bar. No reservations are taken on Sat nights, but they are strongly advised on Wed-Fri, and Sun. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Hardcover-15A Newbury St, Danvers, 774-1223. American favorites like sirloin and shrimp, accented with French touches like crepes. Moderate prices. Full bar. No reservations Fri-Sat, but at other times, they are not a bad idea. Hours: Mon-Thurs , 5 pm-10 pm; Fri-Sat, until 11 pm; Sun, 4 pm-9 pm. AE, MC.

Labadini's-165 State St, Newburyport, 465-9842. Small and informal, this family-owned eatery offers steaks, chops, seafood, and Italian specialities, at moderate prices. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11:30 am-10 pm; Suns and holidays, 4 pm-10. No credit cards.

Pegasus Steak House-150 Newbury St (Rte 1), Ipswich, 356-9753. Among the specialties of the house are sirloin strip steak and lobster pie. Inexpensive, with dancing to boot. Hours: Tues-Sat 11:30 am-2:30 pm and 6-10 pm. BA/V, MC.

#65 Your P's and Q's

By Don Rubin

Moveable type is set backwards. The b's look like d's and the q's look like p's in their original form. And even the best printers occasionally confuse them.

The following words were set by an apprentice. As a result, the b's and p's and q's and d's (all four) appear interchangeable, as do the m's and w's, u's and n's, and h's and y's.

Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through February 22 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Valentine's Lottery, and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the March 1 issue of METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE office, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. All entries must be accompanied by a copy of the puzzle page. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

Answers to Puzzle #63
Shreds of Evidence

This puzzle lends itself to answers that were nearly right, and answers that were precisely right. You could be specific or not, and those of you who chose to be specific had the best chance of being correct. For instance, if you said that No 3 was US currency, you'd be kind of right, but if you said that it was a $2 bill you'd be absolutely right. The same goes for No 6, which was a joker. We know it also happens to be a playing card, but by saying it's a joker you're being that much more specific. The one that seemed to throw most people was No 11, which should be the Congressional Record. Most people thought it was the society pages. Hmm. That sure says something. Anyway, here are the answers:

1. Dictionary Page
2. Crossword Puzzle
3. $2 Bill
4. Campbell Soup Label
5. Farmer's Almanac
6. Joker Playing Card
7. Phone Book
8. Stock Market Page
9. Obituary
10. Doonesbury Cartoon
11. Congressional Record
12. TV Guide
13. Death of a Salesman
14. Watergate Transcript

VOL. XCVIII, NO. 25 | 28 Pages | Winchester, Mass., Thursday, Feb. 8, 1979 | 2 Sections | 25 cents

About Town

Raymond M. Barry of 11 Albamont rd., was honored recently as volunteer of the year by St. Elizabeth's Hospital for his outstanding contribution as a hospital volunteer.

Barry, a B.C. High student, logged in over 400 hours doing architectural layouts for hospital renovation projects.

Joseph L. Quigley, formerly of Winchester, and for 30 years a member of the Winchester police department, recently resigned as president of the Green Valley, Arizona Community Fund. Quigley, who retired to Green Valley in 1964, has served as president of the Community Fund since 1970. The former Winchester resident, who has been associated with numerous activities in his Arizona community, will now devote more time as a member of the Tucson, Arizona library's board of directors.

Arthur R. Hills, a Winchester resident for more than 40 years and long active in town government while a resident, has been elected chairman of the Support Policies Committee of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay. The committee is the United Way's highest, voluntary allocations committee, responsible for distributing money raised in the campaign to United Way affiliated agencies. It is one of eight voluntary allocations committees of the United Way.

Now a Weston resident, Hills was also elected a vice president of the United Way and a member of its executive committee. For the last two years, he has been chairperson of the Scouting and Camp Fire Girls Allocations Review Committee. In 1964, Hills served as an assistant campaign chairman in the fun-raising drive.

Hills is a partner in the accounting firm of Touche Ross & Co. A graduate of Dartmouth and the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth, he is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and has served on its stock brokerage committee, and a member of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants, serving on its insurance and mutual fund committees.

Berklee College of Music faculty member Gil B. Graham of 3 Webster st. will be a featured percussionist when faculty saxophonist Mike Scott leads his 11-piece contemporary jazz band in concert at the Berklee Performance Center on Feb. 13.

The concert, which will spotlight the compositional talents of Scott as well as other student and faculty members of his mainstream-jazz ensemble, marks the band's second appearance this season.

Tuesday Fire Destroys Aberjona Apothecary

Fire officials are investigating the cause of a two-alarm fire that resulted in extensive damage to the Aberjona Apothecary, 888 Main st., on Tuesday night. No one was in the building at the time.

All apparatus responded at 7:57 p.m. when the fire station received calls simultaneously from Box 44 at Canal and Main streets and from the police department, which had been alerted by officers responding to the pharmacy's burglar alarm.

On arrival, firefighters found heavy smoke coming from the front and rear eaves of the building. They forced the front and rear doors to gain entrance.

A second alarm was sounded at 8:05 p.m. Engine 3 from Woburn and a Medford ladder truck responded. A Stoneham engine also filled in at Winchester headquarters, fire officials said.

Fire Captain Norman Delorey, officer in charge, said heavy smoke made it difficult for firefighters to locate the fire, concealed behind a ceiling of metal.

"The fire damaged all of the building's structural beams," Delorey said. "Once it let go out of the ceiling space, the roof collapsed," he said.

All contents of the pharmacy were destroyed by the blaze, while the basement received mainly water damage, according to fire officials.

Although the freezing temperatures caused few problems for firefighters working inside the building, Delorey said the flow of cold water formed a large amount of ice on the street outside. The department of public works provided extra sanding, the captain said.

Delorey said off-duty firefighters assisted with the fire, as well as the auxiliary lighting unit, which provided extra lighting for the area.

Winchester police assisted in controlling traffic on the street, the captain said.

All apparatus had reported back to the station by 12:06 a.m.

Fire officals have not yet received an estimate of damages.

Special Town Meeting Opens Monday, 7:30

A Special Town Meeting, to vote on the funding of a recently negotiated three-year police contract, will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The police contract funding is the only item on the Special Town Meeting warrant. It asks for a $169,000 appropriation to fund the first and second years of the pact (FY'78 and FY'79).

Funding of salary increases for the third year of the contract will be determined by the Consumer Price Index from April 1978 to April 979. The increase, however, will not exceed seven percent.

Following two years of negotiations, the police and town officials signed the formal contract for wages and benefits Jan. 15. A Special Town Meeting to ratify the contract must be held within 30 days after that date.

The salary benefits negotiated between the Winchester Police Association and the town include a nine percent salary increase during FY'78, a 7.8 percent increase in FY'79, and the rate to be determined in FY'80.

Also included in the new contract were improved vacation benefits, an expanded "self-improvement plan" and increased rates for detail work.

The police will also be compensated for time and one-half for court business, instead of the previously used straight time.

In addition to the wages and benefits, the negotiated contract marks the first time the police have had a formal contract with the town. The pact outlines grievance procedures and management rights.

It is expected the contract will be used as a basis for future contract negotiations for FY'81, which can start on or after Nov. 1.

Few To Run For Town Office As Of Tuesday

With the deadline for taking out nomination papers to run for town office only a week away, many town-wide offices are uncontested. No new additions can be added to the campaign bandwagon since The Star reported candidates who claimed nomination papers last week.

No candidates have applied for the three-year Planning Board seat, and only one candidate has taken out papers for the School Committee. Constance Papas, the current board's chairman, will run for re-election.

A second seat on the School Committee may open up if the town passes a referendum question to increase the School Committee size to six members. If approved, the candidate receiving the second highest number of votes in March will become the sixth member. To date, there is no second candidate.

With two seats open on the Board of Selectmen, that office is 5he only one where the incumbent is facing challengers. Three residents will run for that office, current chairman Edward O'Connell, Alvan G. Smith, and Robert C. Ericson.

$9,082,573 Budget For Fiscal Year '80 Voted By Winchester School Board

The Winchester School Committee Monday night unanimously voted to accept a school budget of $9,082,573 for fiscal year 1980. The final budget for FY'79 is $8,732,181.

An additional sum of approximately $55,000 for the FY'80 budget will be requested through the town manager's office, to be set aside for unconcluded negotiations on contracts for custodians and secretaries.

When the contracts are settled, the school department's FY'80 budget will be supplemented by the amount satisfying the settlements.

The FY'80 school budget includes $7,511,698 for personal services, $1,544,316 for other expenses and $26,559 for equipment.

The budget covers the expenses of the elementary, junior high and high schools, special education, system services and the central office.

Also on Monday night, the School Committee accepted next year's athletic budget, school lunch budget and the schools-community budget.

The total amount budgeted for athletics is $214,453. ($200,250 for this year) Carrying an income of $12,000 and a cash balance of $6,000, the net appropriation for athletics for next year is $196,453.

The amount for the school lunch budget for FY'80 is $335,433. ($359,381 for this year). Carrying an income of $258,201, the net appropriation for school lunch expenses for next year is $97,232.

The schools-community budget for next year is $27,595. There is no income carried over because any income that goes to the schools-community budget goes to the town treasurer.

The School Committee's original published budget request for next year was $9,297,195. The committee arrived at the present figure after making about $237,000 in cuts recommended by the town's Finance Committee.

The FinCom calculated the recommended cut by allowing cost per pupil to increase only by negotiated salary increases in personal services and other expenses by a 7.5 percent inflation rate.

Increases in the school budget and personnel costs over the past 10 years are attributed to many factors, including collective bargaining, town expectations of its schools and state-mandated programs.

To achieve the cut totaling approximately $237,000 recommended by the Finance Committee, the School Committee made cuts in the following areas, funded through the committee's original proposed published budget request: summer school, adult education, summer workshops, teacher staff, high school German, Latin, science and ski clubs, Lynch Junior High French Club, teacher aides and hiring rate for assistant principal at McCall Junior High, custodian at Muraco School, special needs instructors and in other areas as well.

The school budget, athletic budget, school lunch budget and schools-community budget for FY'80 now go to the town manager's office, where they are incorporated into the total town budget.

The town budget will be submitted to the Finance Committee by Feb. 15. The Finance Committee will evaluate the town budget and submit its recommendations to town meeting in May.

The School Committee will continue to work on cuts in next year's budget until town meeting. The committee is prepared to amend the school lunch and athletic budgets if they end up with a greater cash balance than anticipated, according to Asst. Supt. for Administration John Fallon.

Hearings Continuing Tonight On More Misconduct Charges Against Voke Superintendent

Two of the 16 charges being brought against Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School superintendent John Connolly were presented last Friday night at the School Committee's first hearing to consider the superintendent's dismissal.

The hearings will continue this evening.

The two charges against Superintendent Connolly considered Friday were: entering into a long-term lease of a motor vehicle and authorizing payments from state and federal grants to himself and others. Both actions were allegedly taken without the School Committee's prior knowledge or consent.

The charges were presented by School Committee member Thomas O'Donnell, of Melrose, chairman of the ad hoc subcommittee on special procedures, which drew up the statement of charges.

The School Committee accepted the statement of charges, as well as a set of hearing procedures drafted by the ad hoc committee on Jan. 30.

Other charges to be heard include: withholding information on state and federal grants from the School Committee; misleading state authorities; instructing a department administrator not to discuss certain matters with the School Committee; causing the employment of a relative of a School Committee member without the committee's approval; causing cost overruns in the school maintenance budget by permitting the unnecessary and wasteful use of substitute custodians; refusal to provide written or oral explanations regarding state-imposed emergency conditions, despite an explicit request from members of the School Committee.

Also: repeated refusal to refer additional applicants for an administrative position with the department, despite a School Committee determination that the original applicant was unsuited; using grant funds to make payments without the committee's prior knowledge to his own son; recommending a candidate for an academic position who was neither certified nor certifiable in that position; and inadequately managing admissions policies and practices regarding special needs students.

The vocational school in Wakefield serves 12 communities, including Winchester, which is represented on the district School Committee by Gerard P. Donahoe, a member of the ad hoc subcommittee on special procedures.

Evidence presented

During Friday night's hearing, attended by 75 persons, the ad hoc subcommittee presented detailed evidence related to the charges against the superintendent. Connolly and his attorney, William J. Lee,of Wakefield, responded to the School Committee's questions.

The superintendent is also rep4esented by his son, John Connolly Jr., who did not comment during the hearing.

The School Committee's counsel is George Waldstein.

As evidence on the charge of entering into a long-term lease of a motor vehicle without the committee's prior knowledge or consent, School Committee member O'Donnell presented a copy of a contract, dated Sept. 20, 1976, to lease a 1977 Chevrolet Caprice for 36 months from New England Car Leasing Inc., Melrose, by the vocational school, signed by Supt. Connolly.

"The minutes of the School Committee's meetings show no authorization or discussion about the superintendent's leasing this vehicle," O'Donnell said.

"We're aware that in certain school systems vehicles are provided," he continued, "but we never had the opportunity to do that. The vehicle was leased without the knowledge of this

Winchester Cathedral Choir To Visit

Winchester, New England's ties with Winchester England, will soon become stronger than the annual Christmas greeting exchange. On March 2 the Church of the Epiphany will host the Winchester Cathedral choir, in connection with the English church's 900th anniversary.

The combined choir of men and boys under the direction of Martin Neary will sing for the 9 a.m. Eucharist. Rev. Jack Bishop of the Church of the Epiphany said churchgoers will be admitted by ticket only until 8:50 a.m. Parishioners may pick up tickets at the church until Feb. 20. After that time, the tickets will be available to the general public.

Although the Board of Selectmen was first informed of the famous choir's visit at their meeting Monday night, Rev. Bishop said the visit has been in the planning stages since the summer.

He noted that organist of the First Congregational Church, John Skelton, first called the choir's United States and Canada tour to his attention.

The Cathedral choir will arrive in Ottawa, Canada, next Thursday to start a 15-city tour celebrating their anniversary. The tour will culminate in a concert at Carnegie Hall in New York City March 7.

In the Boston area, the choir will perform an Evensong for Ash Wednesday, Feb. 28 at 8 p.m. in the Harvard Memorial Church, Cambridge. On March 1, the group will give an 8 p.m. concert at the Trinity Church in Boston.

Following the Friday morning Eucharist at the Church of the Epiphany and a coffee hour, the choir will leave for Hartford, Conn.

While in the Boston area, members of the choir will be the guests of Winchester families. Rev. Bishop said a variety of events have been planned during the choir's stay, including an Ash Wednesday dinner at the church.

The church is opening their doors for the boys in the choir to study Thursday morning. Sightseeing in Boston is also planned for the group. The Church of the Epiphany's organist, John H. Corrie will assist in their stay.

Rev. Bishop noted that the Rt. Rev. John Vincent Taylor, a leader in thought in the church of England, is traveling with the choir to the Boston area.

The Selectmen called the choir's visit a "landmark occasion." The town has, for many years, exchanged Christmas cards with its sister town across the ocean.

Selectman Edward O'Connell said he hoped the choir's stop in Winchester would be the group's most memorable experience. The board plans to attend the Eucharist, and perhaps bestow a token of remembrance of the visit to members of the choir.

The visit from the English choir coincides with the Church of the Epiphany's 75th anniversary of the laying of the first cornerstone of the church, Rev. Bishop said.

Music critics of the American and British press have given the choir members high praise.

Loan Offer For Damage From Recent Floods

Winchester residents and businesses who suffered property damage following the Jan. 25 rainstorm and flooding may be eligible for low interest loans from the Small Business Administration.

Applications for the loans, issued at seven and three-eights percent interest, may be picked up at the Concord Town Hall, the closest disaster office to Winchester, or at the SBA main office, 150 Causeway st., Boston. The deadline for applications is April 2.

The loans are available because Middlesex County was declared a disaster area following the storm.

According to Richard Tomeo, seven special offices opened last week to assist flood victims. Since that time, the Concord office aided 16 homeowners and four businesses for a total of $420,500 in claims.

Tomeo said homeowners, businesses, tenants, charities, and non-profit organizations may be eligible for assistance if they are not already covered by flood insurance. The purpose of the loan, he said, is to provide funds to repair or restore the victim's home or business to its condition before the damage. It is not meant to be an upgrading loan.

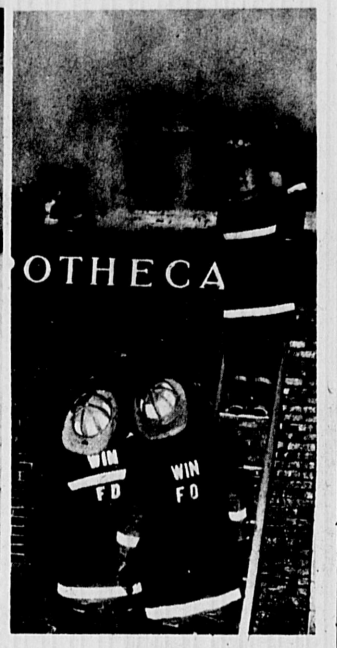

The maturity of the loan may not

AIR CONDITIONING, HEATING,
HUMIDIFICATION, ELECTRONIC AIR CLEANING
FEBRUARY AND MARCH BAD MONTHS FOR LOW HUMIDITY AND DRY AIR

This month and next are bad months for the problem of low humidity levels indoors. Due to the heating process of air, air loses its moisture content and becomes very dry.

In many homes the air becomes so dry that you might outfit your home for desert living. Put in a few palm trees and sprinkle some sand, for air in your home may be as low as 10 percent relative humidity . . . that's as dry as the air in the SAHARA DESERT. The only thing you can do to relieve this dry condition that damages furnishings and possibly your health is to add moisture to the indoor air. The best way to add moisture is with a humidifier and the humidifier we recommend is the APRILAIRE humidifier.

The APRILAIRE adds moisture to indoor air by adding it as a water vapor into your living area. It has a capacity of at least 5.3 pounds of water per hour, more than enough to keep your indoor air healthfully moist. It has a drain that carries away the natural mineral content of the water so that it doesn't get into the air to form a dusty powder that can settle on your furnishings. With the APRILAIRE you can prevent damage to your furnishings such as rugs, woodwork, walls, drapes and slipcovers that is caused by dry air. And you can do a lot in preventing colds and respiratory infections. When the mucous membranes in the nose and throat are kept moist they repel bacteria and other infectious airborne particles that can cause trouble. You stay healthier, longer.

For more information or for a free survey of your home, call FEDERAL HEATING, day or nite at 623-1515 or 729-6866.

committee," O'Donnell added, noting that the committee had learned about the lease after the lease had been signed.

After the superintendent had been told by the committee to withdraw from the car lease, O'Donnell said, funds from grants had been used, in part at least, to lease a car for the superintendent.

Moreover, O'Donnell explained, the committee was not aware that grant money had been used until August 17, 1978, by reading an article in the Malden Evening News.

In response to the charge, Supt. Connolly said there was a provision in the FY'77 budget for $2400 for car rental under "other expenses."

"I was directed by the School Committee to drop the lease and get a second-hand car, which I am now using," Connolly said. "The lease was never consummated. The new automobile was never delivered," he added.

Connolly also said there was a verbal agreement between the car leasing company and himself. An escape clause in the lease allowed the school to break from the contract the first or second year, the superintendent said.

"My authority is vested in the appropriation," Connolly said, referring to the line item for a vehicle in the budget. "Many other expenditures such as machines and data processing are customarily carried out without further action by the School Committee," he added.

O'Donnell questioned Connolly about the use of grants for car leasing.

The superintendent said that during the time he was awaiting delivery of the new car, the lessor provided another car.

"We paid on a monthly basis and there was money on the overhead of grants that I understood could be used," he said.

In reference to Dept. of Education official John Manning's disapproval of using the funds for the car, Connolly said, "I think he's in error."

Committee member Philip L. McAuliffe, of Wakefield, said, "I am disturbed that the superintendent overstepped his authority and acted on things which were up to the School Committee."

Payments from grants

O'Donnel presented the second charge that Connolly authorized payroll action and payments to himself and several other Northeast employees out of state and federal grant monies, without prior knowledge and-or approval of the Northeast School Committee.

The committee member read from School Committee minutes and presented federal grant proposals and business office records.

"We authorized the superintendent to apply for a grant which eventually became known as the D75-76 or the Dan Donoghue grant,(in reference to the project director) " O'Donnell said.

O'Donnell presented charges that the superintendent made payments to staff from the D75-76 grant, without the knowledge of the School Committee.

The committee member also showed noted a letter, dated Jan. 18, 1979, from David F. Cronin, associate commissioner, Division of Occupational Education, requesting that $13,599 in federal funds be returned to the state, if the use of the overhead allotments was not approved by the School Committee.

O'Donnell said that the superintendent had claimed that the School Committee knew that staff was being paid from grant money because of information in the minutes of an ad hoc committee meeting on March 13,1975.

O'Donnell, chairman of the subcommittee, continued to say that, although the name on page two of the report is his, his signature is not there. O'Donnell also said that the first page of the report is missing and questioned whether page three of the minutes presented is part of the same report.

"Page three of the minutes has information I didn't have at that date," the subcommittee chairman said.

"I have my doubts about page three," he continued, but "but I won't begin to make guesses or accusations. If anyone here in the administration staff were to be paid from state and federal dollars," O'Donnell said, "it should have come before the committee and it should have been approved by the state.

"I didn't know about this reference in 1975," he added. "I only learned about it in going over my notes in the past few months."

Committee member McAuliffe asked O'Donnell if he had any evidence that these three pages had been altered, noting that the minutes had been approved.

"No," O'Donnell answered. "The minutes were accepted. One might take the position that one should read them very, very carefully, but back in March of 1975, I had no reason to be suspicious.

"I have tried to show that what appears on page three of the ad hoc committee report is not part of my subcommittee report, and if it is, it is improperly dated," O'Donnell said.

Supt. Connolly responded that there were two grants involved in the D75-76 project and that no administrator was paid out of the first part.

Overhead was paid on the second grant, Connolly said, but the project director knew of the payments, he added.

No knowledge of payments

In response to a poll by comm8ttee member Joseph G. Gigante, of North Reading, 10 committee members said they never knew that administrators were being paid from federal and state grants, until the issue of the payments arose in August, 1978.

McAuliffe said, "My understanding was that the money was voted for late afternoon programs."

Committee member John B. Pacino, of Reading, said, "I thought the money was being paid to people working with the kids. Even at that," he added, "I voted against that motion."

Committee member Anthony C. Moschella, of Revere, who is the school treasurer, said he could not "recall at this time" if any administrators were being paid from the grants before August, 1978.

for re-election include John Sullivan, town moderator; Jeanne Thomas, Board of Health; James Blackham Jr., Public Library Trustee; and Sumner Beal, Assessor.

According to the Town Clerk's office, this year candidates have been a bit slower than usual in taking out nomination papers,

Even the Town Meeting member seats, which have eight three-year terms open in the precincts, still have vacancies for candidates.

The Town Clerk's office reports that the following number of Town Meeting candidates have taken out and returned nomination papers.

Precinct one, two returned; precinct two, five returned; precinct three, four returned; precinct four, six returned; precinct five, seven returned; precinct six, six returned; precinct seven, six returned; and Precinct eight, three returned.

There are also some openings for shorter terms of one and two years in each precinct which remain unfilled.

For those residents interested in running for an office, the following dates should be noted.

Feb. 15 is the last day to take out nomination papers. By Feb. 20, the papers must be filed with the Registrars of Voters for certification of signatures by 5 p.m. Feb. 27, the papers must be filed with the Town Clerk by 5 p.m.

Feb. 28 is the last day for filing for withdrawals of and-or objections to nomination papers with the Town Clerk's office.

The election will be held March 27, with voter registration deadline, March 7, at 10 p.m.

Chamber Of Commerce Holds First Meeting

About 80 town business and professional people gathered in the Knights of Columbus hall Monday evening for the first members' meeting of the newly-formed Winchester Chamber of Commerce.

A half-hour get-together preceeded the 5:30 p.m. introductory meeting, where board of directors president Robert B. Nickerson of the Winchester Savings Bank welcomed the members.

Nickerson also introduced other board members and officers of the organization, as well as the Chamber's executive vice president, Barbara Crowell.

The members of the Chamber's board of directors represent business and professions in the town, the board president told the group.

Areas represented on the board include: law, insurance, banking, retail, medicine, services, real estate and light industry, Nickerson said.

There are some 600 businesses and professions in Winchester, Nickerson noted.

The membership goal of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce is 200 for the year. Over 50 memberships have been received so far.

The town has joined the Chamber in the capacity of honorary membership. (non-voting, non-paying)

This status is provided for in the bylaws of the Chamber of Commerce. Town Manager Thomas Groux represents the town as an ex-officio member of the Chamber's board of directors.

"Business leaders together can accomplish what no one can do alone," Songer told the new members of the Winchester organization.

"It is imperative that business people get together and realize that there are legitimate complaints made by the public as well as illegitimate complaints," he pointed out.

The representative from the Newton-Needham Chamber noted that the job of the Winchester executive vice president, Barbara Crowell, is mainly to implement the policy of the board of directors.

"It's the job of the members to bring out their problems and to work to solve them," Songer said.

Crowell invited members to respond to a questionnaire listing choices for programs and activities the Chamber could undertake.

A group insurance plan, a business phone service, a market analysis of the kinds of businesses needed in Winchester and possible changes in zoning and sign bylaws are among the areas the Chamber can address, Crowell explained.

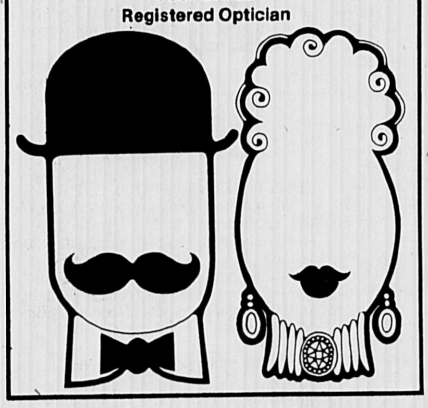

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce will also sponsor monthly events such as guest speak3rs and luncheons, on the basis of the response to the questionnaire, the executive vice president said.

Voke School Hearings: Time To Examine Facts

Hearings continue tonight into charges against Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School Superintendent John Connolly. The district School Committee is considering allegations that Connolly:

Leased a motor vehicle without the prior knowledge or consent of the School Committee;

Spent state and federal grant monies without prior approval from the School Committee, and furthermore, permitted procedures contrary to state and federal regulations on the same grants;

Withheld necessary information from the School Committee on state and federal grants;

Misled state authorities while providing information without the prior knowledge or consent of the School Committee;

Withheld from the School Committee information first provided by state officials;

Instructed a department administrator not to discuss certain matters with the school committee;

Caused the employment of a relative of a School Committee member without the approval of the School Committee;

Caused cost overruns in the school maintenance budget by permitting the unnecessary and wasteful use of substitute custodians;

Refused to provide written or oral explanations regarding state imposed emergency conditions, despite an explicit request from members of the School Committee;

Refused repeatedly to refer additional applicants for an administrative position with the department, despite a School Committee determination that the original applicant was unsuited;

Used grant funds to make payments without the School Committee's prior knowledge to his own son;

Recommended a candidate for an academic position who was neither certified nor certifiable in that position;

Inadequately managed admissions policies and practices regarding special needs students;

Failed to supply all information on federal and state grants and on communications with federal and state agencies.

These charges as outlined are serious. Some involve possible violations of state and federal law. Any one of them, if proved, appears significant enough to warrant severe disciplinary action or dismissal.

All evidence, however, has not been presented. We are not judging either the substance of the charges or their veracity.

Supporters of the embattled superintendent have claimed that the charges are the result of politics and bureaucratic maneuvering, not malice or incompetence on the superintendent's part.

We believe at this point it is important to remember that, under our legal system, a person is innocent until proven guilty. The burden of proof is on the accusers. They must establish Connolly's guilt. It is not his need to prove his innocence.

We believe that the citizens of this community have a significant stake in the outcome of these proceedings. Winchester contributes some $160,000 per year toward maintaining the vocational school in Wakefield and some 80 students from this town attend its regular programs.

Taxpayers are entitled to the most efficient management of school resources and students are entitled to the most effective education possible.

The proceedings against Connolly are open to the public. Only 75 persons attended the first hearing last Friday night. The hall should be overflowing.

We urge interested citizens to attend the hearings. Their witness will provide both the opportunity to make an independent judgment of the facts and a check that neither side in this dispute carries the day by innuendo or hysteria.

Open Burning Regulations Issued

Fire Chief Robert W. McElhinney has issued the following report on open burning.

Open burning

The Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering is allowing open burning from Jan. 15 to March 15, 1979.

Those people planning to burn in the out-doors must comply with the following regulations:

1. Obtain a permit from your local Fire Department.
2. Burning must be carried out between 10:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.
3. Burning must be at least 75 feet from all dwelling units.
4. Someone shall be in attendance with a nearby water supply.
5. The fire must be completely extinguished before the attendent leaves.
6. All burning must be conducted during periods of good atmospheric conditions and without causing a nuisance.
7. Burning must take place on land proximate to the source of material being burned.

What may be burned: Brush, cane, driftwood and forestry debris. This regulation does not apply to commercial or to industrial land clearing for non-agricultural purposes.

...Editor's note: Once a month, Henry Simonds will submit a special feature column of Winchester's history. In February, Simonds recounts the 1944 fire of Puffer Manufacturing Company.

By HENRY SIMONDS

In 1893 the McKay Metallic Fastener Co., manufacturers of shoe machinery, built a handsome brick factory on Swanton street, which is now the site of the town incinerator. Their location in Winchester was due to the fact that it was the residence of Louis Goddu, a very talented and ingenious man, several of whose inventions were essential to the business of the company.

Mr. Goddu, who lived on Madison avenue until his death in 1919, was the holder of no less than 300 patents, which ranged from the little wire clips which are used everywhere to bind papers or pamphlets together, to the most complex shoe machinery. Mr. Goddu built many of his inventions in his shop on Madison avenue.

The McKay Company employed a large number of hands and the establishment of their factory here led to building of large number of houses in the vicinity of Harvard and Irving streets.

In 1907 the McKay Company was absorbed by the United Shoe Machinery of Beverly who moved its machinery to Beverly. The plant was sold to Puffer Manufacturing Company, all local residents who manufactured soda fountains until 1929 when it went into receivership.

It continued to manufacture soda fountains on a small scale in several of its buildings. The rest of the buildings remained idle until 1937 when the property was bought by the International Cooperage Company, except two buildings still occupied by Puffer Mfg. Co.

These buildings were totally destroyed by fire on April 7, 1944 which I helped fight as I belonged to the Auxiliary Fire Department.

The town bought the land in 1944 for the town dump and in 1960 the town voted to build an incinerator on the site of the dump.

Town Watch

The Mini-Bus Committee has not vanished from Winchester. In fact, the final version of designs by high school students for a logo and name for the mini-bus system will be unveiled at the committee's meeting tonight. According to committee chairman, Gary Watros, the students have been doing a super job.

The students have chosen Winchester Community Transit for the system's name, with a black, red, and white stylized lettering logo.

Watros said that also at the meeting, set to begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall, the committee will discuss mini-bus brochures, and work on survey questions. A survey will be distributed before starting the system to collect information about people who use publi- transit.

Our apologies to the residents of Cutting street. Several photos in last week's Star, which showed firefighters pumping water from the town's flooded streets were incorrectly identifed as Manchester road.

Although Manchester road, too was knee-deep with water, the fire truck was actually on the corner of Cutting and Manchester.

Bonnie Jean Ripley, 9, of Winchester, stopped in at our office recently to give the following message:

"The condition of Wedge Pond and the brook is terrible. The people aren't helping either....Some people are even dumping garbage in the pond and brook. The fertilizer from the condominiums and such is getting into the pond and is incredibly forming a marshy part that is soon to be an island.

"People and an ecologist are trying to make further contact with the garbage and algae situation.

"Think about the fish, ducks and geese that would suffer over your faults. Please do everything you can to help.

"If you ever get a chance to walk along the brook, why don't you take along a paper bag? Every little bit that you pick up helps, even if it's just a paper bag full....It's just as much your responsibility as the park department's to keep the pond and brook clean."

The Massachusetts Open Meeting Law says that notice of meetings of all boards, including committees, commissions aand sub-committees, however elected, appointed or constituted, shall be filed with the Town Clerk and posted at least 48 hours before the meeting.

Letters From Readers

Sour Grapes

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to comment on a previously published article by Jonathan Kalman, "Girls' Basketball Sufferes Loss to Lexington, 49-45." I got the impression after reading the article that Jonathan was upset with the officiating of that game he wrote about. I can understand Jonathan's enthusiasm for Winchester always being victorious, however, when seven of the 14 paragraphs in the article are critical of the officiating, I believe an altenative view should be expressed.

The article mentioned the difference in foul shots was 28 to 11 in favor of Lexington. Saying the foul shots are unbalanced is the weakest excuse you could use. Would it make you happy (or influence your reporting) if in every game that there was an unbalance, officials purposely tried to balance this aspect of the game? Think about it.

The reason Winchester lost that game wasn't because of the above mentioned or the missed call in the last two minutes. The game is 32 minutes.

The reason Winchester lost that game and others was because they didn't put the ball in the basket. Criticising the officiating the way Jonathan did was, in my opinion, not only poor journalism but sour grapes. He should have devoted more of the article to the fine play of the players (winners and losers). Officials get knocked enough at the game, but to see it in print isn't necessary.

Recently I was fortunate to have officiated with both officials involved in that game. Their knowledge of the game and professionalism was a rewarding experience for me to have been associated with them. They are good basketball officials.

It's encouraging to see the enthusiasm generated from your articles for Winchester's Athletic Teams. I hope it overflows so it has a bearing on increased attendance at future events.

A Success!

An exciting and rewarding chapter of my life entitled "Rainbows" has just come to a close.

To the members of the cast and committees who gave so willingly of their time and talent, to the merchants of Winchester who gave us discounts and door prizes, to the people at Town Hall who gave us a place to call home for a month, and to all the many others who gave us the support that we needed to make the 1979 Winton Club Cabaret such a tremendous success, I say "thank you." We have indeed found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

chairman, 1979 Winton Club Cabaret

Good Job

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to thank the Fire Department for their help. Twice this month on the 21st and 25th, I called for their assistance.

They pumped out my cellar that had over five feet of water.

Although they were loaded with calls, they were very helpful and cheerful. I am truly grateful they did an excellent job.

A Warning

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Increasingly as one reads the local papers, we learn of the mounting crimes in our communities. Often columns are devoted to a listing of police reports. But one type crime which many of us have and will experience does not appear, that committed by the home repair or modernization contractor. I trust that you will print this letter so those who are considering hiring a carpenter to work on your home can be alerted to and avoid the thief who I hired in the fall of '78.

This man who, lives in Medford, came to my home with a contractor who was recommended to me. To be safe, we arranged for him to undertake a portion of the work upon whose completion we would determine the desirability of having him continue. The first portion was completed as scheduled.

We then contracted for the balance and advanced this carpenter $800 for material. Now the carpenter failed to appear. Repeatedly, I called him and repeatedly he promised to start on a specific day. Repeatedly, he thus lied and broke his promise.

Finally, we advised him we could no longer wait and had engaged another man to do the work. The Medford carpenter then began a series of promises, again lies, as to when he would refund our money.

Having no success, we entered suit in Somerville Small Claims Court only to find that the carpenter would not pick up the summons from the post office. I had to engage a constable to deliver the papers. This constable was most familiar with the carpenter as it seems said carpenter evidently makes a living by taking advances and then not performing.

Should you be considering any carpentry work, I would be most pleased to provide you with the name and address of this man. After all, who wants work done by a carpenter whose work is crooked!

Rainbows

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Congratulations to everyone involved in the Winton show, "Rainbows." It couldn't have been better, more refreshing, or entertaining.

The music was excellent and the talent great. Need I say more? Yes, it must have had a good director.

Funds Needed

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I do not intend to risk being put in the stocks as a "common scold" because of my campaign to help the library help the deaf. I do not want my friends to start ducking behind trees or fences when they see me coming.

I kindled this campaign myself, however, and I do not want it to cool off before my objective has been reached. To that end, I shall stoke it once in a while, just to keep the issue hot.

We are a town of over 20,000 people. The sum of 10 cents from each resident would put my modest drive well over the top. Since such a comprehensive collection is impossible to achieve, I know that I must be more realistic. What I would like, therefore, is to get as many small donations as possible — 50 cents here, a dollar there — two dollars, (five or 10 — if you can spare it,) so as to get as many people in this town interested and involved with what we are trying to do at the library.

So please don't dodge me on the street; just drop in at the Wincheste Savings Bank and see Joe Cioni, the treasurer, and donate what you feel you can afford to part with in order to help those of your neighbors who have suffered severe loss of hearing. Any donations, large or small, will be most gratefully appreciated.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to thank all of my fellow class officers and friends who gave up their Saturday afternoons to help run the movies at Lincoln School for the benefit of the sophomore class.

Also, a very special thank you to Miss Martin, our student advisor, Jerry Ferro of the Recreation Department and Mrs. Schwartzmann for thier interest in our project, kind advice and help. Last, but not least, thanks to all our faithful moviegoers- the children who attended!

The following people gave their time to help us make this a worthwhile venture Kenny Jacobson, Linda Gurrisi, Mark Schwartzmann, Krissy Murphy, Judy Perritano, Leanne Dougherty, Amy Dillon, Chuck Adelsberger, Jackie Bonner, Jay Gill, Ron Amadeo, Cheryl Cioni, and Laurie Gurrisi.

Hope to see you all at our last show, The Incredible Journey, Saturday at 2 p.m.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to publicly thank the persons who telephoned the police when they saw suspicious activity going on at the Bartlett School last weekend.

This civic action made possible an arrest and kept the damage to our school from being even more serious. Let's all try to help our police by being responsible in this way.

Tide Turned

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to Mr. George Flynn, principal of both Noonan and Washington schools, for his assistance, understanding and patience in helping us to resolve the problems of teenage loitering and vandalism in the Noonan School neighborhood.

In spite of the many demands placed upon him as principal of the two schools, Mr. Flynn has given completely of himself in settling problems among children and adults not directly involved in the programs of either school under his charge. In his two short years as principal of Noonan, Mr. Flynn has come to know many of the young people of the area who pass through the school grounds on their way either to or from Lynch Junior High School or the high school, and thus has become an indispensible mediator responsible for promoting an attitude of mutual concern and respect among generations whose basic outlook and life experiences differ.

In addition, we wish to extend our thanks to Chief McHugh and his staff for their responsiveness and continued cooperation; to Mr. Gaudioso, Noonan School custodian, for his interest in the neighborhood and diligence in maintaining the school building and grounds under difficult circumstances; and to the School Department for making the school facilities available for our meetings.

We also wish to acknowledge the earnest effort of those neighborhood youths who willingly participated in the clean-up last fall.

Regretfully the problems of teenage loitering and littering still persists. However the amount of damage to personal property and homes abutting the school and to the school building itself has markedly decreased.

One can only assume that this has come about after the dialogue exchanged at our neighborhood meetings. We are most hopeful that with the continuing attention given to the problem by both Noonan neighbors and the various town departments and agencies, the "tide has turned" and vandalism and littering in the area will be a problem of the past.

Human Services Committee Reviews Funding Proposals

The Human Services Committee is currently reviewing proposals for funding of all human service agencies that wish to seek town support.

In order to be considered by the Human Services Committee, agencies' proposals must be received before March 1. The committee will review and make recommendations on each proposal prior to the annual Town Meeting.

Agencies that plan to seek funding should contact committee chairman, Barbara Hankins, 729-3572, or secretary, Margaretta Thuma at 729-2361, as soon as possible.

The Human Services Committee met last Tuesday with representatives of the new Meals on Wheels program. According to Chrm. Hankins, the Meals on Wheels coordinators are contemplating asking the town for funding.

Currently the program is funded by the EnKa Society and the Rotary Club. Ten people receive two meals at home a day, five days a week.

The meals are served from Winchester Hospital, and the Seniors Association is handling the funds for the program.

Last year, the Human Services Committee reviewed and recommended funding for Central Middlesex Association For Retarded Citizens (CMARC) at Town Meeting. Hankins said the Board of Health, which has been pleased with the organization's work, has included funding for this year in its budget.

Furniture, and other home or business fixtures are also eligible for repair or restoration loans. However, irreplaceable items, such as antiques, rare collections, or "extensive wardrobes" are not eligible, Tomeo said.

Persons wishing to make a claim must show proof of damage and proof of ownership. Homeowners have a $55,000 limit on loans. Businesses have no dollar limit. SBA officials will verify each claim. Tomeo said the whole process could take three to six weeks.

Further questions can be answered at the SBA office, and Tomeo urged residents to visit the office in person to apply.

Other offices are in Salem, Billerica, Scituate, Taunton, Revere, and Northbridge.

Karen MacIsaac, Richard Murray Wed

Karen Marie MacIsaac, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John MacIsaac of 36 Olive st., became the bride Nov. 24, of Richard Joseph Murray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Murray of 158 Cambridge st.

The 6:30 p.m. ceremony took place at St. Mary's Church with the Rev. John Myers officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white chiana gown with princess neckline, long fitted sleeves and bodice trimmed with flowered lace and pearl sequins. Her floor length veil was attached to a flowered lace and pearl sequin crown. She carried white carnations and roses with baby's breath.

Jodie DeTeso of Winchester was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Robin Sullivan, Therese Murray, Cheryl Lizotte, Anita Paonessa and Peggy Pullo all of Winchester.

The honor attendant wore a light pink gown with high gathered neckline, long puffy sleeves and empire waist with ruby velvet vest. She carried pink carnations with a pink rose in the center and wore light pink baby's breath in her hair.

The bridesmaids wore similar gowns in alternate colors of blue and pink.

Frederick Murray of Winchester was best man. Ushers were Stephen Baldacci, David Mascioli, Richard Allison, Jeffery Loftus and Thomas Murray all of Winchester. Junior ushers were Patrick Murray and Michael Murray.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Winchester High School and a graduate of Middlesex Community College. He is an assistant manager for Woolworths Company in Biddeford, Me.

The couple are now residing at Biddeford Pool, Me.

Winchester Girls Easily Defeat Watertown To Even Season Record

By KELLY GATELY

After losing to Methuen 108.25 to 95.30, the Winchester High School gymnastics team evened their record at 5 and 5 by handily defeating both Watertown, 91.70 - 46.70 and then Salem, 94.9 to 81.55.

Against Methuen, Winchester was without the services of Captain Peggy McCabe and Carla Gulino, two of their top gymnasts. Winchester fell behind in the very beginning and then never could make up the difference. Outstanding performances were turned in by all-round Sarah Gagan, Teri Allard, Lisa Zirkle and Joyce Fryklund.

In the later meet against a very small and inexperienced Watertown team, Winchester won easily . Only in vaulting, did Watertown have the customary six performers and on floor, they only had three.

From the start one could tell Winchester was the easy victor. On both the beam and bar routines combined, Watertown scored only 14.65 points, while Winchester scored 22 points on bars alone. They went on to outscore their opponents in vaulting 25.25 to 22.40, and on floor, 24.45 to 9.65.

All-arounds Michele Collins and Teri Allard, along with Peggy McCabe, Carla Gulina, Sarah Gagan, Lisa Zirkle, Anne Bird, Beth Walters, and Lisa Melilli did well in the rout.

Salem offered more competition, but not enough to beat Winchester. On bars, Salem took the lead 20.1 to 19.5 Scorers from Winchester included Peggy McCabe (5.6), Carla Gulino(5.1), Sarah Gagan(4.6) and Beth Bradley(4.2).

Winchester won the beam event 21.30 to 16.55 and from then on, they never lost the lead. Carla Gulino took top honors on beam with her 6.0 followed by Sarah Gagan, Teri Allard and Peggy McCabe with scores of 5.85, 5.2, and 4.25.

In vaulting, Winchester outdid Salem 27.90 to 22.25. Winchester's best was Joyce Fryklund with an excellent score of 7.4 Other scorers were Peggy McCabe(7.25), Sarah Gagen(6.75) and Carla Gulino(6.5).

Winchester continued to dominate on floor, defeating their opponents 26.2 to 22.65. Michele Collins and Peggy McCabe tied with 6.7 for the top score, while both Lisa Zirkle and Carla Gulino also contributed with respective scores of 6.65 and 6.15.

Winchester will be looking forward to Middlesex League individual meet at Reading Feb. 14 at 6:30 . Many of Winchester's performers will be competing.

Bantams Drop Two Close Matches, Tie One

The Winchester Bantams dropped a close decision to a charged-up Newton team last Sunday at Burlington by an 8 to 6 score.

Winchester struck for three early first perioed goals and appeared to have the game well in hand. Larry Maida's score from a jam in front put the Bantams on the board with an assist to Steve Tucci. Chris Parker made it 2 to 0 on an unassisted effort less than one minute later.

A combination of Winchester's overconfidence, coupled with Newton's reluctance to give in, led to a complete turn around in the last half of the first period. Newton struck for three quick goals to tie the contest at 3 to 3 as the period ended. Newton scored again early in the second period to take a 4 to 3 lead, but Tony Celli's blast from the left face-off circle put the Bantams even.

Unfortunately, this failed to ignite the Bantams as they weakened defensively and Newton posted four unanswered tallies to make it 8 to 4. The locals finally got their act together midway through the third peirod striking for two goals, both by Steve Masiello, with assists to Larry Maida and Steve Tucci before time ran out.

This appeared to be a game the Bantams could and should have won, coming after several excellent team efforts.

Last Sunday they were downed by league-power Burlington, 5 to 3. However, after surrendering four first-period goals, the Bantams outplayed their oppenents by a considerable margin during the last two periods. Winchester goals were scored by Chris Parker (two) and Steve Tucci.

The Bantams put together one of the season's finest efforts in a mid-week make-up game against Arlington, tying the Spy Ponders, 2 to 2. The game featured superb goaltending by both teams with Winchester's David Boyle and Pat Falla turning in brilliant performances. Arlington's McDonald was equally effective. Steve Masiello and Tom Sullivan scored for the Bantams in this game. Paul White, Steve Marino and Paul Tucci played a strong game for Winchester.

The Bantams record now stands at 7-5-4. John Kisil's effective defensive play has been a contributing factor recently. Danny Sullivan and Jim Coppins' passing is consitently sharp. Larry Maida posted a two-point game with a goal and assist against Newton. Tony Celli and Chris Parker are playing well for Malden Catholic and Matignon, respectively.

Recreation Department Accepts Applications For Summer Employees

The Winchester Recreation Department is now accepting applications for summer employment. Positions include supervisors, instructors, and life guards, for the playgrounds, beaches, and other summer progrms.

Resumes or letters of application listing qualifications should be sent to the Recreation Department, Town Hall and should indicate where applicants can be contacted during the next few months.

Lynch Defeats McCall, 7-3 In Hockey Action

Last Friday afternoon Lynch Junior High hockey defeated McCall Junior High by the score of 7 to 3. Both Tom Sullivan and Bill Ferry had hat tricks for Lynch.

Lynch, coached by Joe Kuchta, has now won 10 out of its first 11 games. McCall is coached by Jim Maconochie.

Steve Marino's slapshot from the blue line gave McCall a 1 to 0 lead after only 14 seconds of play.

Bill Ferry's breakaway goal tied it up for Lynch at 5:57.

Joe Donlon's power play goal at 7:52 gave McCall a 2 to 1 lead.

At 0:51 Steve Tucci tipped in a pass from Tom Sullivan to tie the game at 2 to 2. Tom Sullivan then scored two goals in less than a minute to give Lynch a 4 to 2 lead. Bill Ferry then duplicated Sullivan's feat to extend Lynch's margin to 6 to 2.

Ned White's 30 foot wrist shot narrowed the lead to 6 to 3 at 9:38.

McCall's comeback was shortlived as Tom Sullivan completed his hat trick at 9:50 to give Lynch a four goal lead.

The third period was scoreless.

"IN MY FAMILY, I PICK THE CAR AND LET MY HUSBAND PICK THE COLOR."
HERMINE FINKENZELLER, STRUCTURAL ENGINEER

I suppose it's a bit unusual for a woman to be a structural engineer. But I am and my husband is not, although he's very good at his job. I've been designing automotive components for years. For me, the Audi 5000 is the most intelligent 15½ feet of engineering on the road today.
Women will appreciate that we didn't devote half the car to just the power plant. Instead, my colleagues developed a remarkable five-cylinder engine that has plenty of power, yet doesn't take up unnecessary space. So the car is very roomy and comfortable inside. In fact, the Audi 5000 is the largest German luxury car for under $10,000*
Suggested 1979 retail price $9395., P.O.E., transp., local taxes, and dealer delivery charges, additional. Test-drive it at Porsche | Audi dealers.

Sachems' Hockey Players Collapse In Third Period, Lose To Belmont, 7-2

By DAVE LAFAUCI

It was a frustrating week for Winchester's hockey team. Last Wednesday the Sachems were beaten by Belmont, 7 to 2, despite leading after two periods. On Saturday they saw a 4 to 4 third period tie with Reading dissolve in to 7 to 4 defeat.

In the Belmont game the Sachems scored the first goal. Ten minutes into the first period defenseman Mike Hill started a rush at his own blue line. Hill found the Belmont defense backing in on their goalie, Bob Kavanaugh, so he kept coming right down the middle. Hill fired from 25 feet out and beat Kavanaugh just inside the left post.

There was no further scoring in the period.

There was also no scoring in the second period. Winchester outshot Belmont, 11 to 6, during the period. Only some fine goaltending by Kavanaugh kept the Sachems from adding to their 1 to 0 lead.

The Sachems had looked like a good hockey team over the first two periods. They had moved the puck well and created plenty of scoring opportunities. That is why what happened in the third period was so hard to comprehend.

Belmont came out flying and never stopped. Winchester came out flat and never got going. Belmont, which had been outshot 20 to 17 over two periods, would outshoot the Sachems 18 to 5 in the third period.

With only 30 seconds gone in the period, the Sachems were called for tripping. It took the Belmont power play just 27 seconds to tie up the game. After a face-off to the right of the Winchester goal, Mike Hume was allowed to walk in on Sachem goalie Bob Surabian. Hume slid a backhand shot into the left corner of the net.

The Marauders made it 3 to 1 at 4:30. Mike Poirer took a centering pass from Mike O'Donovan and slid the puck into the left corner of the net.

At 5:29 Belmont was called for hooking. Any Winchester comeback hopes were punctured 14 seconds later. Mike O'Donovan stole the puck from a Sachem defenseman and came in clean on Surabian. Surabian came way out and tried to poke the puck off O'Donovan's stick. O'Donovan veered wide to his left and fired the puck into the vacated net.

Winchester had a power play opportunity of their own a short time later. The Sachems moved the puck well. Their efforts culminated in a goal. Peter Mahoney was able to flip a rebound of a Jack Collin's shot into the top right corner of t e net to cut Belmont's lead to 4 to 2.

Winchester's comeback bid was ruined by another penalty - this time for slashing. Belmont took advantage at 7:47 when Bill Twomey took a nifty pass from Mike O'Donovan and beat Surabian with a backhand shot from in close.

Belmont added two more goals before the period mercifully ended.

On Saturday night Winchester faced off against Reading. The Sachems had beaten the Rockets earlier in the season.

The first period ended 1 to 1.

Reading grabbed the lead at 2:20 of the second period. Jim Kelley took a pass from Paul Greenyer and came in alone on Surabian. Kelley was able to deke Surabian and flip the puck into the net.

Mike Burns made it 3 to 1 at 6:19 when his quick shot from 15 feet out beat Surabian low to his glove side.

Hugo LaFauci's slapshot found the mark two minutes later to narrow Reading's lead to 3 to 2.

Reading picked up another penalty at 10:51. The Sachems had a golden opportunity to tie the game. Instead, they gave up a short-handed goal. Jim Kelley intercepted an attempted Winchester clearing pass. Kelley rang a slapshot off the left post and into the net to increase the Rockets' margin to 4 to 2.

Hugo LaFauci completed his hat trick at 14:11 to put the Sachems back in the game. LaFauci took a feed from Jack Collins and got off a qucik wrist shot. The puck broke through Reading goalie Turenne and trickled over the goal line.

The second period ended with Reading holding a 4 to 3 lead.

Skiff Sizemore tied up the game at 3:54 of the third period. Jack Collins passed the puck from the right corner to Sizemore who was positioned in the slot. Sizemore's quick release caught the far corner of the net.

Scott Burns and Kevin Lawrence added insurance goals for Reading later in the period.

What made the week so frustrating for the Sachems was that they could have won both games. In the Reading game it was a case of the Rockets capitalizing on some defensive lapses. Against Belmont it was a team let-down in the third period.

To give credit where it is deserved, the Sachems, for the most part, played well against Reading and played two good periods against Belmont. Unfortunately, when you come up empty, it's the bad plays and bad stretches you remember.

The Winchester Archival Center, a journey into the town's past, is open Monday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursday, 7 to 10 p.m. The center is located by the Sanborn House behind Ambrose School.

Tennis Ladder Applications Are Due March 1

Plans for the Winchester Spring Tennis Ladder are underway.

Last year's ladder consisted of 42 teams. This year, the group hopes to field 20 teams. The top 12 will represent Winchester in the Women's Suburban Tennis League. Teams 13 through 20 will represent the town in the Northeast Suburban Tennis League.

The season will run from early March to early June. Play is Monday through Friday.

The ladder is open to all Winchester women 18 years of age or older. Those interested in participating or who wish more information should call Joan Gorrasi at 729-3307. A firm deadline for team registration is March 1.

Track Club Off To Running Start

After a great turn out at the first meeting of the Winchester Road Runners Club, Winchester can now say it has a running club.

At the meeting problems that Winchester runners have were discussed and a committee was formed to look into them. The committee will investigate trying to get the Fells open to runners, the problem of free running dogs, and taking over of the Winchester Marathon.

The club also designated Saturday and Sunday morning at 9 at Sandy Beach parking lot as a meeting for place for all runners who are interested in joining the club. This will give runners a chance to meet the members and to get a good workout.

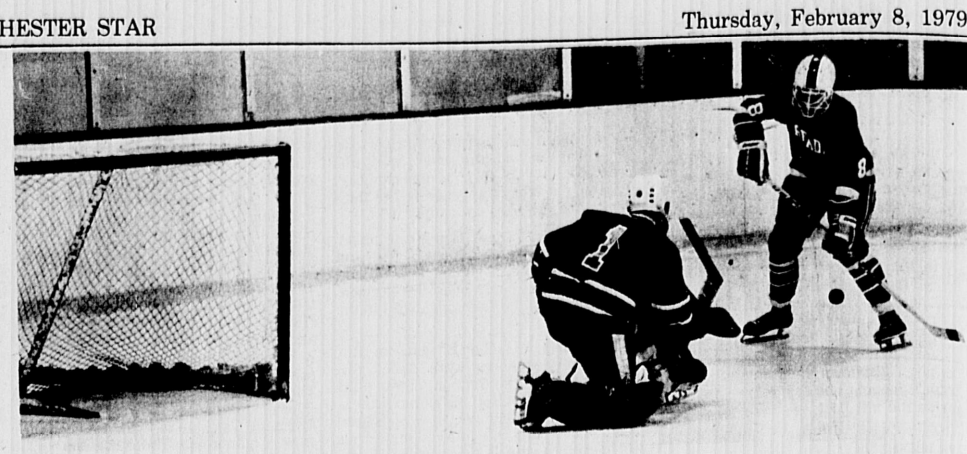

The workouts will be held every weekend. There will be no attendance record kept.

Runners who wish more information, may call Jerry Ferro, club chairman, at the recreation office.

Two Sessions Of Woodworking And Gymnastics Canceled

The Winchester Recreation Department has announced that gymnastics and woodworking have been cancelled for Feb. 17 and 24 due to the school vacation week.

The programs will resume on March 3.

Red Cross House Hosts Cub Scouts

Three dens of Cub Scouts visited the Winchester Red Cross headquarters on Church street at the end of January to get some understanding of what activities go on at Red Cross; how the community profits by the organization's presence; and the great opportunity to serve the needs of the people offered by Red Cross.

The first to visit the Red Cross Chapter House were dens one and two of pack 524 from Parkhurst School. Hilda Zerwekh, RN., gave the boys a much shortened version of the new Red Cross basic aid training program. The course touched on home safety, safety on ice and in the water, how to avoid poisoning and other home emergencies and how to get help.

The Cub Scouts showed their appreciation by presenting Mrs. Zerwekh with a yellow chrysanthemum. Present were den mothers Pauline Tucci, Ginger Reid, Carolyn Vernaglie and Beth Duffy.

Two days later den three, also of pack 524, Parkhurst School, was given a tour of the Chapter House by the Winchester Red Cross executive director, Phyllis Knopf. There the Cub Scouts got some understanding of the many programs and services that Red Cross offers the community.

Several Cub Scouts expressed a determination to take the CPR and first aid courses and to become blood donors in the future. Den mothers Charlotte Minkowitz and Joanne McDonough accompanied the den.

Winter Hike Set For Saturday

The Middlesex Canal Association will hold a winter hike Saturday at 1 p.m. Interested hikers should bring showshoes, cross country skis, or if no snow, skates and good walking boots.

The hike will start at the Wilmington Town Park (Opposite Brewsters Lumber Yard, Route 38). Hikers will be able to view a section of land owned by Stanley Webber, the Oxbow, and the remains of the Maple Meadow Brook Aqueduct on Wilmington Town Park land.

The total length of the hike is two miles.

The date of the hike was incorrectly printed in The Star last week as Feb. 19.

Groux To Speak To Newcomers Club Thursday

Thomas J. Groux, town manger, will be guest speaker at the February meeting of the Winchester Newcomers Club. Scheduled for Tuesday at 8 p.m., the meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Slonicki, 86 Bacon st.

Groux, who has been town manager since 1975, will explain how Winchester government operates and answer questions about town government and the services the town provides.

Before coming to Winchester Groux was township administrator for the Howell Township, N.J. He has an extensive background in budgeting, personnel and labor relations.

Members' husbands are welcome at the the meeting, as are all Winchester residents of less than two years.

Jaycettes Plan Exercise, Diet At Salon

Due to the inclement weather on Jan. 17, the Winchester Jaycee-ettes had to postpone their meeting that evening. That same meeting will now take place Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. Once again, the Jaycee-ettes will be the invited guests of Gloria Stevens Figure Salon in Woburn.

Christiane Shenk, owner of the Woburn Salon, is planning to have all the Jaycee-ettes participate in a diet and exercise program that evening. On that same evening there will be two door prizes and guest passes awarded. Low calorie refreshments will be served following the exercise program.

To confirm attendance, contact Mrs. Edward Esposito, 22 Johnson rd.

Birth

Barry son

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Barry (Jean Fay) announce the birth of thier first child, Michael J. Barry, on Jan. 20. Formerly of Winchester, the Barrys now live in North Attleboro.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Alexander J. Fay of Winslow rd. and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Barry of Washington st. Great-grandmother is Mrs. Margaret Keeler of Winchester.

Big Bigger BIGGEST

Why not? Have your ad set in larger, darker, bolder attention-getting type! Yes, it does cost a little more. You can save a few little cents on your ad and lose many big dollars in sales. Now that really isn't economy, is it? It is especially important to have a big, attractive ad if the items you are selling are perishable or have a short season. Call us at 643-7900 to place your CPI Classified ad. Remember, one call places your ad in all three of our publications.

HOW TO HANDLE CONDEMNATION

It's a real shock when you're told that part (or all) of your property will be taken for a new highway, sewer line, high tension line or other public use. It's usually an even greater shock when the representative of the public utility, highway department or government tells you what they propose to pay.

Relax, and react rationally. Your property may be taken if it is really needed for public use but you must be compensated at "fair market value." If the initial offer is unacceptable, make an appointment to discuss the facts with your attorney. If he agrees with your position, he'll arrange for one or more Real Estate appraisers to appraise the condemned property for you. With the facts they give him about "fair market value," he can represent you better in direct negotiation, at a preliminary hearing, or (if necessary) in a court action.

One caution — Have a clear understanding of the fees of attorney and appraisers before engaging them.

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER. PHONE 729-1663. We're here to help!

Why You Should Use Your Local Realtor

First, at no cost to him, the owner has the benefit of consistent and intelligent advertising of his property.

Second, the owner has the enthusiastic efforts of the entire sales force of his brokers concentrating on the sale of the property, secure in the knowledge that nobody else will reap the benefits of their work.

Third, the broker assumes an obligation to look out for the owner's best interests until he has worked out a satisfactory sale.

WINCHESTER

Here is a diamond—a gem of a house in a setting which greatly enhances its beauty and value. All it needs is the polishing, the finishing touches on the extensive renovations which have been done by the present owner. The kitchen is modern, as are the 3½ baths. There are 4 bedrooms on the second floor and two more on the third. All rooms are of generous size. Two-car garage, and a very large lot near the Middlesex Fells Reservation. An MLS exclusive with this office at $129,900.

We urgently need a 2 bedroom ranch with large rooms, level entrance, for occupancy in May or earlier. Retired couple returning to this area will be in town next week to buy. Please call us if you are thinking of selling.

Voke Budget Debated, Meeting Tonight

The School Committee of the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School is scheduled to vote on its proposed budget for next year at 7 tonight at a meeting at the Wakefield school.

However, since the School Committee will also be continuing its hearings tonight on 16 charges relating to the alleged misconduct of school Supt. John Connolly, (story on p.1) it is not certain that the committee will vote on the budget at this time.

The budget should have been voted on by Feb. 1, according to statute, Peter A. Rossetti, chairman of the budget and finance subcommittee, said.

The vocational school serves 12 area communities, including Winchester, which is represented on the district School Committee by Gerard P. Donahoe.

Winchester's share of the vocational school's total budget is about $160,000 a year for nearly 80 seats in the school's regular program.

This year's budget was $6,354,450. The total proposed budget for next year is $6,352,458, approximately $2,000 less than this year's budget.

Cuts to be made

The original budget proposed by a subcommittee to the SCHOOL Committee was approximately $278,000 above the figure now proposed for next year. The committee has already cut about $90,000 and has yet to specify cuts of approximately $189,000 to achieve the $6,352,458.

On Jan. 30, Rossetti called a meeting of the School Committee to discuss the approximately $189,000 reduction.

School officials and citizens present at the hearing argued the pros and cons of specific reductions in the budget, to achieve the $189,000 cuts.

A Woburn hairdresser, citing cosmetology programs at various vocational schools, questioned the necessity of a 12 to one student-teacher ratio in the Wakefield vocational school's program of cosmetology.

"The school could do away with one position in this area," he said. "A ratio of 20 to one is fine and would present no hazardous conditions."

In response, Irene Duguay, cosmetology department head at Northeast Voke, said the Wakefield school has followed the rules of the State Board of Hairdressers.

"Not one school you mention is within the rules," she told the Woburn hairdresser. "Every school must have at least two approved instructors for every 25 students and one for every 15 students thereafter."

Committee member John B. Pacino, listing reductions suggested by members of the Reading Finance Committee, said cuts could be made in administrative personnel, food expenses for School Committee hearings, IBM machine rental costs, office supplies, advertising costs, textbooks, as well as in various other areas.

"Why not charge tuition for post-graduate programs, why does the food service need carpeting and wall coverings, why not 17 instead of 18 custodians?" he asked.

"A total of $123,750 could be cut from the expense account and $65,000 from personnel costs," Pacino proposed.

Teachers' position

William Giglio, vice president of the Northeast Teachers Association and an electronics teacher at the school, argued against the nearly $200,000 cuts, saying that "taxpayers are led to believe that we are the major source of their tax worries.

"We are, on the average, only one to two percent of each community's tax burden," Giglio said.

Giglio presented a sheet detailing the savings for the 12 communities if approximately $200,000 were cut from the total budget. According to his figures, a $200,000 cut would mean a savings of $.05 per $1000 evaluation for a Winchester taxpayer.

Giglio said such a cut "would hurt our school tremendously. I hope taxpayers realize we are only costing them pennies," he pointed out. "We are a bargain."

Placement record

The electronics teacher cited the school's good record in placing students in careers upon graduation.

"We have success story upon success story. And where are we now?" Giglio asked. "At the first school cut.

"Why don't they come to the school and see us operate?" he continued. "If we don't place the students, they get on our necks. If we exceed our budget, they get on our necks."

Speaking for teachers, Giglio said, "We're trying to live within the budget we have now. We're not wasteful mongers. We're prudent. A cut will hurt us and will hurt our students."

Many of those present applauded a final statement.

"We're probably first now," Giglio said. "I hope we don't go back to the way it was when I was in trade school. In those days, we were forbidden to walk in the same stairways with the academic students."

Surplus funds

Winchester committee member Gerard P. Donahoe noted that, with approximately $350,000 in surplus built into this year's budget, it shouldn't be difficult to cut $200,000.

Committee member Pacino asked about the status of last year's surplus funds.

The $337,185 surplus from last year is in the bank, Anthony C. Moschella, Revere, responded. The fund is to be used in the budget or is to be returned to the cities and towns within the district, if the School Committee so decides.

Chelsea representative John F. Dunn Jr. said he intends to propose at the next regular meeting of the committee that the surplus from last year be returned to the cities and towns immediately.

Melrose committee member Thomas F. O'Donnell agreed with Dunn. "I want it (the surplus funds) back because I don't have confidence in the people who hold the money here," he said.

Superintendent's recommendations

Supt. John Connolly said he does not recommend any of the cuts to be made by the School Committee from the subcommittee's original proposal, but said he "accepts the will of the committee.

"When the subcommittee came up with its recommendations, it was an austere budget, but workable," Connolly said.

The superintendent recommended adding $113,028 for personnel for the special needs program, which received cuts from the School Committee.

Connolly said the supervisor of special needs, Louis R. Sardella, holds that a number of positions are necessary for the program to be in compliance with state statutes and regulations.

The superintendent pointed out that, according to Sardella, if funds are not budgeted for the program, reimbursement from state funds might be withheld, "further exacerbating," the superintendent said, "the school's budgetary problems.

"In excess of $1 million could be withheld," Connolly pointed out, "if the special needs programs are cut. That would mean the School Committee would have to go back to the communities for funds," he added.

Selectmen's Notes

The installation of signs were debated by the Board of Selectmen Monday night, as they wrapped up some old business of a sign request from the MBTA, and heard a new proposal from the Rotary Club.

Keith Puffer of the Rotary Club explained the new sign (and-or signs) which the club would like to place at the Winchester Center rotary.

The club is requesting that two signs be placed on the rotary strip, to insure that traffic coming in from all directions could see the message.

The top of the sign would carry a "Welcome to Winchester" greeting. Also on the signs, five service organizations would list their names, and times and places of their meetings. Represented on the sign would be the Rotary Club, the Kiwanis, the Jaycees, the Lions Club, and the Winchester Chamber of Commerce.

The signs are large, 44 by 60, mounted on a seven to nine foot steel pole.

Puffer said the organizations' messages would be printed in four inch letters and would be clearly visible by passing motorists to avoid being a traffic hazard. The sign will cost $287 per club, with the $100 installation fee being picked up by the Rotary.

Although the Selectmen questioned why two signs were needed in the small area of the rotary, they favored one sign being used to represent the five organizations.

If the sign is installed, the clubs will be removing about 25 signs that are currently stationed at several town-line sites.

The board delayed further action until after a report from the Traffic Advisory Committee. The committee will address the location of the signs on the rotary, and the number of signs needed.

The MBTA request, to place 40 bus stop-informational signs throughout town, was unanimously defeated by the board. The Selectmen waited one week to give their final decision on the signs, pending an opinion from the Traffic Committee. The committee agreed with the Selectmen's sentiment expressed at a Jan. 29 meeting that the signs were unnecessary.

The board will however ask the MBTA for one sign, with informational bus stop routes, to be placed on Laraway road near the bus stop shelter. All of the board members favored the installation of the single sign but Dunbar, O'Connell, and Wilsack, expressed doubt that the sign would be approved.

They said the request would probably be denied because of Winchester's refusal to install the 40 individual signs.

O'Brien Appointed

Mary D. O'Brien was appointed to the Registrars of Voters by the Selectmen. O'Brien and three other candidates were interviewed for the position by the board at their last meeting.

She is a member of the Town Democratic Committee, a past Town Meeting member, and has served as a poll worker.

Personnel Board Meets

The Selectmen met in executive session with two members of the Personnel Board to discuss a proposed advisory board to collective bargaining groups. Since the discussion concerned collective bargaining strategy, the closed session was called.

As proposed, the advisory board would take the "longer view" prior to bargaining, of economic trends and the town's bargaining groups as a whole.

Cross Street Residents To Address Safety

Residents in the Cross street area have scheduled a meeting to address neighborhood concerns Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the library of the Muraco School. The meeting affects all parents and residents north and northeast of the school, and concerns parents of children attending the Muraco School, and pedestrians and motorists who traverse Cross street.

Several problems will be discussed, including the possibility of setting up a neighborhood "helping hand" network, a system where children will know which houses they can run to, should they be injured or threatened going to and from the school. The network will also aid in reporting vandalism, misconduct, and other problems in the neighborhood.

Other problems to be addressed are provision of bus transportation to and from the Muraco School during the winter months, repair to the fence surrounding the pathway from the school to Cross street, and the fence surrounding Leonard Pond; repair of drainage systems in the area (especially under the railroad bridge and on the pathway); and provision of a safety officer on the pathway between Leonard Pond, pass the attack dog, and out to Cross street during the school year.

Also to be discussed is the updating of a telephone call chain for emergency notification of parents.

In connection with emergencies, the group will try to set up a network of non-working volunteer mothers willing to care for a few children of working mothers on a mutually agreed hourly fee basis during early, unexpected school closings, dismissals, and so on.

The latter portion of the meeting will concern the tenants of Winchester Gardens, relating to structural problems such as flooding, insects, low and leaky bulkheads, drafty windows and doors, heating problems, and other related matters.

Beverly Kwan, an organizer behind the meeting, said that committees will be formed to address each problem.

"The above matters involve the safety of our families and neighborhood," she said. "I strongly urge everyone to attend."

For further questions or suggestions call Mrs. Kwan at 729-2435, after 6:30 p.m.

Vandalism And Larceny Reported During Week

Early Thursday morning, two hubcaps, valued at $85, were reported stolen from a car parked in the town hall parking lot.

That same day, police found a car with smashed windows and damaged dashboard on Aberjona drive. The radio had also been removed from the car.

In a similar incident, a snowblower, valued at $500, was reported stolen from a garage on Bacon street sometime Saturday night.

A briefcase containing personal papers and sales catalogs was stolen Friday night from a car in the town hall parking lot.

Last Tuesday evening, police reported that a car window was smashed in a vehicle parked in the Knights of Columbus parking lot while the owner of the car attended the Winton Club performance.

Police also reported this week several incidents of property damage caused by shots from a BB gun.

A Wendell street resident reported that the rear window of his car was shattered by a BB pellet while the car was parked in front of his home between 6:45 and 7 p.m. last Wednesday.

That same night, lights on Wendell street and Loring avenue were also reported broken by BB shots.

At 8:02 a.m. Friday, a company on East street reported holes in seven windows around the building. The holes appeared to be the result of BB shot, police said. Two windows, valued at $200, were broken in a house on Surrey road on Sunday morning.

Later that morning, a rock and beer bottle were thrown at a car on Highland avenue, breaking a tail light and a windshield.

On Sunday evening, the owner of a car parked on Levan road found the car's front and rear windshields broken, right rear tire flat and a small dent on the car's hood.

Police report that a car was stolen early Sunday morning from the town hall parking lot while the owner was at the Winton Club performance.

In other news concerning vehicle thefts, a car which was stolen from Salem street last Wednesday afternoon was recovered on Thursday in Burlington.

Police are on the alert for a white Ford van which was driving around town last Tuesday trying to sell merchandise such as TVs, radios and sports equipment to service stations along Main street.

Mental Health Board To Seek Area Volunteers

Mystic Valley Mental Health Center is in need of volunteers. Anyone interested in gaining experience in the mental health field and in serving where there is a need, can work in various areas with staff involvement and supervision.

Volunteers work with individual clients and assist staff in social clubs for clients in the day hospital programs. Other opportunities for involvement include mental retardation, working with the elderly and in clerical-administrative areas. Contact Mrs. Cecile Wilson, MSW, Coordinator of Volunteers, at the Arlington office.

O'Doherty

Hugh J. O'Doherty Jr., 54, of New Britain, Conn. and a former resident of Winchester, died Jan. 25 after a short illness.

Born in Woburn, he lived in Winchester until 1951, when he moved to Connecticut, where he was a claims representative for the Social Security Administration, retiring in 1972.

He is survived by his wife Margaret (Shaw) O'Doherty; two sons, Paul and Peter O'Doherty; four daughters, Karen Kundra, Mary Marturano, Eileen Scheffler and Jean O'Doherty, all Connecticut residents; his parents Hugh J. and Mary (McGowan) O'Doherty Sr. of Florida; three brothers, Thomas O'Doherty of Winchester, John O'Doherty of Woburn, Philip O'Doherty of Williamsburg, Va.; two sisters, Mrs. Phyllis McGuerty of Stoneham and Mrs. Rose Dunleavy of Winchester; and one granddaughter.

A Navy veteran of World War II, he graduated from Winchester High School and Boston College.

Funeral services were held Jan. 29 at St. Jerome's Church, New Britain, Conn.

Burial was at St. Mary's Cemetery, New Britain.

The New Britain Memorial Funeral Home directed funeral arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the Heart Fund.

James Anasis

James A. Anasis, 25, of 9 Acadia rd., West Yarmouth and a former resident of Winchester, died last Wednesday at the Cape Cod Hospital, Hyannis, after a long illness.

Born in Istanbul, Turkey, he lived in Winchester until two years ago, when his family moved to West Yarmouth.

A sales representative for Orbit Travel Agency in West Yarmouth for the past two years, he was educated in the Winchester schools, graduated from Winchester High School in 1972 and attended Boston College.

While in Winchester, he worked with children at the Fernald School, Waltham and coached children in soccer and baseball for the Winchester public schools.

He leaves his parents, John and Elly (Papadopoulos) Anasis and a sister, Evie, of West Yarmouth; a maternal grandmother, Mrs. Pauline Papadopoulos of West Yarmouth; and several aunts, uncles and cousins in Greece.

The funeral was held Saturday at St. George's Greek Orthodox Church, Hyannis.

Burial was in Ancient Cemetery, Yarmouth.

Hats Off To Rainbows!

By KAREN WHITTLESEY-FIRST

OK. So a reviewer is supposed to be cool, detached, looking for flaws as well as for signs of greatness; refraining from applauding, smiling, nodding with delight. But I have to tell you, when it comes to hometown theatrical productions (or theatrics if you prefer), I'm a real soft touch. I love them all. The Winton Club's annual fundraiser, called "Rainbows" this year, was one of those community efforts which, like the annual holiday sing on the Common, makes a small town into a large family.

And it was family in the audience Tuesday last week when I joined scores of children on Children's Night at the Town Hall. They wore jeans and drank orange soda. The younger girls were mostly in long dresses, worn maybe for the first time that night. "My mom's in the first act," "Hilary wants another grape drink," "There's somebody from 'Starship Galactica' downstairs!" There was a lot of gossip and giggling as ushers with carnations in their lapels led the young people to their seats. Then the music started and those many nights of pizza and afternoons of babysitters were left behind as wives, mothers, husbands and fathers danced and sang to keep the Winchester Hospital's linen closet full.

The theme of the show was Mother Nature's promise to give the earth beautiful weather and lovely rainbows in exchange for stardom on the stage. Each scene of the production picked up on one of the colors of the rainbow and matched songs, costumes, and set design to that color. The coordination worked.

Local actress Betty Vallee was Mother Nature struggling to be in show business. She has appeared often on Winchster stages, most often with the Unitarian Players. She has also been in previous Winton Club productions and last year did professional supper club work in Boston. With her white gown flowing and her daisy chain circling her soft hair, Mother Nature flitted and sang through Red, Orange, Yellow, Green, Blue, and Violet scenes.

Red Hot Mama Carol O'Shaughnessy brought down the house in last year's show and "Rainbows" was the perfect vehicle for her this year as she played the part of a seductive bump-and-grinder. The kids in the audience loved it. She came up to them and sang right to them and they responded. The kids also loved the Sailing in the Sunset. On stage sailors Donna Finn, Joann Stevens, and Liz Mooney found themselves caught in a web of red sails which hindered their every attempt to move around. The kids laughed at their antics and seemed delighted by the visual confusion. Also in the Red scene were the famous Tambo Ladies. A small group of women (all but one Winton Club members) is somehow able to keep tamourines clinking and banging in unison off their elbows, knees, heads, around their backs, everywhere. This is the fifth year the Tambo Ladies have appeared at Town Hall. Their teacher is Ann Bannister (who also did the cover of the program and the art work throughout).

Rudolph has a red nose and so he and various Santas made their appearance. The head of the reindeer covered the very talented Jan Cooper from Andover. This is her 25th year as a Winton Club performer and in her honor her husband donated a door prize of $200 worth of rug cleaning.

The group of Santas ice skating included the daughters of several Winton Club members sure to carry on their mothers' enthusiasm. After the skating the Red scene closed with red robins tap dancing.

The next color of the rainbow is orange and so we moved into one of the funniest scenes of the show, Tangerine Tango. Tuesday night Carol O'Shaughnessy played the femme fatale with the long black hair (and moustache and Groucho Marx eyebrows) who drags off her victim, played by Rick Trabucco. The part of mysterious woman was played the last three nights by John Keller. It must have been hysterical. Carol O'Shaughnessy did a fine job, however, as she turned her Red Hot Mama costume in for a Tangerine Tango gown.

Yellow was a big scene for chorus and the show; Ted Hovey, who stopped scooping Brigham's ice cream briefly while he played in the sand; Dick Norris, a good sport; and Don Green from the Viking Fisherman.

There were two solos in this scene, one by Joan Stevens and the other by Marti Hovey. Both were fine. So we moved from blue skies and brown eyes turning blue to the fabulous Elvis (Rick Trabucco). As did their parents, the kids in the audience cheered Elvis. Surrounded by adoring, fainting, bobby-soxed, neckerchiefed fans, Rick Trabucco belted out "Blue Suede Shoes" as the audience laughed and enjoyed.

The kids perked up when the Green scene opened. Right there on the stage before their very eyes was Kermit the Frog (also known as Winchester resident Phil Wilson). It's not easy being green, but Phil did it fine. His princess was Linda Johansson, engaged to Don Green of the Viking Fisherman.

The scene ended the act in the traditional Winton Club Cabaret style — with a drill. Dressed as prisms, the precision team went into action as they maneuvered through the drill. It's okay to count the beats in this one!

After intermission (with door prizes awarded from the Sports Shop) we moved to the cooler end of the spectrum. The men opened with a chorus of "Eyes of Blue" sung with gusto. Then the local merchants took us to the sea side. Wearing bathing suits from the twenties and sporting about in the sand were Jack Chitel, long a supporter of Winton Club cabarets; Ann Wild, who put her real estate business acumen aside long enough to join her Winton Club sisters for danacers as the audience was treated to a hoe down. Again there were daughters of Winton Club members taking part; among them were Odette and Suzanne Friou, daughters of Mrs. Charles Friou. Debbie Putnam and Nancy Higgins also carried on the family tradition. There were some newcomers to Winchester, too, as Luanne and Nick Bankson joined right in with the community effort.

Chuck Cooper sang "Tie a Yellow Ribbon" for the second time in Winton Club shows. He has been a supporter of the cabarets for several years and by request did this song for the show this year. To end the Yellow scene John Culver sang about the yellow rose of Texas. He is married to Diane Culver, this year's show chairman.

Like the drill, the waltz has also become a traditional part of the Winton Club show. As June Lang sang "Alice's Gown" the waltzers circled the dance floor. It was very nice. Phyllis Williams, dusky-voiced, sang "The Birth of the Blues." She has often done solos in previous shows and it is always a treat to hear her.

Admiral's Birds waddled through but only by checking the program could you know who was under those fantastic penguin suits. They were all Winton Club members and one of them was Millie Rivinius, president.

How to end such a procession of dancing, singing, waltzing, tabourining, waddling, square dancing, and sailing? With baton twirling, ballet dancing, and acrobatics!

The violet scene included a ballet which was soft and peaceful, a needed change of pace. Then followed a disco to put all other discos to shame. Debbie Guzelf of Wilmington astounded everyone with her expertise in twirling the baton (or two or three). She just took off and twirled away among ooh's and aah's from the kids and the grown-ups. Debbie is a Patriots' cheerleader who, like other cheerleaders, is becoming more involved in community endeavors during the off season. She's only 20 and should be a fine talent for many years of Winton Club shows.

Every rainbow has an end, they say, and so does every Winton Club show. The entire cast came out. There were scores of them. Not every one was mentioned here even though their talents were just as important as those whose names were recorded. There were others who did not come out on stage — the husbands who constructed the stage sets, built and hung the rainbow over the stage, built the ramp, managed back stage production work during the performances and who, Sunday morning, took everything down, packed away props and extra equipment, and left the Town Hall stage spotless.

There were others who put together "Rainbows" but who didn't come out for bows. The director was Larry Alford, who has more than 15 major musicals to his credit. He has also been involved in plays, children's theatre, and especially in industrial multi-media productions.

Musical direction was under the baton of Lawrence Suvak for the first time. Larry Suvak is not a stranger to Winchester, however. He has directed the last four musicals at McCall Junior High and gives lessons in Winchester and Wakefield. He has also directed orchestras at the North Shore Theatre, Cape Cod Melody Tent, and the Chateau de Ville.

Adams Lighting Company did a fine job again this year for the show. Interstate Rental Company again handled the sound aspects of the show, which in previous years had been a problem. This year the Winton Club used sound drapes to help cut the echo effect which used to be disturbing to audiences and actors alike.

Also to be credited with extra efforts are the committees of Mrs. Robert W. Baron and Mrs. Charles Friou, costumes; Ann Banister and Mrs. Prescott Keyes, scenery; Mrs. Howard S. Abbott and Mrs. Regis Pelloux, properties; Mrs. Walter Bowen and Mrs. Truman Dayton, prompters; Mrs. Ralph Swanson, makeup; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vitka, cabaret decorations.

Forum Retreat Is This Weekend

Thirty-five senior high school students and six advisors from the Forum, the senior high youth group at the First Congregational Church, will be going on a winter retreat this weekend.

The group will be leaving the church at 5:30 p.m. on Friday. They will be traveling to the chalet of Mr. and Mrs. William Poduska in Hillsboro, New Hampshire.

The retreat theme will be "Our Differences are Many, But We Are Together as One." Films, small-group discussions, and worship will be the focus of the weekend, along with skiing, skating, and other outdoor activity.

The retreat is led by Forum President, Pam Dean, and Minister of Youth at First Church, Rev. Kenneth Orth. The group will be returning to Winchester late Sunday afternoon.

The Winchester Convalesant and Nursing Home hosted the Boston University School of Theatre arts production of "Heritage," women in Lincoln's life. Michael DeLellis and Joseph Simone were among those enjoying the performance.

State Financing Probed By LWV Discussion Units Next Week

The League of Women Voters of Winchester will be holding discussion units on the subject of "Financing State Government" next week. Starting last year, leagues all across the state have been studying this problem. With the passage of Proposition 13 in California and various proposals for tax caps in our own state, many citizens have begun to wonder how such plans might affect their own property tax bills. Last fall voters approved the Classification Amendment, but it remains to be seen what the results will be.

For the first time, one of these meetings will be held at the high school so that some students may attend. The times are 7:45 p.m., Tuesday at the home of Connie Sto ow, 8 North Gateway; 9:45 a.m., Wednesday, at the high school auditorium; and 9:30 a.m.; next Thursday, at the ome of Mrs. Montgomery Aiken, 183 Highland ave.

These meetings are open to all, and baby-sitting is provided on Thursday morning. For further information, call Cynthia Turnquist, 15 Stone ave.

Catholic Daughters To Hold Social Feb. 15

The Catholic Daughters of the Americas, court Santa Maria number 150, will hold its monthly meeting and social at the Immaculate Conception School Hall on Sheridian circle at 8 p.m. next Thursday.

The chairman of the evening is Mary Powers. Refreshments will be served.

Trails Meeting Features Slides By Sally Wund

Winchester Trails invites the public to its mid-winter entertainment Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the library meeting room. Sally Wund, well-known Winchester photographer, will show her colored slide series "Winchester Through the Four Seasons."

This will be followed by a second series "Trees in Bloom" and will show fascinating details of the flowers of familiar trees such as maple and oak which are often overlooked by the casual observer.

Wund has pursued a life-long hobby of nature photography stemming back to her childhood when she started snapping the family cat with her brownie. In addition to her own personal collection of slides she has prepared the show of Smith and Long Pond trails areas. These are shown to students to acquaint them with the special features they will see when they are taken out doors by Trails guides.

Fran VerPlanck will also exhibit some maps showing the natural areas of Winchester. She has both historical and contemporary maps to dramatize how "ttle open space is left.

Music Club Holds Meeting

The third meeting of the Winchester Music Club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Laber, Jan. 28. Sara Hebb was the announcer for the evening.

Students performing for each other included Greta Rosenberger, who opened the program with "Prelude in C" by Bach, and then was joined by Elizabeth Obbard to perform a duet on the piano entitled "Rondino", by Haydn.

Eve Moros played "Ecossaise" by Beethoven, followed by Laura Weylman and Christine Dixon on the flute, accompanied by Pam Bruno on the piano performing a trio arrangement of a song called "Movin' On."

Louise Mawn performed "Fuer Elise" by Beethoven; Theresa De Conto, "Waltz" by Schubert; Alek Laats and Eric Fieleke performed a duet arrangement of "Jesu Bambino;" Karen Rahmeier played "Gavotte from French Suite No. 5" by Bach; Eric Fieleke played "Child Falling Asleep, Frightening," and "Important Event," all three by Schumann; Karen Myers performed the first movement of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata;" Ann Hitchcock performed "Invention No. 1," by Bach, and Rachel Tringale concluded the program with "Valse Brillante op. 34 No. 1," by Chopin.

The next meeting will be held on March 18 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ain Laats, 2 Pine st. The program planner will be Mrs. Susan Cowen.

St. Mary's Women Meet Tuesday With Police Chief McHugh.

The women of St. Mary's Church will hostess the annual luncheon of Church Women United of Winchester on Tuesday, at 12:30 p.m. Everyone is invited to come for fellowship and a chance to hear chief of police, John McHugh, spea o, "The Problems of Youth." Reservations at $2.50 may be made through representatives in each church or by calling Mrs. A. Duffy, 9 Bacon st.

Chief McHugh is a native and current resident of Winchester and a graduate of Winchester High School. Mrs. Rodney Torres, presdient of Church Women United hopes many will come with questions and ideas for discussion.

Duplicate Bridge

The Winchester Duplicate Bridge Club held an American Contract Bridge League membership game on Jan. 24 at the Crawford Methodist Church. The overall winners with 20 and a half tables in play were:

Don Howard and Tom Barry, Mr. and Mrs. Wassmuth, Hunter and Arvedon, Mr. and Mrs. Enge, N. Donaldson and S. Lee, and P. Donaghy and J. Donahue.

On Jan. 31, Section A had seven tables. The winners were North-South: Paul Donaghy and John Donahue, Mr. and Mrs. Duryea, and Mr. and Mrs. Cincotta. East-West winners were Susan Stearns and Dennis Affholter, Emma Poindexter and Dot Gibbs, and Anne Galpin and Madeline Walworth.

Section B. had seven and a half tables. The winners were North-South, Mr. and Mrs. Enge, Mr. and Mrs. Houldings, and Ruth Flanigan and Elsie Demone. East-West winners were Tom Berry and Don Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Leland, and Guy Mingolelli and Ray Whittemore.

On Feb. 21, there will be a mixed pairs championship. The game will start at 7:30 p.m. and has club championship status with the ACBL.

On board nine of section B, one of your "Aces and Spaces" reporters, given the chance to play his hand, would end up with a red face, by reaching 6Ds. A contract which appears to be safe, but certainly is doomed to go down without much difficulty. Most East-Wests played these cards at 3 NT, certainly a reasonable contract, making 5 or 6.

The hero of the evening was the North-South pair who actually set 3 NT by two tricks. Impossible? Not at all. It takes a Brave Heart and the knowledge that it doesn't always pay to take a trick the declarer offers you. East leads the J of Diamonds and North plays low smoothly.

This, of course makes declarer believe that the King is in the South hand, so he leads the 10, playing the Queen, and is very much surprised when it is taken by the King. East has no entries to those good diamonds now, and will have to give up some spades and a heart. But what if declarer decides to play the diamond Ace? The hold-up hasn't cost you much, and the gain balances out the risk.

Professionals To Visit WHS Career Days

On Tuesday and Wednesday the Foreign Language Department of Winchester High School will hold career days, the culmination of a program begun last fall in cooperation with the Guidance Deaprtment.

In most foreign language classes composed of juniors, three days in November were devoted to a career awareness program. Members of the Guidance Department visited these classes to explain the career profile which the students were to fill out. The next class session was spent in working on the profile, and a third in interpreting it with the help of the foreign language teacher and the guidance counselor. Some classes also had an assignment involving research into careers.

As a result of student interest in certain fields, people prominent in these fields will visit the school next week to explain how a foreign language has been of value to them in their careers.

Winchester residents who will speak to foreign language students are, Peter Arnott, writer and teacher; Marion Balmuth, archeologist; Betsy Bishop, social worker; Gabriel R. Caggiano, lawyer; Albert L. Muggia, doctor; Hewson Ryan, diplomat; Eileen Schnell, Secretary of Consumer affairs for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts; and Alan Schoenegge, architect.

From outside Winchester will come representatives from the fields of international business, travel, insurance, accounting, and journalism.

Teachers whose classes participated in the career awareness program are Lourdes Alvarez, Susan Austin, Sandra Beachman, Linda Ciccariello, Alfred Duhamel, Felicia Hall, Anna Maria Mancini, Benjamin Teel, and Albert Trottier.

Guidance counselors involved in the program were Diane Boettcher, Elaine Rosen, JoAnn Schoenegge, Carolyn Tiffany, and Constance Trickett.

Coordinator for Career Days is Barbara R. Holden.

Girl Scout Leaders To Meet Wednesday At Lincoln School

The Winchester Community Girl Scout Association will hold a combined Brownie, Junior and Cadette leaders meeting Wednesday, at 7:30 p.m. at the Lincoln School Library.

Mrs. Robert Johnson will preside at the business meeting. Mrs. Joseph Twichell and Mrs. David Beaber will outline plans for Girl Scout Week.

Activities to be discussed include an interfaith service on Girl Scout Sunday and the "Hello Winchester Hello" program. Mrs. Edmund DiGiovanni will report on the cookie sale and Mrs. Stephan Powers will present the report of the nominating committee.

The program for the evening will be given by representatives from the League of Women Voters. Jeanne Duffy, chairperson of the Title 9, Chapter 622 implementation committee, will show a film and lead a panel discussion "Images of Male and Female."

Brian Milauskas and John Langstaff

Student Union Dance Marathon To Benefit Swim Pool Fund

The Winchester Student Union will be sponsroring the first dance marathon ever held in Winchester. The marathon will start, March 2 at 6 p.m. and run for 24 hours straight. The Lincoln School gym will be the site for this historic event.

The money raised from the dance will be used toward the swimming pool fund. Marathoners will be canvassing the townspeople looking for pledges. All marathoners must have at least five pledges to participate.

Providing music will be Distronics and providing food will be the Parent—Faculty Association.

Copies of the Century Publications Guide for Publicity Chairmen are available at no charge in the offices of The Arlington Advocate, The Belmont Citizen and The Winchester Star.

Parkhurst Hosts Langstaff For Musical Program

John Langstaff, the well-known singer, musicologist and teacher presented a program at Parkhurst School in January. The children learned how ballads and sounds developed, and sang many themselves.

Langstaff is director of the Young Audience for New England. He was accompanied on guitar by Brian Milauskas, a ninth grade student at McCall Junior High.

Parkhurst Pupils To Present Play '76 Trombones'

The Parkhurst grade five and six students will perform the musical "76 Trombones," under the direction of Sandy Kendall. The group will present the play on Wednesday, and next Thursday, at 7:30 p.m.

These productions have been a big hit in previous years, and neighbors and friends are invited. Students have learned a great deal in participating in their rehearsals held after school, and feel this show will be a "super" one.

Tickets are not sold for this production, but adults who would like to contribute to the grade five Cape Cod outdoor education program may do so.

Richard Duffy Graduates From Tufts University

Richard Albert Duffy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Duffy of 11 Edgehill rd., was recently awarded the bachelor of arts degree with honors from Tufts Univesity, where he majored in both political science and French.

A graduate of the Winchester High School class of 1975, Duffy holds an associate in arts degree from the American College in Paris, where he completed two years of study in 1977.

He is presently employed in the department of unit management at Mount Auburn Hospital in Cambridge.

Scouts Prepare For Deep Freeze New Hampshire Campout

The scouts gathered squaw wood (dead branches sticking above the mud and snow) for an evening campfire, when they performed skits and jokes.

They did all their own cooking. Some were satisfied with food from a can but other meals ranged from marianted Yugoslavian-style steak to cheesecake.

Senior patrol leader Brian Feeney helped organize the weekend, which included a seven mile hike. Adults who camped overnight included scout master John Cirignano, board members Ross Farrar, Rich Conway and Wally Gagel, and a guest, James Maxey of Rowell.

The troop, which meets at First Congregational Church, welcomes any boys age 11 or older as members.

Films Featured At Library

Three films are featured this week by the library children's film program.

"Two Frosts" is an imaginative film of two charming ice ghosts who delight in chilling people in winter.

"Punch and Jonathan:" is the story of Uncle Jock who gives a puppet show for children. One afternoon one of the puppets is found by Jonathan and he has a new playmate.

"The Owl and the Lemming" is an ancient Eskimo legend of an owl who captures a lemming. The lemming, through trickery, manages to regain his freedom.

On Sunday afternoon, the family film program is held in the story hour room of the junior library and will begin at 2:30. There will be a Tuesday afternoon film program for school-age children at 1:30

Cash for cars!

If you're looking for a car, don't forget to look just as hard for your car loan. Whether it's money for a Mercedes, funds for a Ford, or cash for a Camaro, a car loan from Winchester Savings Bank will help pay the bill. And life insurance is included at no extra cost.

We offer prompt, confidential service for both new and used car loans at either of our banking offices, or at our consumer loan office—The Financial Service Center.

Our current ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE (APR) for new car loans is 10%, with up to 48 months to repay (minimum down payment is 20%).

The place to borrow is where you save . . .

Winchester Hospital Medical, Dental Staff Elects Officers

Elected president was Richard E. Stiles, M.D., of Winchester and PRESIDENT+ELECT, Roy A. Johnson, M.D., of Winchester. Remaining as secretary-treasurer is Thomas J. Dowd, M.D., of Reading and assistant secretrary-treasurer is Nabil E. Arian, M.D., of Woburn.

In addition, several new 10-year appointments were made for heads of departments and services. John W. O'Grady, M.D., of Winchester was elected chariman of the department of obstetrics and gynecology. William L. Kermond, M.D., of Winchester was returned to the position of chief of orthopedics after a two-year term as staff president. Paul F. Kelly, M.D., of Winchster is chief of urology and George E. Ghareeb, M.D., was elected chief of ophthamology.

Dr. Stiles, the new staff president, has been a member of the medical—dental staff at Winchster Hospital since 1951. He received his A.B. from Boston College and his M.D. from Tufts Medical School. His internship was served at the U.S. Naval Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. A specialist in urology, Dr. Stiles completed his residency in urology at E.J. Meyer Memorial Hospital in Buffalo, N.Y. prior to coming to Winchester.

Dr. Stiles is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a diplomate of the American Board of Urology. He is assistant clinical professor of urology at Tufts Medical School and has served as chief of urology at Winchester Hospital for the last 10 years.

President-elect Roy A. Johnson, M.D., an ear—nose—throat specialist, is a graduate of Harvard University (A.B.) and Boston University Medical School (M.D.). His internship was served at Boston City Hospital, and he completed a surgical residency at Boston City Hospital and an ear—nose—throat residency at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. He joined the Wnchester Hospital staff in 1964.

Dr. Johnson is clinical instructor in otolaryngology at Harvard Medical School and associate in surgery at Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. He is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a diplomate of the American Baord of Otolaryngology. He has served as chief of otorhinolaryngology at Winchester Hospital since 1971.

Dr. O'Grady, who succeeds Winchester obstetrician James F. McDonough as chairman of obstetrics and gynecology, has been a member of the Winchester Hospital staff since beginning his practice in 1955. He has served the medical staff as both secretary—treasurer and assistant secretary—treasurer.

A graduate of Boston College, Dr. O'Grady received his M.D. from Tufts Medical School. He served his internship at Boston City Hospital and completed a residency in obstetrics there, and at Walter Reid Army Hospital.

A fellow of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Dr. O'Grady is also a diplomate of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Epiphany Church To Host Choral Concert Sunday

The Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church st., will present Musica Sagra on Sunday, at 4 p.m. This choral group, organized about 25 years ago, is based at University Lutheran Church, Cambridge, and is made up of 25 amateur musicians.

They have given concerts at Gardner Museum, at the annual meeting of The American Guild of Organists, and at various north and south shore churches.

The program will feature "The Sacred and the Profane" by Benjamin Britten and will also include works by Poulenc, Purcell, and Brahms.

A free-will offering will benefit the organ fund. The public is invited.

Copies of the Century Publications Guide for Publicity Chairmen are available at no charge in the offices of The Arlington Advocate, The Belmont Citizen and The Winchester Star. The guide tells new publicity chairmen how to submit information about their groups for publication and what kinds of pictures are suitable for publication.

Chamber Orchestra To Be In Concert Saturday At First Congregational

The Mystic Valley Chamber Orchestra will present its third concert of the 1978-79 season with performances at the First Congregational Church, Church street, on Saturday, at 8:15 p.m.; and at the First and Second Church of Boston, 66 Marlborough st., Back Bay, at 3 p.m. on Sunday.

The orchestra will feature pianist Anne Franciose of Winchester.

Franciose will be performing Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 in C minor, Opus 37. A native of Massachusetts she received her musical training at Oberlin College, the New England Conservatory, and the Mozarteum Akademie in Salzburg.

In addition to many concert appearances in Germany and Austria, Franciose has performed extensively in New England and the mid-west, appearing as soloist, and with numrous chamber ensembles. Her area appearances have included concert performances at Symphony Hall, Jordan Hall, Emmanuel College, and the Isbella Stewart Gardner Museum.

From 1970 to 1978, Franciose was a member of the music faculty of the University of Vermont where she taught piano, theory, pedagogy, and music history. She has also taught at Lyndon - College, Goddard College, and St. Michaels College, all in Vermont. From 1960 to 1963 she was a faculty member of the preparatory department at the New England Conservatory of music.

Franciose moved to Winchester in 1978. She continues to perform and teaches locally.

Tickets for the February program are $2, $1 for students and senior citizens. They can be bought at the door or reserved by calling 729-3773, or 876-1059.

Bloodmobile At Mall Today, 10 a.m.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit the Burlington Mall today from 10 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. at Mall Entrance Three.

Anyone in good health, over 110 pounds and between the ages of 18 and 66 is eligible to donate every eight weeks or up to five times each year.

Appointments may be made by calling the Mall office, 272-5833. Walk-ins are welcome.

Bloodmobile Donors Named

Because the Red Cross Bloodmobile which was to have visited the Holton street industrial area Jan. 18, was inoperative, the blood donor unit set up its operations at the Red Cross chapter house on Church street instead.

The companies which participated included the F.D.A. Health Lab, sponsor of the Bloodmobile, Micro-Dynamics, American Pacemaker, and L.L. Rowe.

In spite of the work interruption, 32 employees of the Holton street industries came to the chapter house to donate. Twenty four pints of blood were collected. Those who volunteered to donate included Laurence Ahern, Kathleen Allard, Edward Bernat, William Boivin, Pauline Carbonneau, John Carrick, Warren Church, Charles Culhane, Linda Dauphinais, Donald Duncan, and Alexander Ferragamo.

Also John Fitzgerald, Neil Gaeta, Thomas Hagan, Jan Holland, Susan Hopping, Anthony LaVecchio, Beverly LaVecchio, Richard Mason, Richard Medeiros and Richard Needham.

Auxiliary Capt. Connelly Honored At Retirement Party

Auxiliary police Capt. James Connelly was guest of honor recently at a party given to celebrate his retirement from the Auxiliary Police Department. The party was held at Randall's Restaurant and sponsored by the Auxiliary Police Association.

Capt. Connelly retired after 26 years as a member of the auxiliary. During his time in service, Capt. Connelly donated many thousands of hours to the volunteer organizaion, even serving for a period as civil defense director for Winchester.

Featured guests of the evening were state Sen. Sam Rotondi, state Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh and chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Edward O'Connell.

Sen. Rotondi spoke in praise of Capt. Connelly's role as a fully participating citizen, stressing the need within a democracy for people who accept the responsibilities of citizenship.

Rep. Saltmarsh pointed out the unique quality that unselfish volunteer efforts contribute to the community.

O'Connell expressed the gratitude of the town for the many citizens who volunteer to serve as exemplified by Captain "Jim."

Commemorative plaques from both the state senate and state house of representatives were presented to Connelly by Rotondi and Saltmarsh.

Personal congratulations were extended by retired chief of police, Edward Bowler, chief of Police, John McHugh, Fire Department chief, Robert McElhinney, and retired, auxiliary police chief, Frederick Weir, all of whom worked with Capt. Connelly during his service years.

The evening was hosted by Mr. John Drougas, owner of Randall's and a sergeant of the auxiliary police.

Bartlett School Accepts '79-80 Enrollments

The Bartlett School, 83 Church st., is now accepting enrollments for 1979-80. Bartlett School was founded in 1933 by the mother of the present director, Norine T. Casey, and was located on Bartlett avenue in Arlington for many years.

Casey received her AB from Wellesley College and the MA in teaching degree from Radcliffe. At the request of parents to enlarge Bartlett School, Casey moved the school to its new location in September 1978.

Grades seven and eight were added to the kindergarten class (4 year olds) subprimary class (five year olds) and grades one to six. The move to the new location meant that the gym, music and art programs could be expanded and an after school sports program added as well. The emphasis on traditional education remained.

Children in the kindergarten class work with letters and numbers as well as art media and rhythm and music activities. Those in the sub-primary start the Bartlett phonics program by means of which they learn to read pre-primers. They also print simple sentences, master simple addition and subtraction problems and do art and music activities.

Kindergarten and sub-primary classes are from 9 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. Monday through Friday. The children in these classes have time each morning for a supervised freeplay on the playground or in the classroom as well as the structured morning activities.

Students in grade one, among other tasks, continue the Bartlett phonics program, learn cursive writing as well as printing and read first and second grade readers.

Starting in grade two children learn to write simple book reports and these as well as research reports are then due frequently in all the grades at Bartlett. Children master all addition and subtraction facts in grade two and the multiplication tables in grade three paving the way for advanced math in the upper grades, pre-algebra in grade seven and algebra in grade eight.

Weekly compositions or poems are due in every grade, corrected and copied into student's folders. The structure of our language is stressed with grammar texts used in grade three through eight and reading of all the fine children's classics required at each level.

Social studeis texts and workbooks are used at every grade level to help to develop an understanding of our culture in comparison with others. In science, an Audubon trained teacher augments the classroom discussions and many simple experiements in classrooms make this subject exciting to the children.

In grade seven science stress is on biology including labwork and in grade eight the stress is on Earth Science.

Field trips taken include visits to all the local museums, The Boston Globe, Freedom Trail, a one day trip to New York and an overnight hiking trip. French is taught as a minor subject in grades four, five and six, and becomes a major subject in grades seven and eight.

Homework is begun in lower grades with the expected amount increased each year. Parental cooperation is encouraged and one of the eight week report cards (March 1) is given out during individual conferences.

Parents have also formed the Bartlett School Development Fund. Moneys obtained at home parties and at the annual dinner dance have been used to buy extra audio visual or gym equipment and to bring monthly cultural enrichment activities to the school.

Children in Bartlett School are presently enrolled from 11 different communities. Transportation is available for children in Winchester and communities bordering Winchester. Class size is kept small and modest tuition fees are payable monthly. Interested parents are encouraged to call the Bartlett School to make a personal appointmnent.

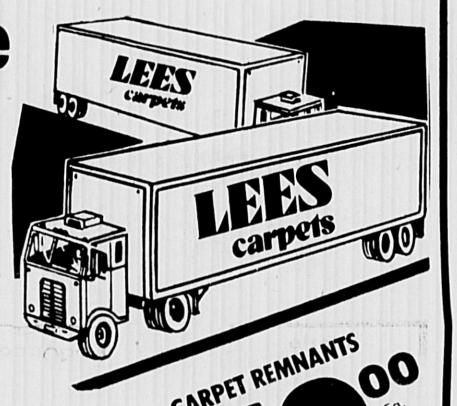

Winchester residents elected to the corporation of the Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford are seated, left Rebecca M. Robinson of 11 Samoset rd. and Jean G. Carley of 1 Lantern ln. Other new corporators are Elizabeth B. Owens of Medford and standing, left, John W. Price of Reading and John J. Cabral of Medford. The election was held at the hospital's annual meeting.

Special Gifts For First Quarter Given By EnKa Society

At the January luncheon meeting of the Enka Society, held at the Church of the Epiphany, Jan. 30, recipients of first quarter gifts from the organization were announced.

Presented with funds were Winchester Youth Hockey, the Lynch Junior High football banquet, the Joint Area Emergency Shelter Project, and new equipment for the radio station), the ABC House, the Music Exchange Program at the high school, and the Winchester Scholarship Foundation.

Finance Committee chairman, Mrs. Henry R. Delaney Jr. made the announcement to a large group of members at the luncheon prepared and served by Mrs. Jenness P. Eugley, and her committee.

Before the regular business meeting, club president, Mrs. Frank M. Gunby Jr. asked the group to observe a moment of silence in memory of three recently deceased members, Mrs. William Beggs, past president, 1926 to 1927, Mrs. Dunbar L. Shanklin, and Mrs. Robert B.L. Singer.

She then asked for a report by social service chairman, Mrs. James E. Barger who supplied details of the "Meals On Wheels" service, a project designed to provide two meals daily (one hot, and one cold) to Winchester senior citizens needing such help.

Enka which is partially funding the administration of the service, and which has also provided special carrying cases for the meals, is also supplying volunteers from its membership to deliver the meals on Mondays and Tuesdays. Rotary Club and Church Women United will deliver meals on other days. All meals will be prepared and picked up at Winchester H9spital. Mrs. Robert Hughes, an Enka member has been appointed coordinator of the program.

In further business, Mrs. William Everett, chairman of this year's Enka Fair reminded members of the fair dates, May 18 and 19, and said that fair plans were coming along well, with a new company providing rides and booth's this year.

Mrs. Gunby, then introduced the guest speaker of the afternoon, Jack R. Hunter, senior vice president of the Winchester Hsopital. Hunter explained the hospital's study of future plans which will be formulated with the help of a Boston-based professional consulting firm. Together they are investigating the feasibility of consolodating services of three area hospitals, Winchester, Symmes, and Choate.

Globe Travel Editor To Speak To Town's Mt. Holyoke Club

Christina M. Tree, associate travel editor of The Boston Globe, will be the featured speaker at the next meeting of the Winchester Mount Holyoke Alumnae Club on Wednesday, 7:45 p.m. at the home of Helen Ryan, 8 Grove st.

Her subject will be "Exploring Massachusetts." Tree is the author of How New England Happened, published by Little Brown in 1977, and Massachusetts: An Explorer's Guide, in press.

A 1965 graduate of Mount Holyoke College, Tree is the mother of three sons and the wife of William Davis, travel editor of The Boston Globe.

Toastmistress Club To Hold Speech Contest Monday Night

The Winchester Toastmistress Club will hold its annual speech contest Monday, 8 p.m., in Suter room of the Church of the Epiphany, 70 Church st.

Speeches will be given by Mrs. Aldo J. Pietrantoni of Medford, Mrs. Preston Johnson of Melrose, and Mrs. Daniel A. Murray of Somerville.

Judges for the contest will be Thomas H. Fallon, attorney and a member of the Malden School Committee; Constance Morrill, director, Studio of Speech, Winchester; Dorothy Staffier, former member of Winchester Toastmistress Club, and Michele MacCumbee, member of Boston Toastmistress Club. Mrs. Jospeh Darish of Malden, is the chairman of the Speech Contest.

Toastmistress training deals with the total personality. Members receive personal assignments for study and practice. From simple speech situations each advances in graduated assignements to formal speech including speech organization, voice and delivery. The speech contestants will demonstrate these sills. Each speech will be original and given for the first time.

All are welcome and admission is free.

For Senior Citizens ...

A Valentine's Day party will be held at the Jenks Senior Center next Wednesday, beginning at 1:30 p.m. and running until 3:00 p.m. Those interested in attending should sign up by today, noting whether they will bring cookies or cake to the party.

Senior citizens interested in snowshoeing or walking in the woods are asked to call Claire or Mal Masters at 729-1039. Plenty of snowshoes are available, according to the Winchester Council on Aging and Seniors Association.

The Council on Aging reminds senior citizens to cancel ahead of time if they are unable to keep appointments with the Keep-Well Clinic. There has been a change in the meeting dates for the clinic, now being held on the first and third Thursdays of the month.

The Council on Aging would like to find out how many residents would be interested in having a "TTY" (an electronic telephone-telegraph system) installed in the Winchester Public Library.

The machines enable persons with severe hearing loss to communicate by telephone, deaf-to-deaf, or hearing-to-deaf. Those who are interested are asked to write or call the Jenks Senior Center.

A multi-art class is now being run every Tuesday morning from 10 to 12. The class features acrylics, pastels, watercolor and charcoal drawing. The Council on Aging welcomes all senior citizens to join the class, taught by Lillian Barnes. Sign-up is not necessary.

The Council on Aging is planning to try out a new idea: those senior citizens who would enjoy a bus trip, but can't afford one, are invited to submit their name, by phone or by letter, for a drawing.

Slips with the entries will be drawn from a box on the Monday before an upcoming trip and at least two names drawn will win a free day trip.

Dances for senior citizens are held on Mondays and Tuesdays at the Jenks Senior Center. The Council on Aging invites seniors to join come and enjoy ballroom, line and disco dancing on Mondays and square dances on Tuesdays. Those interested can call the Jenks Senior Center for more information.

On Monday, a representative from the new Regional Housing Assistance Program will be at the Jenks Senior Center to describe a new home-sharing program for the elderly. The program is an effort to match older persons in search of housing with area homeowners and-or apartment owners, preferably elderly, looking for roommates.

The Council on Aging urges those interested in finding out more about the free services offered by the H.A.P. to attend.

Also on Monday, there will be a training session for individuals interested in working on the information-referral phone lines. Training time is 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Those who are interested are asked to call 729-2111.

The widowed-to-widowed program, set up to help those in widowhood, is open to persons of all ages. Meetings are held on the second and fourth Fridays of the month, at 2 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center.

On Feb. 21, there will be an hour-and-a-half tour and film presentation on the Boston Edison Mystic power plant, the largest electric generator in New England. A discussion of nuclear and fossil energy will also be included in the program.

The recreation department at 729-4514 has more information on the tour. Those participating will leave the Jenks Senior Center at 9:15 a.m. and return at noon. Cost of the trip is $1.50. The Council on Aging invites those attending to bring their own bag lunches and to eat at the Jenks Center after the trip.

On The Cover

The Deer Hunter opens Friday at the Charles in Boston, and is sure to be the most talked-about event of the week, and of some weeks to come. Directed by Michael Cimino, from a screenplay by Cimino, Deric Washburn, Louis Garfinkle, and Quinn K. Redeker, The Deer Hunter stars Robert De Niro, John Cazale, John Savage, Meryl Streep, and Christopher Walken. Tickets are by advance sale, and cost $4 to $5.

The Deer Hunter is about five friends who grew up together in Clairton, a Pennsylvania steel town, worked together in the mills, hunted deer together, and, as the movie opens, have come to a parting of the ways: Stephen (John Savage) is getting married, and he, Michael (Robert De Niro), and Nick (Christopher Walken) are going to Viet Nam. The wedding scene, with its deer-hunting coda, takes up the first hour of the film. The war fills the middle third. In the last hour, the survivors try to put themselves back together.

The first hour lulls you along. The wedding is charming in its authenticity, and every scene brings a smile. The reception is held in a Legion hall festooned with bunting, and is also a farewell party for Michael, Stephen, and Nick: their high school pictures hang on the wall. It's fun, and bittersweet: you are being set up. You know that the three of them are going to war, you know that all hell is about to break loose. As a premonition, Cimino makes a little footnote in the action. A Green Beret in battle dress walks into the bar. "What's it like over in Nam?" He swears and stares into space. It's a chilling moment and it's over. The party goes on.

After the wedding, there is one last deer hunt for the five friends. Michael comes into his own. He's the natural leader of the group, the one who passes on the right, who stalks his buck with singular efficiency, who gives himself a single shot. Michael is the leader, and he looks after his friends.

The hour of The Deer Hunter that is set in Viet Nam is impossible. The pace here is quick and nightmarish. Michael's theory of the single shot becomes the leit• motif of the film: you have one chance to beat the odds, as often as the chance comes. For someone with Michael's clarity of vision, beating the odds is bravado, or survival. For someone else, the theory can get all twisted up into an exhilaration which is an end in itself.

Michael is a survivor and the survivors come home. The forms of life in Clairton are the same. The bar and the bowling alley, the steel mills and the corner store are still there. The old gang goes hunting again. But it's all wrong now. Time and the war have taken every perception and driven it askew. There is an empty chair, a crippled friend, the winners and the losers.

De Niro and Walken are superb as spirited young men and burnt-out soldiers. In supporting roles, John Cazale and Meryl Streep give performances that are sharp in every detail. The Deer Hunter is not a film to enjoy. No one could walk out of the theatre and say, "I loved every minute." But many people will say, "What a movie." It's a tour de force that won't easily be forgotten.

Local Talent On Record

There's a cornucopia of records by local talent available to warm anyone's turntable this winter.

By Michael Howell

I don't know about you, but the way my car fishtails in the snow, I'm not too anxious to dash out club-hopping during the winter months. In the past, that meant that I would have to neglect many of my favorite live bands for whatever Columbia or Warner-Electra-Atlantic thought I'd like to hear. I prayed for an early spring.

Not this winter. There's a cornucopia of records by local talent available to warm anyone's turntable, many on small self-produced labels (and housed in self-decorated sleeves). While none of these have the production values of, say, the Bee Gees, some are surprisingly worthy entries. Some of the others . . . well, vinyl is recyclable, after all.

You may have to search a little for most of these. The Coop, Discount Records (particularly the one on Washington Street in Boston), and New England Music City are well-stocked and reliable. Strawberries and Popcorn should have a few as well. Wherever you go, it doesn't hurt to ask.

Most of these records are 45s with two or three songs. Expect to spend about $1 to $1.50 on each. That's more expensive than your regular commercial single, but think of these as limited edition collector's items—which they are. They're also a lot of fun.

All Together Now

Live At The Rat (Rat Records) is a double album recorded "as it happened" in Boston's most famous underground club. It features freewheeling selections from Willie Alexander and the Boom-Boom Band, DMZ, Sass, Thundertrain, The Infliktors, The Real Kids, Susan, The Boize, and Marc Thor. Some of the bands (Willie, Real Kids) went on to record contracts, some disappeared, and DMZ did both. This record will appeal to you basic hard-rockers, since there's not much evidence of the pop influence that's creeping into the local sound these days here. The record is over two years old; nevertheless, it isn't a bad place to begin.

Rockers

Good old guitar electroshock has never gone out of style and probably never will. Although far from the heavy metal capital of the world, the greater Boston area has produced some notable hard-driving bands. The Johnny Barnes Group is no more (a situation that will recur throughout this article), but their searing single Steelrail Blues (Nightcrawler) lives on. Play it back-to-back with the Nervous Eaters' Loretta (Rat Records) for a one-two punch that will liven up any party. I've already written about La Peste's Better Off Dead (Black Records), so I'll just reiterate that it is one hot, even scary, record. The Stompers have taken their Springsteen-influenced sound into the studio and come up with I'm In Trouble (Double Eagle), which features a nifty yakking sax.

Those four are pretty sure-fire, but there are several other discs that have their merits. The Real Kids' album on Red Star records doesn't have the drive or the charm of the Kids in person, but has its moments. You'd be best off borrowing someone else's copy first. Third Rail is an interesting band that seems to change personnel too often to fully jell. Their first single, on Rat Records, paired their Rodney Rush (a horror-movie type song culled from the Rat's live album) with a gentle version of Lou Reed's Sweet Jane, with a flute yet. Now they're on Spoonfed Records, a California-based label, and have released a new single on blue vinyl, It's Over Now. Although I enjoyed the guitar work, I can't say that I'd recommend it. In fact, I liked the flip side better. Compulsive completists might like to know that it was ably produced by The Cars' rhythm machine, Ric Ocasek. The historically-minded might like to know about Spoonfed's other relatively new release, the long-unavailable album by the band that arguably started all this in 1965, Barry and the Remains. An excellent single, Why Do I Cry?, is out on blue vinyl as well.

Pop Stars

Local heart-throbs Andy and Jonathan Paley have an album on Sire Records called The Paley Brothers. A lot of people like their Beach Boys/bubblegum sound, though it leaves me cold. They went from The Paradise to opening for Shaun Cassidy, so that may be a tip-off. Your little sister might like their album or their two singles, Hide and Seek and Tell Me Tonight.

Revere's own Euphoria Records is an incubator for Boston's answer to the Mersey Beat, the Charles Beat. Mr Curt has a delightfully twisted single, When I Turn Out The Light/I'm Going Blind, which is fun for grown-up pop fans. Former METROGUIDE subject Ray Paul and his band RPM still have Lady Be Mine Tonight, but are resisting temptation to release anything else pending a possible record deal. Get this while you can.

The old Orchestra Luna, which used to confound people by doing a hammy version of You Gotta Have Heart from the musical Damn Yankees is back as a power pop outfit, Luna. Judging from their Hooray for Hollywood (Titanium), things haven't changed much.

The Tweeds, on Autobaun Records, are working towards an airy sound with a good beat behind the harmonies. It worked wonders for Bread and the Vogues, and when they perfect it, it'll work fantastically for them, too. Until then, Underwater Girl is the best of their three attractive, if not fully realized, singles.

Big Time

Boston, J Geils (coming back home for a concert this week), Aerosmith and the Cars, of course. The Cars' debut album exceeded everyone's wildest expectations, both commercially and aesthetically — now, even Rolling Stone's calling them the best band of 1978. I've worn out a couple of copies of that first release, and am eagerly awaiting their second (recording begins in February, in Los Angeles). The Blend, a likeable band, have their first release, prosaically titled The Blend, out on MCA. All of these bands are inspirations to the local scene, examples that, with luck and talent, lightning can strike.

Eccentrics

I've saved the best for last. These bands are not made up of crazies, but because of their images, or their attitudes, or their subject matter, they might be a little hard to explain. This is a large part of their charm. And remember, a lot of people think Frank Zappa is just an eccentric, too.

No review of local music — or local eccentrics — would be complete without Willie "Loco" Alexander. A longtime punk patriarch, Willie has a let-it-all-out gum-chewing ga-ga style that must be seen to be appreciated. His original singles on Garage Records — (now on Bomp Records) Kerouac/Mass Ave and You Looked So Pretty When/Hit Her Wid De Axe — are frenetic rock classics. When he (and the Boom-Boom Band) signed with MCA, his records lost a lot of that hellzapoppin' style that made them so impressive, although they'll be worth investigating when they show up in the cut-out bins. Screaming nonsense syllables, maniacally chewing gum, and pounding his world-weary electric piano, he's a local legend — and deservedly so. His latest solo single, Dirty Eddie (on Somar Records) shows him back in his anarchic form.

Perhaps the closest runner-up to Willie as Boston's most prominent eccentric is Count Viglione, who performs his own compositions wearing a Dracula cape. His own Varulven label has released two EPs by him and his band, Auguste Phenomenon. The best one features a tribute to the guitar-masters of rock (Guitarmaster), with exciting lead work by local journeyman Fred Pineau. Varulven has also released an EP by Unnatural Axe, featuring the sickie classic, They Saved Hitler's Brain. This relentless ditty has some clever lines and convincing screams. The other songs are pretty good, too. You won't hear any of them on the radio.

Although I've arbitrarily labeled this last grouping as "eccentrics," all the bands I've talked about could be called that. They're doing something that no one was doing just a few years ago: making their own music and putting it out on their own records. The fact that some records are less successful than others shouldn't deter them— and many others — from putting out still more records. Just the thought makes me pray for snow.

Reading | Broadway Down East

Broadway Down East means pleasant exploring for those who love theatre, those who like theatre, and those who "just adore the theatah" but never go to shows.

Broadway Down East
By Elliot Norton, published by the Boston Public Library, 156 pages. $8 at the BPL, about $10 elsewhere.

By Vivian Noble

Broadway Down East: An Informal Account of the Plays, Players and Playhouses of Boston from Puritan Times to the Present is the long-winded title of critic Elliot Norton's newly-published book. It is not, as the title might suggest, an enormous, weighty volume that one might be inclined to scan, ferreting out tidbits of genuine interest every five pages or so. It is an informative, over-sized paperback, filled with trivia and analyses and beautiful photographs. And though the price is too high for a soft-cover book, Broadway Down East means pleasant exploring for those who love theatre, those who like theatre, and those who "just adore the theatah" but never go to shows.

The book is based on a series of lectures that Norton gave in the spring of 1977 at the Boston Public Library, which accounts for its light, conversational tone. One roves happily through tales of the actors and plays that have visited Boston, details about past local productions and stars.

One also journeys, not so blithely, through the sadder side of Boston's theatrical past — magnificent playhouses that were razed to make room for highways, or were converted into movie houses, and the rampant censorship that made "banned in Boston" a stock phrase. Norton devotes an entire chapter to each, and thank G-d for that. From John Hancock and Sam Adams all the way up to 20th century audiences and so-called city censors, Boston theatre has been under attack, and that hasn't done much for box office returns. There's also the problem of Boston's evolution into a "try-out" town. Since the nation's theatrical gaze focused on New York in this century, Boston has been a second-stringer, a place where shows are fiddled with and perfected before they head to Broadway. Especially now, with costs rising all the time, producers are often reluctant to bring pre-

Broadway shows to Boston at all. Despite Kevin White's proclamations, and those bright, ragged banners floating over the "Theatre District," Boston theatre is in rough shape now. Norton puts a much-needed historical perspective on the whole mess here.

The text of Broadway Down East is complemented by reproductions of old playbills and portraits of the stars who've visited or resided in Boston, in addition to pictures of theatres. It is an altogether striking layout. Whoever did it should have been credited, and wasn't.

Many other things should have happened here, and didn't, too. Some of the lectures, it says, have been "amplified for publication," and one wishes that some radical surgery had been performed as well. Poor Dame Judith Anderson, who played Hamlet in Boston for one night back in 1971, comes under Norton's bludgeon no less than three times for that sole performance. Maybe she was terrible; but we needn't hear about it over and over. And is the Next Move Theatre's only claim to fame the thrice-repeated fact that the company made a theatre out of what used to be a horse stable? This isn't merely an "informal account"; on occasion, it's a repetitious one that is on its knees begging for an editor.

Be this as it may, Broadway Down East is a book that's certainly fine for a winter's night read. If you're on a tight budget, take it out of the library; then spend some money on a ticket to a show. If you're not, buy the book and a theatre ticket. In the spirit of the book, it's the best thing you could do.

Another Opening — George C. Scott in the underworld, in Hardcore, which opens Friday.

Hardcore

The jaded thrillseeker will be disappointed in Hardcore, a new film starring George C Scott as a distraught father in search of his runaway daughter, as its R rating precludes any serious porn, despite the risqué title. The seeker of scuzz, however, will be richly rewarded. Hardcore purports to be high-minded and moralizing; it's really a rip-off for kicks of the seamy porno life it claims to be exposing. Director Paul Schrader (who wrote Taxi Driver) has hit an air pocket with this one, and George C Scott's appearance can only be explained as temporary insanity. With Peter Boyle and Season Hubley. Paris; Brockton, Circle, Dedham, Hanover, Natick, Peabody, Woburn.

The Great Train Robbery

From Michael Crichton's book, and directed by him, an intelligent caper movie with a lot of atmosphere. Set in Victorian times, before the invention of dynamite, the "perfect crime" is the heist of thousands of pounds of gold, from specially constructed safes inside a locked boxcar, while the train is moving. It all depends as much on set-up as on execution, and Sean Connery is a cool mastermind. Donald Sutherland, as the cracksman, has a little trouble deciding what accent to use, but otherwise he comes off splendidly. Lesley-Anne Down is a decorative gun-moll in a part that is a write-off until the last scene. The sets that are obviously sets contribute to the period feel, and the robbery itself is alternately funny and thrilling. Charles; Brockton, Danvers, Dedham, Natick, Woburn.

Another Show — Donald Sutherland and Sean Connery hit pay dirt in The Great Train Robbery, starting Friday.

Smorgasbord Time!

at Form-in-Teak

Whether your family is large or small; whether you entertain lavishly or intimately, this unique dining ensemble from Form-in-Teak is sure to add style to your meal times.

The table comes in your choice of Teak, Rosewood, or brown stained Oak. Ornamental, yet functional ceramic inlaid tiles run through the center of each table, and there are three designs of tile to choose from. The chairs, made in wood to match the table, are upholstered in a fine grade of wool.

On the matching buffet, the ceramic tiles are available on top of the buffet or on the front of the doors that open to reveal finely designed shelf space. The upper, or hutch portion of the buffet features additional shelves behind sliding smoked glass panels. Hutch and buffet may be purchased separately or as one unit. But, either way, you'll have the perfect place to keep your dining room finery!

At Form-in-Teak, we have furniture for other rooms in your home as well. Come in and browse, and enjoy the smooth and special look of Scandinavian.

8 Thursday

Poetry and Music

A benefit poetry reading with Denise Levertov, Karen Lindsey, and Marge Piercy, with music provided by Jennifer Hastings, is set for 8 tonight at the Arlington Street Church, 355 Boylston Street, in Boston. The distinguished poets and writers are supporting the cause of Grace Paley, who was arrested for demonstrating against nuclear weapons and power on the White House lawn this past Labor Day. Paley will also be present. A $2 donation is requested at the door. For additional information call 354-0008.

Niklaus Wyss

Niklaus Wyss debuts as guest conductor with the Boston Symphony Orchestra tonight at 8. The program includes the first BSO performance of Mahler's Symphony No 10 in F Sharp as well as Mozart's Second Flute Concerto in D, featuring BSO principal Doriot Anthony Dwyer on flute. The same program will be performed tomorrow at 2 pm, and Saturday at 8 pm. For information and ticket availability call 266-1492. All performances are at Symphony Hall, 251 Huntington Avenue, in Boston.

9 Friday

Richard Leakey

Paleo-anthropologist Richard Leakey, known for his research into the theories of man's evolution, gives a lecture tonight at 7 at Hayden Auditorium, 685 Comm Ave, in Boston. Admission is $8, with tickets available at the Boston University ticket office at the Sherman Student Union, 775 Comm Ave, in Boston. For more information call 326-8672 or 353-2921. Proceeds from the lecture go to the Foundation for Research into the Origins of Man.

Andres Segovia

Andres Segovia, the world-famous classical guitarist, gives a Symphony Hall concert tonight at 8. The program includes works by Milan, De Narvaez, Bach, Sor, Albeniz, and others. Tickets are $6.50, $7.50, and $8.50, available at the box office, 251 Huntington Avenue, in Boston. For more information call 266-1492.

Horsing Around

The Lippizan Stallions, renowned for their almost ballet-like precision come to the Hynes Auditorium, 900 Boylston Street, in Boston today through Sunday. Tonight's performance is at 8; tomorrow and Sunday the shows are at 2 pm. Tickets are $4.50, $5.50, and $7.50, available at the box office (262-8019), Ticketron, and Concert Charge (426-8181).

Narratives

The world premiere performance of Narratives, by Earl Kim, based on texts by Samuel Beckett, opens tonight at 8:30 in the Loeb Drama Center. The work is a music/theatre piece starring actress Irene Worth. The Ariel Chamber Ensemble provides the orchestration. Narratives is presented Sunday and Monday as well, also at 8:30 pm. The Loeb Drama Center is at 64 Brattle Street, in Cambridge. Tickets for tonight cost $8.50, the other two nights go for $6.50. For ticket information call 864-2630.

10 Saturday

Cyclorama

The Cyclorama Flea Market brings a bit of history alive through period clothing, antique furniture, attic collectibles, and more, today and tomorrow. Highlights include collectible phonograph records, oriental objects d'art, a commemorative stamp collection, and a selection of 18th century furniture featuring examples of the Victorian style. It's all at the Boston Center for the Arts, 539 Tremont Street, in Boston. Today's hours are from noon to 9 pm, tomorrow's are from noon to 7 pm. Admission is $1.50. If you're driving in, a free shuttle bus service runs from the John Hancock Garage in Copley Square to the Cyclorama. For all the details, call 426-8196.

Camellia Show

The 150th annual Camellia Show, featuring camellias in all their color and glory, is on today and tomorrow at Boston's Horticultural Hall. In all, 76 classes of camellias will be judged. The show also features orchids, cut flowers, and Valentine bouquets available for the buying. Hours are from 1 to 5 pm today and 10 am to 5 pm tomorrow. Horticultural Hall is at 300 Mass Ave, in Boston. The show is free. Call 536-9280 for additional information.

Emil and the Detectives

The mystery adventury story, Emil and the Detectives, about young Emil's exciting trip to Germany, is presented, beginning today, at the Next Move Theatre, 955 Boylston Street in Boston. The curtain goes up at 2 pm, and admission is $3, $2 for kids. For more information, and for the rest of the performance schedule, call 536-0600.

J Geils Band

The J Geils Band comes home to Boston tonight at 7:30 at the Boston Garden, North Station, in Boston. The hard-rockers have virtually sold out the Garden, leaving only less-than-prime seats still available for the less-than-modest price of $7.50. Tickets, such as they are, are available at the box office (227-3200), Ticketron, Strawberries, and Out-of-Town.

The Shadow, seen in the strictly impressionistic rendering above, is honored in a 2-day tribute at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel Saturday and Sunday.

The Shadow Knows

Nostalgia comes to Boston today in the form of a tribute to The Shadow — the legendary radio and pulp magazine character whose heyday spanned the Thirties through the Fifties. Walter Gibson, the creator of The Shadow is on hand, as are dealer tables with comic books, film, radio, and television memorabilia. Panel discussions with comic book illustrators and a magic show by Gibson are other highlights. The tribute is on today and tomorrow, with a special all-night film marathon set to begin at 8 pm tonight and lasting till 7 am tomorrow. Admission is $3 per day, or $5 for both days. The place is the Sheraton-Boston Hotel, 39 Dalton Street, in Boston. Hours are 10 am to 8 pm today, 10 am to 5 pm tomorrow. Call 236-2000 for all the details.

11 Sunday

All About the Harpsichord

Everything you've ever wanted to know about the harpsichord is explained today by Geoffrey Thomas, proficient on said instrument. Thomas not only tells you how the instrument works and its history, he also performs works by Bach, Rameau, and Bohm. The lecture/recital takes place at 4 pm at the Art Complex Museum, 189 Alden Street, in Duxbury. The program is free. Call 934-6634 for more information.

Hammond's Other Castles

A new exhibition opening today at the Hammond Museum is called Hammond's Other Castles. It is devoted to recently uncovered documents and drawings that shed new light on the architectural forebears of the present Hammond Castle. Dr James O'Gorman, professor of American art and architecture at Wellesley College, speaks on the subject of the exhibition. It's all happening at the Hammond Museum, 80 Hesperus Avenue, in Gloucester at 5:30 pm. Admission is $1, and members get in free. Call 283-2080 for more information.

12 Monday

Geology Then and Now

There have been some geological changes in Essex County in the past 90 years, as Sarah Robbins illustrates today in Geology Then and Now, a lecture given tonight at 8 at the Peabody Museum of Salem. Basically, what Robbins plans to do is compare her own recent photographs of the county to those taken nearly a century ago by geologist John Sears. The lecture is sponsored by the Essex County Ornithological Club, which is apparently interested in more than birds, and it is free. For all the particulars, call 745-1876.

Winter in Winter

The albino rocker, Johnny Winter, is still on the concert circuit, and tonight he's playing the Paradise, 967 Comm Ave in Boston. His sole show starts at 9:30, and tickets are going fast. Try your luck at the box office (254-2052), or Ticketron, Strawberries, Gracia Tickets in Worcester, and the Ticket Centers in Acton and Concord.

13 Tuesday

India at the MFA

The Grand Mogul: Imperial Paintings in India is the title of Boston's Museum of Fine Arts' latest show, which opens today. The paintings can be viewed from 10 am to 9 pm today, and if you come in after 5 pm, admission is free. Otherwise, it's $1.75 for those over the age of 16, and don't forget the $1 parking charge. Members, of course, get the whole package without charge. For more information on museum hours and so forth, call A-N-S-W-E-R-S. The museum is located at 470 Huntington Avenue in Boston.

Ice Follies

Here for its annual visit, the Ice Follies opens tonight at 7:30 at Boston Garden, right in town at North Station. Stars this time around include former champion skater Peggy Fleming, and some rather large, ice-bound Muppets; tickets range from $7.50 to $4.50. There is a wide range of subsequent show times, and for information on them, you can call 227-3206. To charge your tickets, call 742-0200 any day from 10 am to 6 pm. The Ice Follies wander about the Garden until February 25.

14 Wednesday

St Valentine's Day

St Valentine's Day has always been a Christian holiday, concocted in honor of several saints named Valentine and celebrated on February 14. The way in which we celebrate it, though, dates back to the ancient Romans' Lupercalia. Held on February 15, Lupercalia was a lovers' feast day, during which young people were paired off by drawing lots. They would then exchange gifts and, perhaps, progress a bit further. Many marriages resulted from meetings on that day. In 496, Pope Gelasius resolved to Christianize it all and so decreed that Lupercalia be set back one day and be incorporated into St Valentine's Day.

Ahmad Jamal

Ahmad Jamal plays his elegant and eloquent jazz piano riffs tonight and Thursday night at Lulu White, 3 Appleton Street in Boston. Sets each night are at 9:30, 11, and 12:30; the cover charge is $4. In case of question, Lulu's can be reached at 423-3652.

CURRENT

The All Night Strut–A sizzling celebration of the Thirties and Forties, at the Boston Repertory Theatre, 1 Boylston Pl, in Boston. Show times are Tues-Thurs at 8 pm, Fri-Sat at 7 and 9:30 pm, Sunday at 3 pm. Tickets are $6, $7, and $8 Mon-Thurs, $7, $8, $9 Fri-Sat, available at the box office (423-6580) and at major agencies. This show is enjoying so much popularity that its run has been extended yet again, for the 5th time, through March 11.
Beatlemania–You may find teens screaming from the balcony; you may also experience a degree of deafness, since this production is more a concert than theatre proper, replete with a big light show of images from the Sixties. What you won't find are the Beatles — the four chaps here, more or less physically resembling the Fab Four, don't reincarnate the group as much as plod through Lennon/McCartney classics. Beatlemania runs through February 18 at the Shubert Theatre, 265 Tremont St in Boston. The schedule for performances is Tues-Fri at 8 pm, Sat at 2, 7, and 10 pm, Sun at 3 pm. Tickets run the gamut from $9 to $16.50. For the vast majority of your information, call the Shubert at 426-4520.
Measure for Measure–Shakespeare's comedy twinged with drama is given an odd treatment by the Boston Shakespeare Company. Their slap-stick routines often oversadow the text, which is as it shouldn't be. The show (for indeed it is a show — of something very strange) hits the boards every Thurs and Sat through March 3 (during this time, Measure is in repertory with Molière's The Miser and Shakespeare's Twelfth Night); then March 14 and every Wed thereafter, until April 11. All performances are at 8 pm, with the exception of February 1, at 7:30 pm. Prices range from $6-$4, depending on when you go and where you sit. For further information and reservations for Measure, The Miser, and Twelfth Night, call the box office at 267-5600. The theatre is located at 300 Mass Ave, in Horticultural Hall, in Boston.
Not At The Palace–Yet another concert masquerading as theatre. The Jacques Brel man, Joe Masiell, gyrates and sings his way quite stylishly through a pastiche of songs. He is joined by four innocuous chorus girls in this Las Vegas-style venture. Running at the Charles Playhouse, 76 Warrenton St in Boston, the show's schedule is every Tues-Fri at 8 pm, Sat at 7 and 10 pm, Sun at 3 and 7:30 pm. Tickets range from $4-$10, and are available through the box office (426-6912) and through Theatre Charge (426-8181). Palace stays here for four weeks.
Strangers–Lois Nettleton and Bruce Dern star in this romantic drama based on two famous lovebirds, Sinclair Lewis and Dorothy Thompson, which is at Boston's Colonial Theatre. Performances are Mon-Sat at 8 pm, with Wed and Sat mats at 2 pm. Tickets range from $15-$7, all depending on when you go and where you sit, and are on sale at the box office, 106 Boylston St (426-9366). You can also get tickets through Teletron (426-8383), and through Ticketron and other agencies. Strangers, here for a taste test before it heads for Broadway, runs to February 17.
This End Up–The Next Move Theatre's original comedy revue, with music, is wonderfully fresh and funny. Playing at the Next Move's Theatre, 955 Boylston St in Boston, the show runs Wed-Sun at 8 pm, through March. Tickets are $6.50 and $7.50, and for details on how to get them you can call the theatre at 536-0600.

HUB

Athens Olympia–52 Stuart St, Boston, 426-6236. In the midst of the theatre district, the Olympia has service that's geared to get you to the show on time. On the menu: taramosalata, dolmas, saganiki, souvlaki, baklava. Exotic names, but they're all good Greek stand-bys. Hours: Daily, 11 am–11 pm. Full bar, reservations accepted. AE, MC.

Cafe l'Ananas–281a Newbury St, Boston, 353-0176. There is more on the menu than the eponymous pineapple at this boite in the Back Bay. Continental specialties like steak au poivre vert, veal. Moderately expensive, full bar. Hours: Noon–2:30 pm and 6–11 pm, Mon–Sat. Sun noon–2:30 and 6–10 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Jacob Wirth–31 Stuart St, Boston, 338-8586. A landmark of German food since 1868: wurst, sauerbraten, sandwiches, all at moderate prices. Fully licensed, one of the specials is Wirth's own dark beer. Hours: Daily except Sun, 11 am–10 pm.

Jason's–130 Clarendon St, Boston, 262-9000. Dining among palm trees and sensational salt-water aquariums. Seafood and continental specialties: oysters Rockefeller, veal Oscar, roast Long Island duck. Downstairs, sandwiches and a seafood bar. Moderately expensive, full bar. Hours: Mon–Fri, 11:30 am–3 pm. Dinner daily 5 pm–midnight. AE, DC.

Nadia's Eastern Star–280 Shawmut Ave, Boston, 338-8091. Family style Middle eastern food, by Nadia's family, for yours: safsouf, hummous, shish kebab, kibbe. No bar, moderate prices. Hours: 5 pm–1 am, Sun–Thurs, until 2 am Fri and Sat. No credit cards.

Rusty Scupper–85 Atlantic Ave, Boston, 742-7041. In a restored wharfside warehouse, seafood and steaks, also kushiyaki, a steak and chicken kebab. Moderately expensive, fully licensed. Hours: 5:30–10:30 pm Mon–Fri; until 11 Sat; 4–9 pm Sunday. AE, BA/V, MC.

Sheraton-Boston Hotel–39 Dalton St, 236-2000. The Falstaff Room, The Mermaid Seafood Tavern, Kon Tiki Ports. Respectively, land-food, seafood, and South Seas exotica, all with full bars. All are moderately priced, but the hours vary, and you would do well to call ahead.

Stella of Boston–74 East India Row, Boston, 227-3559. Parlate Italiano? Never mind, the menu is subtitled. Veal is a specialty: Scaloppine di vitello al Marsala, all Zingarella, al Limone, al Francese . . . you get the idea. Hours: 11:30–midnight, every day. Full bar, moderate prices. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

NORTH

Cahoots–815 Turnpike St, (Rte 114) No Andover, 685-2732. Steaks, seafood, and spinach salad are specialties. It's all lively and casual. Full bar. No reservations. Hours: Mon–Sat, 11:30 am–1 am; Sun, 5 pm–midnight. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Captain Courageous–25 Rogers St, Gloucester, 283-0007. Eat fish, while you look out across the boats they arrived in. Also steaks and chops. Fully licensed. Winter hours: Sun–Thurs, 11:30 am–9 pm; Fri–Sat, until 10 pm. Reservations are accepted. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

The Lyceum Restaurant–43 Church St, Salem, 745-7665. The Lyceum is housed in the building in which Alexander Graham Bell made the first public demonstration of the Telephone. The menu is extensive and continental: cuisses de grenouille Provencal, veal Zurichoise, duckling a la Montmorency flambe. The prices are moderate, and there is a full bar. Hours: Daily, from 11 am–10 pm. Reservations are recommended Fri–Sat evenings, and for Sun brunch. BA/V, MC, house charge.

Michael's House–26 Atlantic Ave, Marblehead, 631-1255. The house predates the restaurant by nearly two centuries. At lunch, try the quiche du jour, or the open steak sandwich. Seafood is a specialty any time. Prices are moderate. Open daily, 11:30–2, and 5:30–midnight. Full bar, wine list. AE, MC.

WEST

Colonial Inn–Merchant's Row Dining Room, 48 Monument Sq, Concord, 369-9200. Continental cuisine in a Colonial atmosphere. Prime Rib, steaks, veal, and fresh seafood. Full bar. Hours: Daily 7–10 am, noon–2:30 pm, 6–9 pm, to 9:30 Sat. Sun hours noon–8:30 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC. House charge.

Longfellow's Wayside Inn–Rte 20, S Sudbury, 443-8846. Both the Inn and its kitchen are faithfully and sturdily Yankee. Hot corn muffins are a stand-by. Among the other favorites: Massachusetts duckling, lobster, baked stuffed shrimp. Open every day, 11:30–3:30, and 5:30–9. Suns, 12 noon–8 pm. The premises are fully licensed and reservations are strongly advised. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

La Petite Auberge–4 Waltham St, Maynard, 897-2850. Hearty French country cooking. Some of the features of the menu are snails in garlic, cassoulet, filet mignon. There is a full bar and an exceptional wine card. Open daily, 11:30 am–9 pm, 'til 10 pm Sat–Sun, when reservations are a must. No credit cards, but personal checks are accepted.

Upper Crust–At the Sheraton-Tara Hotel, Framingham, 879-7200, and Braintree, 848-0600. Steaks and fish, chicken Hongroise, and the Tom Jones Dinner, a massive feast that requires two days notice. Fully licensed. Hours: Mon–Fri, 5 pm–10:30 pm; until 11 Sat; Sun, 3:30 pm–10 pm. Lunch, 11:30 am–3 pm, Mon–Fri. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

SOUTH

Barnside Tavern–Assinippi Corners, Rte 3, Hanover, 878-9814. Sprawling and always crowded, it's Americana from the word go: prime rib and shrimp are among the favorites. Salad and dessert bars. Full bar. Hours: Daily from 11:30 am–10 pm; from 1–9 pm on Sun. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Ben White's–31 Providence Hwy (Rte 1), Norwood, 762-6740. Elegantly continental, with a greenhouse to enjoy along with things like chicken Jerusalem, veal Viennoise, and a full range of potables. Hours: Mon–Fri, 11:30 am–9:45 pm; Sat, 5:30 pm–10:45 pm, Sun, noon–9 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Anyone around our goal shall be "it." Here we come, ready or not.

Using the information provided, we'd like you to locate and/or identify where on earth we've hidden.

Answers To Puzzle #64
Coming Attractions

Fanatics of the flicks — perhaps aficionados would be kinder — are a choosy lot. Most must have chosen not to see several of the films we chose for them to remember. We admit, there were some tricky titles to pin down. The trickiest was Escape From the Planet of the Apes (not Beyond the . . .). We also received a fair amount of Butterfield 8 answers that should have been Cat On A Hot Tin Roof ones. In any case, here are the answers we accepted, regardless of the order in which they appeared: Breathless, Cat On A Hot Tin Roof, Porgy and Bess, Escape From the Planet of the Apes, Anatomy of a Murder, Funny Girl, Goodbye Columbus, Exodus, Gone With the Wind, The Birds, Bonnie and Clyde, Love Story, A Fistful of Dollars, For A Few Dollars More, To Hell and Back, Judgment at Nuremberg, Psycho, Lolita, and Blow-up.

Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through February 22 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Valentine's Lottery, and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the March 1 issue of METROGUIDE.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE office, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. All entries must be accompanied by a copy of the puzzle page. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

Y&M Files For Damages In Town Sewer Dispute

Y&M Trust, owner of the Woburn Plaza, has recently filed a counterclaim for damages in the suit brought by the Winchester board of health to secure a court order to disconnect the Woburn Plaza and the New England Rehabilitation Center from the Winchester sewer system.

In its counterclaim against the Winchester board of health, Y&M Trust is seeking damages related to ongoing costs for legal fees, as well as for engineering and construction costs involved in changing sewer systems, according to Edward E. Hicks, attorney for Y&M Trust.

In the Winchester board of health's suit against the two companies, the board claimed that use of the Winchester sewer line by the Woburn users has resulted in occasional raw sewage overflow, especially during heavy rainfall.

On Jan. 22, a Middlesex Superior Court judge ordered Y&M Trust and the Rehabilitation Center to disconnect from the Winchester sewer system. At the same time, the court ordered the city of Woburn to permit the companies to connect to the Woburn sewer line.

The problem of sewage flow from the two Woburn users into the Winchester sewer system is scheduled to be corrected by a temporary sewer line under construction (see related story) and by a permanent sewer line to be completed by July 22.

According to Town Counsel Douglas A. Randall, the Y&M Trust counterclaim is based on five counts, including the assertion that there was insufficient evidence for the board of health to support the conclusion that Y&M Trust is the cause of the nuisance, and the assertion that the board of health had reasons other than health protection reasons, in making the order to disconnect from the Winchester sewer system.

Other assertions of the counterclaim include the statement that the order to disconnect is arbitrary and discriminatory, because the order is being directed to Woburn users only, and that the board of health erred by directing the mode by which Y&M is required to abate the nuisance.

According to Randall, defenses being set forth in reply to the counterclaim include the defense that whatever rights Y&M Trust has in regards to using the Winchester sewer have been destroyed by overuse of the Winchester sewer line.

In another defense, the reply states that there has never been an agreement between Winchester and Woburn that would authorize the use of the interconnection.

Also included in the reply is the defense that the use of the Winchester sewer by Y&M Trust has, in fact, caused health problems.

The use of the Winchester sewer system by the Woburn properties dates back to 1959, when the Winchester water and sewer board agreed to let the Star Market (now owned by Y&M Trust) tie into the system.

In return, the Star Market owners paid for construction of a sewer line from the Woburn Plaza down Cambridge street to Wildwood street. (At that time, no nearby Woburn sewer line existed.)

The owners of Star Market (now Y&M Trust) sold some of their land to LeRoux and Curran, who built the Rehabilitation Hospital in the late 1960's. Through an agreement between Y&M and LeRoux and Curran, the hospital was allowed to tie into the sewer.

The Rehabilitation Center sewage accounts for 85 percent of the sewage flowing from the Woburn area into the Winchester sewer system, according to public officials.

Sewage Line To Halt Flow From Woburn

A court-ordered temporary sewer connection, diverting sewage of the New England Rehabilitation Center, Woburn, from the Winchester sewer system to the Woburn sewer system, is near completion.

The work on the temporary connection is being done by the Woburn department of public works, in conjunction with the Rehabilitation Center, according to Woburn City Engineer Thomas J. Mernin.

Workmen from the Woburn DPW have installed a holding tank and have run a line from the tank to the Woburn sewer system in Country Club road, Mernin said.

"This system will go into effect only during heavy rainfall of two inches or more," the city engineer said. "Normal flows will still flow down to Winchester as usual," he said, noting that this arrangement applies to the temporary sewer connection.

A permanent sewer connection, also court ordered, will take both the Woburn Plaza and the Rehabilitation Center completely off the Winchester sewer line.

The Winchester board of health has contended that the use of the town's sewer line by the Woburn Plaza and the Rehabilitation Center has resulted in a health hazard, because of occasional raw sewage overflow on Cambridge street particularly during a heavy rainfall.

A court order, issued Jan. [illegible] by Judge Joseph Mitchell of the Middlesex Superior Court, instructed the landowners of the Woburn Plaza and the Police Wages Approved At Special TM

In a brief one-hour session Monday, Town Meeting members appropriated $169,000 by voice vote to fund the recently negotiated police contract. The funding includes $54,000 to be added to an appropriation made for the police at the spring 1977 Town Meeting and a $115,000 addition to the spring 1978 Town Meeting police appropriation.

The Board of Selectmen, the Personnel Board, and the Finance Committee all favored the appropriation for the single article on the special Town Meeting warrant. No Town Meeting members spoke in opposition to the article, although several "nays" were heard from the floor when the voice vote was called.

Finance Committee support, which was in question following the committee's meeting Feb. 5, was explained by Chrm. David Donahue. When the Finance Committee first met, Donahue said, they found the police package unacceptable because of cost. The chairman noted the "difference of opinion" at that Monday night meeting was changed when Fincom met Thursday with members of the Board of Selectmen, the Personnel Board, and the Town Manager.

"We were taught the facts of life," Donahue said. "We have no place to go except to accept it."

If Town Meeting had denied the funding, the police contract proposal would have gone to binding arbitration. Once in binding arbitration, Donahue said, the arbitrator could have opted to accept the Winchester Police Association's last offer or the fact finder's report. The binding arbitration session, he noted, could have resulted in a higher price tag for the town.

About Town

The Town of Winchester recently received the 1978 Patriot Award from the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, emblematic of the best community campaigns in each of the United Way's four geographic regions. Winchester was the winner in the west region, besting 17 other communities.

Receiving an award for leading the Winchester campaign as community chairman was Thomas E. Dickinson. Dickinson is assistant vice president of the Winchester Savings Bank and was the United Way community chairman in the 1977 Campaign. A resident of Winchester, he is also a corporator of the Winchester Savings Banks and treasurer of the Winchester First Baptist Church.

The third anniversary Saint Valentine Celebration of the French Speaking League of New England will be held tomorrow evening at the International Institute of Boston. The event will begin at 7:30 with a reception and entertainment by the Donna Thomas Quartet.

Local members of the league are Dr. and Mrs. Francis A. Lombardo, Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Banks, Mr. and Mrs. Mario D. Ciroli and Mr. and Mrs. Amrio Marrocco.

Eunice Dragone, R.N. of Winchester, was recently elected a corporate officer of the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Hospital in Boston. She will serve as teasurer for the coming year.

Burton O. Cowgill, director of music, has announced that two Winchester High School music students were selected from several hundred students from the east coast, to play with the All Eastern Orchestra in Atlantic City, N.J. last Monday.

Sherri Daugherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Daugherty, 15 Wincrest dr., was selected to play cello and James Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wells, 13 Madison ave., will play viola. These students were chosen because of their outstanding all state audition scores.

The All Eastern Orchestra will be composed of outstanding high school music students from Maine to Virginia. In addition to the orchestra the concert also featured the All Eastern Band and Chorus.

The Union of Armenians of Aintab, Boston Chaper, will hold a Valentine Disco Saturday at the Sheraton Commander Hotel, Cambridge. The festivities will begin at 8:30 p.m. and will also feature a disco exhibition and door prizes.

Martha F. Cresse, of 12 Cambridge st., a student in the class of 1981 at the Boston College School of Nursing, received her cap at a sophomore capping ceremony Jan. 14. The ceremony was held at St. Ignatius Church, Chestnut Hill. A reception for students, faculty, and parents followed the occasion.

4 More Announce Candidacy

The deadline is today. Residents wishing to run for town office in Winchester or for a Town Meeting member position must take out nomination papers with the Town Clerk's office by 5 p.m.

At press time Tuesday, several new candidates had announced their intention to run for town-wide offices.

Roger A. Bauman of 34 Everett ave. and John A. Hackett of 16 Buckman dr., both plan to run for the School Committee.

The two new hopefuls join current board chairman, Constance Papas in the race for the School Committee.

The School Committee has at least one seat open for the March election. A referendum question proposing to increase the School Committee size to six members will be voted on during the election. If the question passes, the top vote getter will take one School Committee seat, and the runner-up will take the second seat.

The Planning Board which had one vacancy for a three-year term last week, now has two candidates.

Marion G. Crandell of 16 Stratford rd. and Thomas E. Lindsley of 6 Glen rd. are the Planning Board candidates.

At the Special Town Meeting Monday night Town Moderator John Sullivan asked present Town Meeting members to remind any residents interested in running of the Town Meeting member vacancies still in the precincts. Sullivan said there were 10 vacancies in several of the precincts. By Tuesday morning, that number was reduced to five.

Town Meeting member positions still vacant are precinct one, three three-year terms; precinct three, one three-year term; and precinct eight, one three-year term.

Although the other precincts have eight or more candidates running (eight three-year terms are open in each precinct) residents may still take out nomination papers for any of the precincts by 5 p.m.

Candidates who have taken out papers must return them to the Registrars of Voters by Feb. 20 for verification of signatures. By Feb. 27, the papers must be filed with the Town Clerk's office.

Community Transit To Arrive Soon

The buses will start rolling in early spring. After less than a year of planning, Winchester Community Transit's three mini-buses and one demand-responsive vehicle for the handicapped, will connect Winchester neighborhoods with the Town Center, public schools, recreation areas, and churches.

Several things will have to happen before an official date for operations is known. David Smith, chairman of the Mini-bus Committee, said the town has yet to go out to bid for a private carrier to run the buses. Once the private firm is hired, the vehicles readied, and the drivers familiarized with the routes, the system will begin. All this is expected to be completed in the near future, with the system operational by early spring, according to Smith.

The Mini-bus Committee, since receiving a $64,300 appropriation from Town Meeting in November for the project, has been finalizing plans for the system. High school students originated the system's name, "Community Transit" and have developed promotional brochures and maps with the committee. The students have also designed a stylized CT logo, which will be painted on the three mini-buses.

The committee has plotted the bus routes, a series of three main loops, each originating from Winchester Center. Smith said bus route maps will be mailed to each home in town about 10 days before the buses are operational. An additional informational brochure will be sent to homes about two weeks prior to the maps' mailing.

Riders may hail the buses anywhere along the three bus route loops. The East and Central loops both have two separate sectons. Central and East buses will return to town center every 15 minutes. West Loop buses will return to town center every 30 minutes. Each of the three loops can be completely serviced in 30 minutes.

Potential stops on the East Loop include the Highlands, Long Pond, Washington School, the Middlesex Fells Reservation, Winchester Hospital, Leonard Field, Muraco School, Winchester Housing Authority, St. Mary's School, Winchester High School, Town Hall, the Jenks Senior Center, Mill Pond, Lincoln School, McCall Junior High School, Mystic School, Symmes Corner, and the Winchester Train Station.

The West Loop will service all municipal facilities, the four churches on Church street, Ambrose School, Winchester Country Club, St. Eulalia's Church and Parish Hall, Lockeland Park, Smith Pond, Vincent Owen School, Johnson road Swim and Tennis Club, West Side Field, and the Bartlett School.

The Central Loop will service the Bartlett School, Winchester Boat Club, MBTA bus stops on Cambridge street, Ambrose School, Lynch Junior High School, Winter Pond, Palmer playground and tennis courts, Wedge Pond, the Mary Murphy Apartments, Wildwood Cemetery, Town Yard, Brook Pond Park, Noonan School, Cross street railroad station, the indoor tennis courts and indoor ice rink, McDonald Field, the Parkview Apartments, two nursing homes, Winchester High School, the Winchester Housing Authority, St. Mary's School and town center.

A description of neighborhoods and streets the three loops will service accompany this article. Smith said the loops' routes will be evaluated for effectiveness after the system starts.

Commuters catching the MBTA buses in to Boston, may be able to transfer from the minibus at Main street and Symmes Corner, at Wildwood and Cambridge street, and at Church and Cambridge streets. The mini-bus system will also service the MBTA commuter rail system at Laraway road. Commuters who transfer will pay the additional MBTA fare.

Many of the plans for the mini-bus system that were heard at November Town Meeting remain the same. The buses will run Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Smith said the schedule may be extended to include weekends if there is a demand for the additional time by residents. He notes the buses' departure time from Town Center will not be delayed more than five minutes.

East and Central buses will depart from Town Center every 15 minutes, starting at 7:30. West buses will depart on the half-hour and hour.

Each bus will have a 16 to 18 person capacity. The base price for a ride is 25 cents per person and 10 cents for children under five and senior citizens over 62. Transfers will be available between loops.

The demand-response vehicle for the handicapped will be shared with the town of Lexington. Persons wishing to ride the special bus will have to call ahead for service. Smith said a 24-hour notice may be required to reserve the special bus.

In the original proposal, a transportation administrator appointed by the town manager, was to be responsible for the daily operations of the system. Smith said the duties of the transportation administrator will be assumed by the Recreation Department director. A new recreation director, Kenneth Cereghino, is expected to start working in Winchester around Feb. 20. Smith said that residents' inquiries about the system should be directed to the recreation office in March.

The town's mini-bus proposal was submitted to the MBTA in late August, after the MBTA announced it was seeking proposals for local transportation systems. Out of six towns applying to the MBTA, Winchester and Lexington were awarded subsidies for their proposals.

The mini-bus system's net operating deficit will be subsidized one-half by the MBTA.

The system is experiemental. After

Officials Seek Clarification Of Governor's Spending Cap

The governor's message to freeze taxes is out and the reaction from town officials is one of confusion and frustration. Gov. Edward King, in a press conference Friday, issued his plan to cap local spending and taxes at the FY'79 level. Just how the governor's proposal will affect services and town - Winchester is unknown.

The Board of Selectmen, meeting Monday night, agreed to call on Winchester representative, Sherman Saltmarsh, and senator, Samuel Rotondi, as soon as possible for advice on the bill.

Selectman Richard Wilsack called the cap as outlined, "so impractical we can't respond to it."

"It will have an awesome impact on us," Chrm. Edward O'Connell said. "We'll have to determine just how to cope with it."

O'Connell called King's tactics to freeze property taxes, a "simplistic approach." An approach, he said, which is not always the most practical.

In addition to the local freeze on spending and property taxes, King's proposal freezes spending and assessments at the state level for the MBTA, county governments, regional school districts, and other organizations.

He allows for exemptions for pensions, principle and bond debt, court-ordered expenditures, increases in assessments for state and county taxes, and matching funds for federal and state grants.

An appeals board, under the plan, comprised of five members, could allow a town to exceed their FY'79 budget in FY'80, if the community's Town Meeting votes two-thirds in favor of going over the cap. The members of the appeals board, according to the plan, would be the commissioner of revenue, the director of accounts, the secretary of communities and development and two citizens of the state experienced in finance and appointed by the governor.

Rep. Saltmarsh said hearings in the legislature on the new bill are scheduled to begin Feb. 21.

In the meantime, Town Manager Thomas Groux was scheduled to have the town budget prepared by today. King's plan may delay the submission of that budget to the Finance Committee.

Groux said he has been attempting to take into account a potential spending cap since the Board of Selectmen received a letter indicating the potential bill from the governor's secretary, Byron Matthews, in January.

"It might be possible to make some cuts," Groux said, "but it will be difficult. We have energy costs, auto parts, and materials that will automatically rise due to inflation."

Groux said the most likely area to make cuts would be in personnel, and that all departments could be affected.

"The smaller departments have just adequate staffing now," Groux noted, adding that the larger departments, such as police, fire and public works would be the first areas he'd look at for cuts.

But, the town manager noted, the "real problem" is Winchester's [illegible] existant tax growth. Increase in [illegible] from development in town, he [illegible] only about one percent a year.

"We'd be hurt very much [illegible] the tax rate," he said.

one year, the town must decide whether it wishes to continue Community Transit. The success of the system will be determined by rider surveys, response from town organizations, and the opinion of Town Meeting.

Benefits of the mini-bus plan, which Smith presented to Town Meeting, include, easy access to Town Center for all residents (particularly the elderly and youth under 16); improved transit for commuters to MBTA buses and trains; reduction of extra cars for residents; reduction of traffic congestion in the center; improved access to town facilities; and better access in town for teenagers with jobs and special needs people.

Other members of the Mini-bus Committee are Gary Watros, Richard Stevens, Anne Feuss, Charles E. Fiske, and Richard Young.

At the same time, the court ordered the city of Woburn to permit the Woburn Plaza (owned by Y&M Trust) and the Rehabilitation Center (Albert F. Curran and Edward G. Leroux, trustees) to gain entry into the Woburn sewer system.

The sewage from the Rehabilitation Center accounts for 85 percent of the sewage coming into Winchester from the Woburn area, according to public officials.

The temporary connection, providing an emergency bypass system for the Rehabilitation Center, was to be installed by Feb. 5, the court ordered. The permanent connection, diverting all sewage coming to Winchester from Woburn, is to be installed by July 22.

The connections, to be installed by the landowners, will be monitored by the landowners and by the city of Woburn, according to the court order.

Woburn City Engineer Mernin said the city's DPW has done both the planning and the work for the temporary connection. The plan is somewhat different, he said, from a previous plan for the temporary connection.

"The first plan of the engineers for Star Market (now owned by Y&M Trust) was to surcharge the existing system, by putting a plug in and letting the flow go backwards," Mernin said.

The first proposal might have caused problems with overflow and ecological damage, the city engineer said. It would have also required more maintenance than the system being installed, according to Mernin.

"We felt the system we are using, although more expensive, is better," Mernin said. "We're going to be maintaining this, and in our opinion, it's a better system."

The additional sewage coming into the Woburn system through the temporary connection will not cause any overload problems for the city's sewer, according to the city engineer.

Costs for parts, material, labor and time for the Woburn DPW's work on the temporary connection to take the Rehabilitation Center off the Winchester sewer line will be billed to the Rehabilitation Center, according to Mernin. The city of Woburn is not assuming any costs for the work, he said.

No estimate is yet available on the cost of the temporary sewer connection. The estimated figure for the permanent connection is $175,000.

The work for the permanent sewer connection will be done by engineers for Y&M Trust, according to Mernin.

The plan for the permanent sewer connection will have to meet the approval of the city of Woburn, which will supervise the installation, Mernin said.

The court action on the temporary and permanent sewer lines came after months of battling between the Winchester board of health and the owners of the Woburn properties, over the use of the Winchester sewer line.

Hearings, Charges Continue For Voke Superintendent

Hearings to consider the dismissal of Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School Superintendent John Connolly are continuing at the Wakefield school.

On Tuesday night, the district School Committee, representing 12 area cities and towns, heard evidence related to the second and third of 16 charges being brought against the superintendent.

The 16 charges include alleged mismanagement of the vocational school and misuse of federal grants by the superintendent. They were drawn up by the ad hoc subcommittee on special procedures, which includes Winchester district School Committee representative Gerard P. Donahoe.

The hearings are being conducted according to procedures drafted by the ad hoc subcommittee and accepted by the School Committee.

The procedures set for the hearings involve examination, cross-examination and testimony in support of charges; examination, cross-examination and testimony in support of defenses; and argument, including interpretation, comment and summing up.

At Tuesday's session, School Committee members questioned the superintendent on the second charge. The charge alleges that the superintendent authorized payroll action and payments to himself and several other Northeast employees out of state and federal grant monies, without prior knowledge and-or approval of the Northeast School Committee.

This action was also, the statement reads, contrary to policies of the federal government, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the Massachusetts Department of Education, Division of Occupational Education.

The charge states that this action involved several grants. The superintendent's action was also, according to the charge, contrary to information given by him repeatedly to the Northeast School Committee, as to his actions.

In response to questioning by School Committee members, Supt. Connolly gave a detailed accounting of the duties he performed while he was involved in the administration of funded projects.

The School Committee concluded questioning on the second charge Tuesday evening and began discussion of the third charge - keeping important information from the Northeast School Committee, concerning the recall of state and federal grant monies.

The hearing was recessed at 11 p.m. The next hearing will be held on Feb. 27.

the police contract, Donahue said the committee had some recommendations on the process of contract negotiations.

They recommended having the Personnel Board outline their position on collective bargaining contracts, prior to the start of formal bargaining between the groups.

The committee further recommended that no bargaining commence without obtaining legal counsel for the town.

Finally, Donahue suggested the town examine the "basic tenets" of their bargaining position.

The contract as accepted is the first written agreement between the Winchester Police Association and the town. Included in the three-year pact are wage and benefit increases.

The salary benefits negotiated include a nine percent increase in FY'78, a 7.8 increase in FY'79 and an increase not to exceed seven percent in FY'80. Added benefits outside of salary increases are improvements in the vacation schedule, an expanded self-improvement plan, and increased rates for detail work and court time.

Selectman Richard Wilsack, a negotiator for the town, told Town Meeting members that after 20 months of bargaining, the agreement brings "stability to the Police Department."

Wilsack said in addition to salary and benefit increases, the new pact recognizes the Winchester Police Association as the exclusive bargaining agent for the police. It also outlines a grievance procedure and management rights clause and allows agency fees for association members.

Chrm. Timothy McCarthy of the Personnel Board also recommended favorable action on the police contract.

"We're moving to a competitive situation in terms of recruitment and retaining police officers," he said.

Fiscal Year '80 Budget Voted At Wakefield Vocational, Cuts To Be Determined Later

The Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School Committee voted Monday night to adopt a budget of $6,352,458 for fiscal year 1980. The amount voted is $2000 less than this year's budget.

The budget was approved on a 6-5 vote, with one School Committee member, John B. Pacino, of Reading, absent. Gerard P. Donahoe, Winchester representative to the Wakefield school, which serves 12 area communities, voted against adoption of the budget figure for FY'80.

In another vote taken by the district School Committee, the 11 members present unanimously voted to approve a motion made by Donahoe, that last year's surplus funds of $337,185 be used to reduce the assessments to the cities and towns served by the school.

State and federal aid in the amount of $2,904,678, as well as the $337,185 in surplus funds, will be deducted from the $6,352,458, Donahoe said. Payment of the remaining $3,110,595 will be distributed among the 12 cities and towns.

There will probably be an increase in Winchester's assessment for next year, according to the town's representative to the district School Committee, because next year there will be more Winchester students attending the school than this year.

For FY'79, Winchester contributed approximately $160,000 towards maintaining the vocational school, with 79 students in the regular program. Next year, Donahoe said, there will be 82 Winchester students at the school.

The district School Committee has still not specified where cuts of approximately $188,000 will be made to achieve the FY'80 budget figure.

The original tentative budget proposed by a subcommittee to the vocational School Committee was approximately $278,000 above the figure accepted for next year. The committee has already cut about $90,000.

A public hearing has been held on the $188,000 cuts, but no decision has been reached. The School Committee plans to discuss the remaining reductions at its next regular meeting in March.

The FY'80 budget includes $252,991 for administration; $3,009,892 for day instruction; $258,204 for special education; $49,486 for summer programs in special education; $485,754 for post-secondary instruction; and $285,362 for extended-day instruction.

Also included in the budget are the sums of $127,260 for adult-education instruction; $613,526 for other school services; $643,605 for plant operation and maintenance; $312,130 for fixed charges; $53,828 for the acquisition of equipment; and $455,600 for debt service.

Winchester representative Donahoe will now report to the town's Finance Committee, as well as to the spring Town Meeting, on the vocational school budget for next year.

Senior service telephone line hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Call 729-2111.

School Committee Notes

Student Fundraising

The School Committee received a report of a unique fundraising yesterday at Winchester High School. Valentine's was celebrated with "Carnation Day."

For 50 cents someone could send a carnation to a person in the school. For another 50 cents the donor could remain anonymous, or for 50 cents the receiver could learn the identity of the sender. The students credited the Student Union with the idea.

ABC Tuition

The annual waiving of the tuition for ABC students in Winchester was voted by the committee. ABC students Kevin Thomas from New York City and Tony Johnson from Memphis attended the meeting with Edward Haddad who gave committee members a copy of the budget.

He said the program was operating at a slight deficit due to decreased foundation and national ABC support, but he expected it to break even.

Teacher Evaluation

Evaluation of Winchester High School teachers by parents was brought up by School Committee Chairman Constance Papas who had been contacted by parents. She said that parents are concerned that outstanding teachers be identified as the school enters a period of declining enrollment and possible teacher layoffs.

The parents could do an evaluation on their own. Anything sanctioned by the committee, however, would have to be worked out with the teachers' association. The current contract establishes the procedure to be followed for evaluation and specifies that the procedure must be established by Oct. 15.

Papas said she felt that an evaluation should be systemwide and not just for one school. She said that while she understood how parents felt, she also appreciated the view of the staff which is not anxious to have someone other than a professional do evaluations.

Committee members felt that for this year parents who want to express themselves about a teacher should be encouraged to write a letter about him or her. They also discussed teachers conducting their own evaluations of their classes.

Personnel Matters

The resignation of Arthur W. Hannaway, assistant principal of McCall Junior High School, was accepted effective Jan. 29. He had been granted a two-year leave of absence in June, 1977.

A maternity leave without pay for the 1979-80 school year was approved for Jane E. Hughes of the Parkhurst School special needs program.

Mary Ellen Lynch was named as a speech therapist at Ambrose, Noonan, Washington and Lynch to replace Judith Levin who is on half-year leave.

Doreen A. Sylvia was appointed to the Winchester High School Career Life Information Program (CLIP) for the rest of the school year to replace Catherine Bateman who is on maternity leave.

Carlton C. Davis was named instructor in the Adult Education Program writing laboratory for 10 weeks.

Coaching appointments include Edward Mc.Grath as high school boys' assistant baseball coach; John Pirani to boys' assistant lacrosse; and Patricia DiPietro as Lynch girls' head softball coach.

An annual longevity stipend of $750 was voted for the next three years for Jeanne Loudon, elementary music teacher, who gave notice of retirement for December, 1982.

Roseann Innes was named half-time foreign language aaide at the high school to replace Coleen Fitzpatrick who resigned.

McCall Assistant

The committee accepted the administration's recommendation that Richard W. Elliott be named part time assistant principal of McCall Junior High School for the rest of the year.

His teaching load in science will be reduced to two classes, with a longterm substitute to be hired to take his other classes. He will work 60 percent of his time as an administrator and be paid on the principal's scale.

The vacancy for the fall will be published. Committee member Jean Weylman felt that the administration should be more aggressive in finding someone.

The position for the remainder of the year had been publicized through nine university placement offices and produced only one outside candidate.

Mrs. Weylman said she had a quarrel in times when finances were tight of paying the principal's salary to someone who was a teacher.

Mrs. Papas agreed that the situation was not ideal. She called on the committee to think carefully about the middle school administration structure in the next year before the junior highs are consolidated.

Test Scores

Committee members asked Frances Russell to mail home to parents results of the scores of their children on standardized tests.

Junior high parents have been sent reports on how students are doing in the language lab program and have been invited to discuss with teachers the scores on standardized language skills tests.

Committee members felt that if the tests were important enough to be given, the scores are important enough to be sent home to keep parents informed about how their children are doing.

Tax Spending Cap

Committee members agree that it would be wrong to create apprehension about the impact of the Governor's spending limit program until it is clear what the program will be. Committee chairman Papas has been in touch with legislators and said she will attend tax cap legislative hearings.

Richard Holland observed that an early newspaper report said school committees were not included in the cap. He called the proposals "badly done, poorly thought through."

Mrs. Papas feels that even if school committees retain fiscal autonomy, the committee should try to make some contribution toward the town's effort to limit spending.

Lack of snow was no problem for participants in the Noonan School's Winter Carnival Saturday. A "snow sculpture" contest, using paper and crayons to create an historical record of the day, was held in the auditorium. (Staff photo by Marilyn Byock)

Open Enrollment Moratorium Voted

A one-year moratorium on open enrollment, with discretion for the superintendent to make exceptions, has been voted by the School Committee. The policy would be in effect for the 1979-80 school year.

Last spring the committee voted to limit open enrollment this year, excluding three schools in an area that might be impacted if Parkhurst closed. The only exception to the policy was one case which went to the committee.

Committee chairman Constance Papas explained that because of the consolidation issue and the need to have accurate enrollment counts as district lines are drawn the policy came up for review.

Supt. William MacDonald recommended the one-year moratorium and asked the School Committee to let him make an exception on an individual basis for incoming kindergarten or seventh graders whose brothers or sisters attend another school.

Mrs. Papas, who was explaining the recommendation for the superintendent who was absent, said Lynch Junior High is underenrolled now and it would be difficult to staff it properly if many children were to elect to attend McCall.

A Worthwhile Contribution

Telephones for the deaf are one-third of the way to becoming a reality in the library. Telephone-Telegraph systems (TTY) enable the deaf to "see" rather than hear a telephone conversation using a machine similar to a typewriter.

Clarence Borggaard and his wife started the grass-roots campaign to get contributions for two TTY machines valued at $1500. He reports that the fund now contains $500. And, happily the contributions have been spread between about 60 people. Contributions from both young and old have ranged from $1 to $50.

Borggaard suggests that one TTY be kept at the library, while the other be loaned out like a book for use in homes. He said the library is a good place for the TTY's location, because of its accessibility for all residents in town.

Here's how the TTYs work. A blinking light alerts the deaf person that a call is coming through. The "receiver" is then plugged in to a socket on the machine and the caller's message is seen on the visual display screen.

The deaf person can communicate back to the caller by typing his or her message on the machine's keyboard. A tape can be made of the entire conversation for later viewing.

Borggaard said he will be asking community organizations for a modest contribution in the coming weeks. He recently received a contribution from the Winchester Grange.

Every dollar helps, and it is hoped that the fund-raising campaign will become the interest of many people in the community instead of just a few. Contributions can be made to the Winchester Savings Bank, Joe Cioni, treasurer.

We received a note from Howard E. Chase, director of Veteran's Services in town about March benefit checks for vets.

Chase said persons receiving the checks will find an IMB card enclosed. He cautions the card should not be destroyed and must be returned to the Veteran's Administration if the veteran is to continue receiving benefits.

Vets who do not understand the form can call 729-1977 and make an appointment to have assistance in filling out the card.

M&P Committee

Reorganized Committee Helps In Systems Study

By Lloyd A. Franke

The methods and procedures committee was reorganized in March, 1978 after a period of inactivity. The committee consists of five volunteers from various fields in business appointed by the town moderator and reporting to the town meeting.

The Charter of the committee is to study and advise on administrative systems and procedures in the town. This work is done on an "as-needed" basis in conjunction with the selectmen, the comptroller, the town manager, and other involved boards and committees.

The purpose of the committee is to use its systems expertise to complement and supplement town agencies in providing effective administrative procedures for the town.

Activities

The main project for the committee in the past few months has been the consulting study of the town's information needs. The committee worked with the town manager to define the consulting work that was needed, to develop a request for proposal that was sent to vendors, to review proposals received, and to aid in selecting the firm that will perform the study.

The M&P committee is in agreement with the town manager that this consulting study will be extremely valuable in determining the future needs for both manual and computerized systems in the town.

The aim of the study is to determine what information is needed by the various departments and managers of the town, what is required by law, and what is currently being provided. When this is done, it is then possible to plan the most practical and efficient way to provide the information.

When the town's computer system has to be replaced, the study will be the basis for selecting the most efficient and cost effective replacement that fulfills the requirement.

The public accounting firm of Price Waterhouse & Co. was selected from among the five proposing vendors to do the study. The M&P committee will participate with the steering committee in the guidance and review of the study through its completion in April, 1979.

Letters From Readers

Prompt

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We would like to commend the Winchester Fire Department for its prompt response to our call for help in the recent loss of our home.

They were efficient, thoughtful and courteous and we very much appreciate their concern.

Cardinals

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I notice that the proverbial "early bird" gets no worm these cold wintry days, but does get a sunflower seed instead. The first bird to come to my feeder on most mornings is the male cardinal. I often see him huddled there before the sun comes up. Often, too, he manages to be the last bird to visit the feeder at night, frequently snatching a snack or two to fortify himself against the coming night long after most other birds have gone to bed.

Cardinals are "ground feeders," birds that forage on the ground for their food. I have been informed that they seldom patronize feeders that are more than 30 inches off the ground. My feeder, however, is mounted on an aluminum tubing at least seven feet above the ground. In spite of its height, however, it is regularly visited by several male cardinals and now and then a furtive female.

The females usually forage around the base of the pole, where they share the pickings with other ground feeders, such as fox sparrows, white throated sparrows, song sparrows, tree sparrows, juncoes, mourning doves, pigeons, squirrels, etc.

I wonder if the cardinals at my feeder have learned to feed at this unusual height from watching other birds, or if my cardinals are unusual birds in any way?

A small flock of goldfinches, and a few purple finches, have returned to my feeder this last week after an absencse of several weeks. Good to see them back, but I still feel that the total number of birds is much less than it should be at this time of year. Fewer squirrels too.

Clarence Borggaard

Happy Circle

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

There are few things that could harmoniously contribute more to Winchester than minibusing. The benefits are so varied and if employed, could touch on every aspect of day to day living.

Mothers can remove the chauffer caps, our elderly can make those appointments independently, young people can shop for whatever on their own. That second or third car could be obsolete, saving on gas, pollution, insurance, and general upkeep.

Parking problems will be alleviated in every area of the Winchester business community. Yes, the consumer will be utilizing local business and professional services more. That will show its benefits in taxes. Can you see the happy circle? Everyne, everyone gets their backs scratched!

Anne Rebello

Low Paid Man

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I hope that when Mr. Carter begins his austerity program he will remember how the poor get by on almost nothing, and not cut them down to the bone.

It would be nice to have our big wigs live like some of our elderly do, and our low-paid men with small children. Do you know how much it costs to feed a family of six persons?

If you live in a decent manner, and as cheaply as you can, it costs $125 a week for food alone. And if you're low-paid, it can't be done when you have to pay for rent, heat, food, lights, gas, telephone, and a car, gas for it, insurance, and this is only part of it, with nothing for clothes or shoes for the kids.

When I say a low-paid man, I mean a man whose take home pay is $200 and no security as to his job. Is it any wonder both men and women look worried. All you have to do is look at the faces if you are sitting in a car, and see the worried look on mothers shopping at our large grocery stores.

Instead of having two homes, a swiming pool in each (also heated), two or three cars, and vacations twice a year, our low-paid man is wondering if he gets sick how will his family eat. It just seems nothing is fair. I don't think the good lord meant it to be this way.

Commended

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to commend you for publishing the splendid special feature column entitled, "50 Years Ago," which you started with your issue of April 20, 1968, and are still continuing. Also to be congratulated is Mr. Henry E. Simonds, local historian, for researching, verifying and compiling these most interesting and informative stories and authenticated anecdotes.

His comprehensive study of town reports, assessors' lists, Winchester Historical Commission's records at the Archival Center, and other "long ago" documents in connection with this worthwhile project, together with that of identifying Winchester's 2500 or so old houses, must have involved countless hours and miles of travelling about town and elsewhere.

Such data, mostly gleaned from old editions of The Star by a local lifetime resident, is certainly a most valuable contribution to Winchester's inventory of its historical past. Local residents, both old and new, should be proud to have such material made available through the columns of their local weekly newspaper. Thank you . . . keep up the good work!

'Need' Distinguishes Heavy Drinker

(Editor's note: The following column, prepared by Dr. William Hawthorne, director of McLean Hospital's Appleton Treatment Center for Alcoholism, in Belmont, is the second in a series addressing the need for good information about alcohol and alcoholism.)

Q. If a kid starts drinking a lot at 14 or 15, is he destined to become an alcoholic?

We know that one in every 10 drinkers will develop an alcohol problem, but it is impossible to predict who those people will be. There is no blood test or Xray, no personality profile or family history that can predict the potential alcoholic. Nor is there any known single cause of the disease. We suspect that a number of things, including heredity, personality, biochemical and physiological factors, life circumstances, and attitudes toward alcohol, come together to produce the alcoholic.

While we can't say who is or is not "destined" to become an alcoholic, we do know that there are certain factors, and drinking heavily at an early age is certainly one of these. If a young teenager is frequently coming home drunk from parties, drinking a lot alone, or drinking so that school work, social, or family life are disrupted, there is real reason for concern. This might be a transitory phase the youth is going through, but there is also a good chance that he could become an alcoholic.

Programs for teenage alcoholics are few and far between. If you are concerned about a teenager's drinking, a good place to begin is to call the Division of Alcoholism of the State of Massachusetts and ask them about programs for teenage alcoholics. You might also do well to suggest that the child be seen by a family service agency where the whole family can be evaluated and all receive the help needed in dealing with this problem.

Q. How can you tell when someone you know who is a heavy drinker is slipping into alcoholism?

It is often difficult for the lay person to distinguish the heavy drinker, who may at times become intoxicated or drink more than seems appropriate for the occasion, from the alcoholic. However, there are clear criteria that distinguish the two.

First of all, the heavy drinker has some choice over how much and how often he drinks. He can choose not to drink on occasions, or to cut back to a moderate level of drinking if desired. Alcoholics, on the other hand, cannot. They need alcohol. Despite their best intended promises and resolves, they cannot stop drinking once they've started. If the heavy drinker invariably claims he can control his drinking, but his behavior repeatedly proves otherwise, there is reason to believe that he may be an alcoholic and in need of professional help.

Furthermore, alcoholism is a disease of consequence. By that I mean that it isn't the heavy drinking alone that signals alcoholism, but the way in which that drinking influences the rest of the drinker's life. The heavy drinker who is beginning to experience significant problems as a result of his drinking is in trouble.

Examples of such problems are changes in drinking patterns, like drinking in the morning or gulping drinks; damage to health such as loss of interest in food and memory blackouts; arguments and other disruptions in the family over drinking; withdrawal from social contact because of such things as embarrassment over past drunken outbursts; and poor work performance, including lateness, absenteeism, or bad judgment. Anyone exhibiting such symptoms is clearly in need of help.

50 Years Ago

New Parish House

Next Sunday morning, Feb. 17, in connection with the regular service, the new parish house of the Winchester Unitarian Church will be dedicated. The pastor, Rev. George Hale Reed's sermon will be "The Unconscious Dedication." Immediately after the close of the service the congregation will march into the new Sunday School for the dedicatory exercises.

The completion of the building marks the end of a program for the extension of the facilities and equipment of the church property which extended over a year's time. On April 21, 1928 the new three-manual organ, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Parkhurst, and the new chancel, were dedicated.

On Dec. 30, 1928, the chime of 18 bells, the gift of Miss Elizabeth and Mr. Jere A. Downs in memory of their mother, were also dedicated. In the meantime the plans for the parish were being rushed, the ground having been broken in June and the cornerstone laid on Sept. 15. Now the society is in possession of a modern plant adequate to meet its demands for years to come.

The parish, designed by Smith and Walker of Boston, who were also the architects for the chancel, conforms in style to the modified-English Goethic of the main church building. Joined to the main church building by a beautiful cloister, opening off of which are the minister's study and a secretary's room, it contains on the street floor a spacious ladies' paalor, a kindergarten, having a separate entrance, and a Sunday School assembly hall capable of accommodating 230.

This later room, open to the roof, is singularly effective in its majestic proportions. Over the ladies parlor is a large sewing room.

In the basement is Metcalf Hall, named after the first pastor of the society. In this room is a spacious stage, four dressing rooms, and in the hall itself, with its flooring of oak, some 400 persons may be seated for lectures or recitals. Off this hall is a splendid kitchen and serving room.

The basement of the main church has been most effectively utilized. Part of it was divided to make separate classrooms, but the principal space of the church of the old Metcalf Hall has been converted into an exquisite crypt chapel.

Here the young people will hold their devotional exercies. It will also be used for small weddings and funerals. This chapel and the two-manual organ now being installed, are gifts of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Meyer. In this part of the church is an interesting room to be used for Men's Club room. It is in memory of Dr. and Mrs. Frederic Winsor, the gift of his children. Dr. and Mrs. Winsor were the founders of this society. The room formerly used as a ladies' parlor has been converted into a young people's social room.

The contractor in charge of the building, who is also a member of the society, is Mr. Frederic C. Alexander. The Building Committee consists of Mrs. H. W. Hildreth, Mr. C. F. Dutch, Mr. J. F. Dwinell and Mr. C. H. Watkins, chairman.

Mr. Ralph E. Joslin is chairman and Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, vice-chairman of the Finance Committee.

About 350 were present Monday evening when the new parish house was formally opened with a banquet.

Possible Tragedy

1929 Editorial

Those who complacently believe that there is no need for eliminating the grade crossing at the center would have had food for thought had they been present Monday morning when an alarm of fire blew just as an express thundered up to the square. Traffic was so headed as to effectively block any possibility of going north and of course with the gates down could not move.

The noise of the train with the chugging of many automobile motors deadened the sound of the fire alarm and it is doubtful if many knew that the apparatus was likely to burst into the center at any moment.

With the raising of the gates while the traffic headed north and south remained stationary, that headed east and west started moving just as Engine 3, en route for Symmes corner, arrived at the junction of Main and Mt. Vernon streets. At the signt of the fire trucks most of the machines stopped, and those which turned from Church street south on Main street were narrowly cleared by some particularly skillful handling of the heavy engine on the part of driver E. D. Fitzgerald.

There were no casualties, fortunately, and this brief statement of the existing conditions is made in the hopes that because there were none, the argument will not be advanced that there never will be any.

Had the alarm summoned the firemen north on Main street, they would have met an impass on both sides of the railroad tracks and only a miracle could have prevented a catastrophe which very probably would open people's eyes to the danger existing daily in the center as it is now.

It doesn't take an especially vivid imagination to picture the results which would obtain if the fire apparatus should arrive in the center and find a long slow freight on the crossing with a fire in the Glengarry or Bowery district of the town and a high wind blowing.

There's nothing like a dad to pull you through the rough spots, and level slopes, as Jeffrey and Joseph Tahnk found out near the Ambrose School. (Staff photo by Dan Walsh)

Police Report Several Breaks

Police report several breaks and entries this week.

A Willowdale road resident, who had been away from her home since Friday, returned home Sunday to find that it had been entered and several things stolen. According to police, entrance was gained by breaking a pane of glass in the rear door. The dining room and master bedroom were ransacked and an undetermined amount of jewelry, silver and hummels was taken.

In a similar case, an Allen road resident, after being away over night, returned home Sunday to discover that person(s) had broken into the house through a window, ransacking both the dining and master bedrooms. The property stolen is unknown at this time.

A truck was broken into sometime after midnight on Friday while it was parked in the Parkview apartments lot. Police report that the truck, which was broken into through a front door window, contained a vacuum pump valued at $1340 as well as other equipment, including wrenches and screwdrivers, valued at approximately $500.

At 8:55 p.m. on Wednesday, a gas station on Cambridge street was held up and $150 in cash was taken.

At 9 p.m. on Friday, after a car chase involving both the Medford and Winchester Police Departments, police report they apprehended two persons and charged them with stealing the automobile they were driving. The chase, which was begun by the Medford police on the Mystic Valley Parkway, concluded on Winchester place after the car first went up Bacon street to Symmes corner, then down Main street into Winchester center, passing and almost hitting several cars along the way. According to police, when they could go no further, the occupants fled the car and were apprehended by Winchester and Medford police.

Police recovered two other stolen vehicles this week. On Sunday morning a car, belonging to a Boston resident, was discovered on Dix terrace.

Later that same day, police recovered a vehicle, which had been stolen from the Dartmouth Mall, on Main street near the Medford line.

Several motor vehicles were reported stolen during the week.

Police report a vehicle was stolen from the driveway of a home on Martindale road on Sunday.

On Monday, a Woburn resident reported that his car was stolen from Wedgemere station sometime during the day. Salem NHPD reportedly recovered the car at 6:30 a.m. the next day.

Two incidents of vandalism at the Parkview apartments parking lot wer3 reported last Saturday afternoon.

At 3:39 p.m., wheelcovers, valued at $125, were removed from a car in the parking lot.

Police report a window was broken in another car parked in this same lot.

Prices Reduced On Meals In School

Prices for certain types of meals offered by the School Lunch Program will be reduced as of Feb. 26, because of a change in federal regulations.

Parents may apply for free or reduced-price meals anytime during the school year. Application forms are available in each school principal's office.

The existing guidelines are listed below. Further regulations exist, but these financial guidelines are generally applicable.

Under the present policy, students who qualify in accordance with published guidelines, receive lunches at a reduced price of $.20, as opposed to the full price of $.35 to $.40. Beginning Feb. 26, these students may purchase lunch for $.10.

Any questions concerning eligibility should be directed to the School Lunch Office at 729-8850.

Fire Last Wed. Damages Home On Winthrop

The interior of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill, of 42 Winthrop st., was destroyed by intense heat and smoke at 7:41 p.m. Wednesday when a fire, which began in the kitchen, swept through the rear of the home, damaging the kitchen, adjacent stairway and partitions and hallway on the second floor.

Upon arrival at the scene, Winchester firefighters found Mr. and Mrs. Hill on the sidewalk outside of their home, while flames and heavy smoke filled the kitchen area of the house.

At 7:47 p.m. a second alarm was sounded as the fire continued to extend throughout the rear of the building. Medford firefighters assisted at this time, opening the interior of the house to track down the fire's path.

According to fire officials, the fire began when a pan of oil was left unattended on a burner in the kitchen.

The fire lasted approximately four hours.

Winchester firefighters provided mutual aid to the Woburn fire department Monday evening, in a three-alarm fire at the Spence Farm, 30 Wyman st., Woburn.

Winchester also sent lighting units to the fire, which broke out shortly before 7 p.m. Arlington, Burlington, Wilmington and Stoneham also provided mutual aid.

Damages from the barn fire of undetermined cause have been estimated at $150,000.

The owner of the Spence Farm arrived at the scene shortly after the fire broke out and warned firefighters of a potential hazard from pesticides stored in the building.

There have been no reports of adverse effects from the burning pesticides, Woburn fire officials said.

Free Federal Tax Aid Offered

Free federal income tax assistance in the Winchester area is available to many low income and elderly taxpayers, through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program.

VITA help will be offered at the Jenks Senior Center, 109 Skillings rd., every Tuesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon through April 17.

Herbert Mosher, district director for the Internal Revenue Service, in Massachusetts explained volunteer assistors are trained in basic income tax preparation by the Internal Revenue Service. They will assist taxpayers in a step-by-step completion of Form 1040A.

Taxpayers can also receive information on tax benefits such as earned income credit, child care credit, and tax treatment of pension benefits.

Anyone needing assistance should bring the tax package sent to them by the IRS, and pertinent tax documents such as W-2 forms and interest statements to the senior center during VITA hours.

HAVE AN OCTOPUS IN THE BASEMENT?

Your basement may contain a heating system that in many ways resembles an octopus. That's the old-fashioned out-dated furnace that has pipes extending in all directions. It occupies so much space in the basement area it's sometimes difficult to walk around without running into some part of its extending pipe and duct-work. Many people are interested in buying a new furnace system for their home. What they don't realize is that the WILLIAMSON furnace actually enables them to buy enough space for new living quarters at the same time.

If your furnace is the old-fashioned type you most probably have had steadily rising fuel costs and waste of heat. Many rooms don't receive proper heat distribution because of improper ducts or register systems. Cold spots and drafts exist in many parts of the house.

A new Williamson can actually save you money. Its cost in relation to its investment will be appreciated more and more over the years. Lower fuel bills and improved comfort will easily outweigh the cost. And the new space freed by the installation of a modern WILLIAMSON furnace has helped many a family to enjoy a new living area.

When buying a new furnace, keep in mind though that the furnace itself is only half of the heating system. The other half is made up of the network of ducts and registers that make up the distribution system. Be sure of your contractor . . . an improperly installed system can mean discomfort and unnecessary repairs.

We, of course recommend ourselves . . . FEDERAL HEATING & ENGINEERING and with good reason. Our staff is capable of solving any heating problem, and installation with us is a custom fitting for the individual home.

For more information or any questions call FEDERAL HEATING day or night at 623-1515 or 729-6866 or visit our booth at the New England Home Show March 3-11.

Hawley Sets Phillips-Exeter Vault Record

Cameron Hawley, of 25 Ledgewood road, set a school record for Phillips Exeter Academy in the pole vault event Feb. 10, in a meet against the Holy Cross College junior varsity team.

Hawley, captain of the Exeter track team, is current New England Private School Class A pole vault champion. In 1977, he had won the New England Class B Championship while vaulting for Belmont Hill School.

In Saturday's meet, Exeter defeated Holy Cross by a score of 62 and a half to 32 and a half.

Gymnastics Team Destroys Woburn, Girls To Compete In Individuals

By KELLY GATELY

The Winchester High School girl's gymnastics team ended their season in style with a tremendous 100.45 to 53.5 victory over archrival Woburn. Against a weak Woburn team, Winchester swept the top four scores in three of the four events. On floor they only captured the top two scores.

On bars, Winchester established a substantial lead with a 23.25 to 11.90 victory, doubling their opponent's tally. All five of Winchester's competitors scored higher than Woburn's top score of 3.25 by Laurel Buttaro. Heading the list was Carla Gulino with a 6.05 followed by Peggy McCabe's 5.9, Teri Allard's 5.8 and Eileen McCabes' 5.5.

Winchester's biggest victory however, came on the beam as they took a 23.25 to 9.5 decision. Again five of Winchester's performers scored higher than Woburn's best (a 4.2 by Debbie Bouley). Led by Teri Allards' excellent score of 7.1, Winchester increased it's lead to an incredible 46.5 to 21.4. Other contributors on beam were Sarah Gagen (5.6), Anne Bird (5.45) and Joyce Fryklund (5.1).

From there Winchester strolled to victory winning both the vaulting and floor events. In their 28.55 to 18.7 win on vault, scoring included an outstanding 7.75 by Sachem captain Peggy McCabe. She was followed by Anne Bird, Joyce Fryklund and Sarah Gagen. Incidentally, this time all six of Winchester performers scored better than Woburn's high of 5.3 by Meca Lynn.

With Woburn having only three competitors on floor, Winchester again destroyed them by a 25.4 to 13.4 margin. Joyce Fryklund (6.85), Peggy McCabe (6.8), Teri Allard (6.15) and Mary Ellen Madigan (5.6) combined for Winchester's score.

Winchester ended their season with a 6.5 record. Also, eight members of the team competed in last night's Middlesex League Individuals. They included Peggy McCabe (all-around), Carla Gulino (bars, vault and floor), Sarah Gagan (bars, beam and vault), Anne Bird (beam and vault), Teri Allard (beam), Eileen McCabe (bars), Michele Colline (floor), and Lisa Zirkel (Floor).

Winchester will also be looking forward to the State Individual competition to be held at Lexington High School Saturday at 2 p.m. and the North District meet which will be on Feb. 23 at Wakefield High School at 6:30 p.m.

The sun may be bright, but frigid temperatures made it a bit uncomfortable for weekend walkers. (Staff photo)

Woburn, Wakefield To Face Sachems In Final Two Hockey Contests

By DAVE LAFAUCI

Winchester's hockey team lost two games last week to drop its seasonal record to two victories and 14 defeats. Last Wednesday the Sachems weakened in the second period and eventually lost to Melrose, 11 to 3. On Saturday they were hammered by Stoneham, 12 to 2.

Melrose knotted the score at 8:57 when Andy Brickley banged home the rebound of a Paul Bruce slapshot.

Dan Muse's breakaway goal at 11:12 gave Melrose a 2 to 1 lead. Then Andy Brickley struck again at 13:52 to hike the Red Raiders' margin to 3 to 1.

Hugo LaFauci put the Sachems back in the game late in the period. With 22 seconds remaining, LaFauci was able to flip a Mike Jackson rebound over Crovo to narrow the Melrose lead to 3 to 2.

It had been a very entertaining first period. The action was up and down the ice. Winchester had skated stride for stride with a Melrose squad that is considered one of the finest skating teams in eastern Massachuseets. The Sachems had plenty of scoring opportunities in the period. With a couple of breaks they could have scored four or five goals. At the period's conclusion the only question was could the Sachems, skating only two lines, keep up the pace in the second period?

The answer, unfortunately, was no. The Red Raiders came out storming. They peppered Sachem goalie Bob Surabian with 22 shots. They scored five times.

Surabian, although he did give up five goals, played an outstanding period. In one stretch he emulated Gerry Cheevers' performance in last year's Stanley Cup finals against Montreal. During this stretch Surabian dove all over the place to stop seven consecutive Melrose shots.

After two periods Melrose had a comfortable 8 to 2 lead.

The Red Raiders added three more goals in the third period. The goals were sandwiched around a Hugo LaFauci tally for the Sachems. Melrose's Andy Brickley ended up his afternoon's work with five goals.

An 11 to 3 loss would not seem to indicate dramatic improvement in Winchester's hockey program. But the final score should not completely wipe out the memory of how well the Sachems played in the first period. If they somehow can put together three periods like that one, then Winchester can skate with anyone.

Unfortunately, the Sachems put very little together on Saturday afternoon against Stoneham.

The Spartans, who were in a must win situation to make the state tournament, scored four first period goals and coasted to a 12 to 2 win.

John Burke worked a give and go with Steve Burke to give Stoneham a 1 to 0 lead at 2:42.

At 5:52 Mark Nazarian's slapshot from the left point broke off Surabian's glove and fell into the net to make it 2 to 0.

Hugo LaFauci cut Winchester's deficit to 2 to 1 at 10:22., LaFauci took a pass from Bubba Sanford and beat Stoneham goalie John Folan with a quick shot to the far corner.

Stoneham responded less than two minutes later. Surabian made a good skate save off Steve Burke, but John Burke pounced on the rebound and drove it to the top left corner of the net.

With one minute remaining in the period the Sachems were called for elbowing. Stoneham's power play clicked when Steve Boretti finished off a beautiful three-way passing play to hike the Spartan's margin to 4 to 1.

With 11 seconds left in the period the Sachems were called for slashing.

Again a penalty proved costly as Bill McDonough sent Scott Boretti in alone to beat Surabian with only 16 seconds gone in the second period.

Thirteen seconds later Stoneham made it 6 to 1 when Bill McDonough tucked the puck home with a good move from behind the Winchester net.

Jerry Kenney replaced Bob Surabian in the Winchester nets early in the third period. The Spartans scored five times in the period to account for the 12 to 2 final.

When he made the movie Mutiny On the Bounty, Marlon Brando discovered Tahiti's many splendours. Of course, Captain Cook and the great impressionist painter Paul Gauguin discovered them long before that. Tahiti is just two hours beyond Hawaii, and in addition to the usual water-sports and outdoor activities such as golf and horseback riding. Tahiti has its own unique attractions. The Gauguin Museum, massive Tiki stone carvings, ancient temples and sacrificial alters. It also offers an uncommon shopping port, offering Tuamoto Pearls, Black Pearl Shell Jewelry, hand-crafted Tikis, and beautiful handprinted fabrics.

Bantams Post 8-4 Hockey Decision Against Waltham

The Winchester Bantams posted a decisive 8 to 4 win over Waltham last Sunday at Burlington.

Waltham jumped out to a two-goal lead as the Bantams had early difficulty getting started. Tom Sullivan narrowed the Waltham lead as he capitalized on a Steve Marino blast from the point, grabbed the rebound and put it to the goalie's glove side with two minutes remaining in the period.

The Bantams then made it 2 to 2 with 20 seconds remaining in the first period as Steve Tucci gained control in the right wingboard corner, sliding the puck to Steve Marino on the right point. Marino, playing an outstanding game, unleashed a rocket that caught the left corner.

Waltham went out in front 3 to 2 on an early second period tally, but Tony Celli scored unassisted from a jam in front to pull the Bantams even once again.

Chris Parker's wrist shot put the Bantams ahead 4 to 3 for the first time as he was well set up in front by a Steve Tucci centering pass from behind the net. With the third period less than a minute old, Tom Sullivan scored the game's prettiest goal taking a long Steve Marino pass and blazing in untouched, deked the goalie, and put the Bantams fifth goal behind the beleagured Waltham net-minder.

The Parker-Tucci combination clicked again, this time on a power play effort, as Chris Parker scored from in front with the assist to Steve Tucci. Larry Maida scored after an excellent stickhandling effort with a good wrist shot to the right top side. Steve Marino let loose another scoring blast with the clock running out to seal the Bantam win.

Chris Parker's defensive efforts were outstanding in this contest. Mike Griffin played a good positional game and back-checked well. Tony Celli and Paul White again turned in solid performances.

The Bantams begin playoffs in state championship competition against Watertown Monday. The Bantams record now stands at a respectable 8-5-4 in Middlesex League competition.

Rick Jarvis had six points in the Sachem versus Wakefield game Friday night. The locals lost, 71 to 53. (Staff photo by Dan Walsh)

Matmen Hand Woburn 36-27 Defeat To Wrap Up Successful Season

By BILL HART

The stage was set last Friday afternoon at Winchester High School for the Biggest varsity winter sports victory of the season. The Sachem matmen defeated Woburn by the score of 36-27.

They had in their favor all the conditions necessary for a victory. The Sachems had a large home crowd advantage. All of the 12 wrestlers were in good health. They just came off a win against Wilmington three days prior to Friday's win. They were so emotionally up for Woburn that the could have taken on Springfield College and beat them!

However, before any novice wrestling team could take on a first-rate squad such as Woburn, and win, a lot of frustration, humiliation, and hard work must be endured. Let's go back to November.

Robert Tufts, head coach of the varsity boys' wrestling team, stood taller than his 6 feet 2 inches frame allowed, proudly discussing the victory against Woburn and the strenusous workouts with his wrestlers.

Tufts was hired a month before the season started. There was little time for recruitment.

Last November, 23 boys came out for varsity wrestling. nineteen were novices having never been decked on a mat or pinnd with a half-nelson. Bob Romeo, with his 9-2 impressive individual record, was the captain.

"Romeo helped the boys learn the basic skills of wrestling because of his experience," said Tufts. "He served as my assistant coach since I don't have one. As a matter of fact, there isn't a junior high or junior varsity coach for wrestling.

"In any other sport, such as baseball, basketball, or hockey the boys have had the experience of playing on a junior high, sophomore or town team," Tufts said. "My boys never had the experience of wrestling. And you can't come in and think you can wrestle without this experience.

"Wrestling is the most demanding physical sport, more so than football," Tufts said. "You have to constantly watch your weight and stay in shape. If you are wrestling at 122 pounds and you stand on the scale before your match at 122, you missed your weight - you forfeit," Tufts added. In wrestling you wrestle at your class weight. You cannot be at or over your weight. There are 12 class weights in high school wrestling from 101 pounds to heavyweight. And that could be anything over 188 pounds to whatever.

"Wrestling is one sport that demands an athlete be in shape, not only, physically, but also emotionally and mentally," the coach continued. "We have 12 boys of the 21 who made the high school honor roll. You have to be smart as well as strong to be an outstanding wrestler," Tufts said unfolding last year's stats on each boy.

The Sachems lost their first match against Weston. Two weeks later, during the Christmas vacation, in an empty gymnasium the boys beat Lexington. This was the first time the Wnchester matmen beat a Middlesex team in two years. From that point on they worked hard and long gaining confidence and the basic skills of wrestling. They also took their lumps. Nothing is more humiliating than being pinned and pinned and pinned again.

Ed McKenna knows what it is to be pinned. He was pinned six times during this season. Most kids would give up and quit. McKenna stuck in there and worked hard and thought wrestling. In the Woburn match, McKenna lost on penalty points, which the coach blames himself for McKenna' loss. But this time, through experience he managed to stay off this back.

McKenna, one of the 19 who came to the team in November without the skills of wrestling, is only a sophomore. He has two good years ahead of him. You can count this year as basic training.

Gary Errico (8-2) and Lenny Bellino (9-2) are next year's co-captains. Bellino will be a senior; Errico a junior. Both are team players who worked extemely hard this year learning enough about wrestling to move from the simple basics to the more advanced level of wrestling.

Coach Tufts wanted to teach his grapplers the basic skills of wrestling, build their confidence, learn to be agressive and have fun. His 21 boys stayed with him throughout the season and learned a great deal about wrestling and worked as a team. They have a four and seven season with one more game to go. Pretty good for a varsity sport that was about to be scrubbed. Winchester wrestlers had only two wins in the past two years.

On Saturdays, the Sachem matmen work out from 10 to noon. Within this group a half dozen junior high school boys wrestle with Tufts' varsity. Tufts is looking ahead by building now for the future.

Winchester beat Woburn, 36 to 27. It was a big win for Winchester but it only came through hard work, frustrating moments, humiliation, and determination. Tufts saw in his 21 men the four qualities needed to become a winner: emotionally high, mentally keen, physically fit and lots of guts.

Alma Albertelli Is Wed To Gary Doucette In Burlington

Miss Alma Lee Albertelli of Burlington and Gary Allan Doucette of Winchester were married recently at a candlelight mass at St. Margaret's Church, Burlington. The Rev. John R. Crispo officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Claire L. Albertelli of Burlington and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Doucette of Winchester.

The bridge was given in marriage by her godfather, Roy E. Cook, Sr. of Arlington. Soloist was Mrs. Elmo L. Albertelli of Arlington, the bride's aunt.

Her Camelot headpiece of mathcing lace was held at walking length. The scallop-edged veil was trimmed with matching lace. She carried a cascade of baby white roses, white stephanotis and fern.

The maid of honor was dressed in an apricot quiana gown with a Queen Anne neckline trimmed with dyed to match silk Venice lace.

The bridesmaids were similarly attired in gowns of spice colored quiana. All carried candlelight bouquets of apricot and spice colored mums.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Burlington High School and is currently working in the field of electronics.

The groom, a licensed master plumber, is the co-owner of P and G Plumbing and Heating, Inc. of Winchester and Woburn.

They are now residing in Woburn.

Music Society Program Held Friday Afternoon

The Winchester Music Society met at the home of Kitty Laber, 228 Highland avenue, last Friday afternoon. Carol Fieleke opened the program with "Papillons," a piano solo by Robert Schumann.

Lori Lerman sang two songs by Hugo Wolf, "Nimmersatte Liebe" and "Auf dem grunen Balcon." She was accompanied by Corie Nichols. Kitty Laber and Corie Nichols played a four-hand piece, "Petite Suite," by Debussy.

Joann Stevens, accompanied by Kitty Laber, concluded the program with three songs from American musical comedy "Mira; Hey, There;" and "Look to the Rainbow."

The group is planning an evening meeting in May and would welcome new members interested in performing music in an informal setting. Call Corie Nichols, 729-7446, for further information.

Daena Giardella, of Theater Workshop Boston, instructs students from Winchester High School and Copley Square High School in improvisational drama at the high school. About 70 students from the two schools are in the American Roots Program, where they are exploring their family roots.

Jennifer Cullivan Is Wed To Martin Finch At St. Mary's

Jennifer Marie Cullivan, daughter of Mr. Daniel Cullivan of Burlington and Mrs. Nelda Cullivan of Maryland, became the bride Jan. 13 of Martin Patrick Finch, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Finch, 9 Hillside ave.

The 11 a.m. ceremony took place at St. Mary's Church, with the Rev. Jerome M. Curley officiating. A reception followed at the home of the groom's parents.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

She wore a long gown featuring a Queen Ann style neckline, lace top, long lace sleeves and a skirt of silk material with the bottom trimmed in lace. Her full length veil was attached to a crown of pearls. She carried a bouquest of white roses with streamers.

Cynthia Cullivan of Burlington was maid of honor. She wore a peach colored qiana gown with strapped neck and full-length fur trimmed coat of matching color. She carried a rust and yellow bouquest with streamers.

Bridesmaids were Brenda Carlson of Burlington and Kathy Cadigan of Woburn. They were dressed in rust-colored qiana gowns with strapped necks and full-length hooded fur trimmed coats of matching color. Each carried peach colored bouquest with streamers.

Best man was John J. Finch, Jr., of Malden. Ushers were Daniel T. Finch of Winchester and Carroll Wilcox of Billerica.

The bride is a 1978 graduate of Burlington High School.

The groom attended Winchester Schools and is currently employed as a construction worker in Virginia.

Lisa Pilagonia Is Wed To James McGoldrick

Lisa Maureen Pilagonia of 17 Squire rd. and James Patrick McGoldrick Jr. of 15 Cabot st. were married Dec. 3 at St. Mary's Church.

Lisa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paul Pilagonia. James is the son of the late Mrs. and Mrs. James P. McGoldrick.

Rebecca Higgins, of Winchester, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Betsy Bonnell, Moira McGoldrick, sister of the bridegroom, Mary Feury, and Anita Lucey, all of Winchester. Leslie Puopolo, of Lexington, was junior bridesmaid.

Robert S. McGoldrick, the bridegroom's brother, was best man.

Ushers included the bridegroom's brothers, Mark J. McGoldrick and Jeffrey G. McGoldrick, brother of the bride, Frank P. Pilagonia, and Paul Ceruolo, all of Winchester.

The bride wore an empire-line gown of white matte jersey, featuring Queen Anne neckline and candlestick sleeves. Her headpiece was a fingertip mantilla of silk illusion and blending lace.

The bridesmaids wore rosewood quiana gowns with matching hats.

Following a wedding trip to Walt Disney World, the couple are living in Stoneham.

Deborah Tarpey

Deborah Tarpey Engaged To Wed Robert O'Brien

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Tarpey of Wareham, formerly of Walpole, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Deborah Ann to Robert H. O'Brien of Winchester.

Ms. Tarpey is traffic manager with the art department of New England Life Insurance Company, Boston. She is also a student at Northeastern University.

Mr. O'Brien is an advertising manager with Polaroid Corporation, Cambridge. He is a graduate of Boston University and is currently a student at Boston College.

A May weddng is planned.

Retired Seniors Program Appoints Barbara Spencer

The Eastern Middlesex County Retired Senior Volunteer Program recently announced the appointment of Barbara Spencer as assistant director, effective Feb. 5.

The E.M.C.-RSVP is an ACTION-funded program, sponsored locally by the Elizabeth Peabody House of Somerville. The program serves retired seniors (aged 60 and over) in Arlington, Belmont, Burlington, Cambridge, Lexington, Somerville, Waltham, Watertown, Winchester and Woburn, volunteering at some 70 non-profit organizations.

Mrs. Spencer, a native of Kansas and currently a resident of Bedford, recently received a B.A. degree, magna cum laude, from the University of Massachusetts in Boston. She is the mother of two and has been E.M.C.-RSVP's administrative assistant since November.

Hospital Hosts Meeting Of 20 Area Auxiliaries

Representatives of the auxiliaries of the 20 hospitals belonging to region IV of the Massachusetts Hospital Association met at Winchester Hospital on Feb. 14, to share and discuss ideas and problems common to all hospital service organizations.

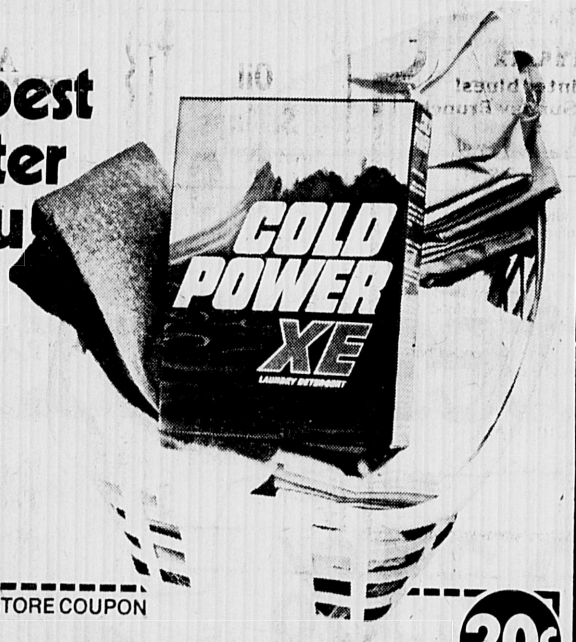

Serving as hostesses to the members of the Outer Boston Region Auxiliaries Circle were Helen Craig on behalf of the Friends of the Winchester Hospital, and Ann McGovern, representing the Winton Club. Marilyn Larner of Concord represented the Auxillians Advisory Council.

Ellen Little, chairman of the Health Education Committee, reported to the group. Participants had ample time for discussion and questions during the meeting and the luncheon that followed.

Copies of the Century Publications Guide for Publicity Chairmen are available at no charge in the offices of The Arlington Advocate, The Belmont Citizen and The Winchester Star.

Morton Elected President Of Little League February 6

Bill Morton, 8 Fairmount st., was unanimously elected president of Winchester Little League at the annual meeting held at the Lincoln School, Feb. 6.

Morton has been the director of CAP League, affiliate of Little League, for the past two years and has shown a number of successful innovations hightening the interest of the younger baseball players in Winchester.

Elected with Morton were Dan Serieka, 30 Lincoln st. as secretary and Ed Goodwin of the Winchester Cooperative Bank and 59 Mystic Valley parkway as treasurer.

In his acceptance memorandum, Morton said he looked forward to leading Winchester Little League to a memorable baseball season in 1979.

"We hope the town will return to its former big support of Winchester Little League," he said. "Interest has waned in the past few years, but with the support of the parents of Little League players, sponsors of the teams and the overall commitment of all Winchesterites, this will be the finest season in the history of Little League in Winchester."

Morton said that Ed Ferullo of 51 Myrtle st. will handle this year's fund drive and Keith Puffer of Luther W. Puffer Jr., Inc. Insurance and 557 Main st. will handle the dual role of sponsor chairman and insurance director.

Other officers elected to the board of directors included vice presidents Sam Kenton, American Senior League, Jerry Ferro, National Senior League and Ken Binding and Jim Aylward, of the American and National Leagues major-minor divisions, respectively. Senior league player agents will be Jim Wise and Harry Rothmann, with Frank Langone again handling the umpires for the senior league. Former acting president, Alan Ruggles, was named equipment director.

Of particular interest to the seven to nine year-old baseball aspirants was the announcement that Ron Nastafi, 132 Washington st. has accepted the post of CAP league director. Nastafi will have the benefit of having assisted Morton in previous years. He expects to incorporate some new angles to make the league more interesting to the players and to improve the players' knowledge of the game and the important ingredient of sportsmanship.

President Morton announced that the first board of directors meeting of Winchester Little League, Inc. will be held on Feb. 21 at the Winchester Sport Shop, 743 Main st. starting at 7:30 pm. All elected directors should attend this kick-off session to start the league on a sound footing. All members are urged to come prepared to make constructive suggestions on the operation of the League for 1979.

Interagency Council To View Comm. Problems

The Winchester Interagency Council is sponsoring a course on "Human problems of Our Community" during our Thursday evenings in March, beginning March 8. In cooperation with the Winchester School Committee, the program focuses on problems within the family and within the community will be lead by experienced professionals in the field. The sessions will take place in the social studies area of Winchester High School.

The first session on March 8 will deal with the question of "New Women-New Men" and will be led by Dr. Alice L. Palubinskas, professor of psychology at Tufts University. It deals with the impact of women's liberation on women and resulting new roles for men.

The three subsequent sessions will be panel discussions. Moderated by Dr. Priscilla Ellis, Mystic Valley Mental Health Center psychologist, the March 15 session will consider "Absentee Parents."

It will be concerned with the challenges and stresses faced by single and working parents attempting to meet the demands of work, family, and self. The panel will be made up of the Rev. John J. Bishop, Parish of the Epiphany; Robyn Gittleman, coordinator of the Experimental College At Tufts; and Kay Tiffany, guidance counselor at Winchester High School.

"Home in Conflict" is the subject on March 22, dealing with problems of alcoholism, child abuse, neglect, and violence in the home and support services and resources available for parents. The panel will be moderated by Elizabeth Kenney, director of Social Service at Winchester Hospital, with panelists James L. Bell, general secretary of Children's Protective Services, Carla Masse, area office of the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health; John McHugh Winchester chief of police; and Dr. Donald E. McLean, Winchester physician.

The final session, March 29, deals with "Town in Conflict," problems of ethnic, economic, and moral values in the community and the question of a reasonable consensus. Moderated by The Rev. Walter B. Davis, First Congregational Church, the panel will consist of Dr. T. J. Anderson, chairman of the Department of Music at Tufts; Kay Bigelow of CONCERN; Barbar Hankins, Winchester Selectman; and Vincent E. Larocco, principal of Winchester High School.

This course is a follow-up to previous courses on "Family Fare" and "Life's Passages: Tensions and Stress" sponsored by the Winchester Interagency Council, a group composed of representatives of many community organizations and agencies.

Any interested person is welcome to attend the discussions. Registration will take place at the door or through a pre-registration procedure. If preregistration is desired, the contact persons are Sarah Dillon at Jenks Senior Center or Grace Ashton (729-2708).

REAL ESTATE
by Ann Blackham

APPRAISAL METHODS

Comedian Buddy Hacket put it nicely: "If everybody had the same opinion, every man would want to marry my wife." So goes the art of appraising the value of property. In the final analysis, every piece of property is different. Basically, there are three methods of arriving at a value estimate.

1. Comparison. A comparison is made as to price, value, and location in relation to other properties in the same neighborhood.

2. Reproduction Cost. How much would it cost to reproduce the structure? Add to this the value of the land and deduct for depreciation.

3. Capitalization. This is used for income property. The value is established by consideration of the present and future income value of the property.

Frequently, the appraiser will use all three methods. No single method can always be depended upon to produce reliable estimates by itself.

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER. PHONE 729-1663. We're here to help!

February 1979. Work on a project you'll remember in February 1983.

This is what it's like to be an Arthur D. Little secretary. Working with creative people solving problems that often have worldwide impact.

This February, our consultants may be analyzing a possible wheat shortage in a foreign country. Reorganizing a city's public transportation system. Advising a pharmaceutical company on a packaging problem.

Governments and industries all over the world call us. We say hardly anything is none of our business. We make what we're doing our secretaries' business, by solid orientation and the chance to move from project to project.

This is an excellent place to shape your career. Informal atmosphere. Fast pace. Would you fit? Are you more than a skilled secretary? Can you type 65-75 wpm? Have you had secretarial experience? Flexible, personable, used to pressure, responsible — with intellectual curiosity and a desire to be involved?

We should talk. Our excellent benefits include three weeks' vacation, profit sharing, and much more.

Call 864-5770 and speak with Helen Taverna, ext. 2204, or Kathy Semple, ext. 2205.

Council On Aging Establishes Elder Foster-Care Program

The Arlington Council on Aging has received a grant from the Department of Elder Affairs to establish an Elder Foster Care Program in this area.

Under the grant, which will extend to June 30, 1979, the council will attempt to match elders, 60 and over, who are no longer capable of living alone, with foster-care families.

For a monthly stipend, the foster-care families will be responsible for providing room, board, companionship and help with personal-care needs to clients who might otherwise have to go into a nursing home.

Some respite care will also be available, so that foster-care families will not have to be available 24 hours a day, every day.

The Arlington Council on Aging requests that those knowing of an elderly person who could benefit from a foster-care placement and those who would like additional information on the responsibilities of being a fostercare sponsor, to call the council at 643-6700, extension 357 and ask to speak with Scott Plumb.

Obituaries

Clara Nutting

Clara Macdonald Nutting died Jan. 14 in Scottsdale, Arz. after a long illness. She was 91.

Born in Winchester, she was office manager of the New England Laundries on Converse place and a member of the First Baptist Church.

She leaves four nieces and nephews.

Burial will take place in the spring, in the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

A. Marchesi

Anthony (Neno) Marchesi, of 86 Irving st., died Feb. 11 at Winchester Hospital. He was 72 years old.

Born in Italy, Mr. Marchesi was a Winchester resident for 65 years. He had attended Winchester schools.

As owner and proprietor of Neno's Market on Swanton street, Mr. Marchesi was well known in Winchester and the vicinity.

Mr. Marchesi was a member of the Winchester Sons of Italy lodge and a member of St. Mary's Church in Winchester.

He is survived by his wife, Gladys A. (Gironda) Marchesi of Winchester; his children, Mrs. Jo-Marie Zboya, Mrs. Barbara A. Murphy, Mrs. Carolyn R. Palmer, all of Winchester and 12 grandchildren.

He is also survived by his brothers, Ralph and Peter Marchesi of Winchester, Paul Marchesi of Medford, Angelo Marchesi of Woburn, Joseph Marchesi of Los Angeles, Calif., and sisters, Mrs. Catherine Glymph, Mrs. Grace Anderson, Mrs. Mary Nigro all of California, Mrs. Josephine DiCarlo of Medford, and Mrs. Angelina Lionetta of Winchester.

A funeral mass will be held in St. Mary's Church today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery

Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements. Donations in Mr. Marchesi's memory may be made to the Lawrence Memorial Hospital Building Fund in Medford.

Rose MacKay

Rose (Fancy) MacKay, wife of the late Philip MacKay, died Feb. 13 at age 86. The North Reading resident had formerly lived in Winchester.

She is survived by one son, Robert MacKay of Arlington and one granddaughter.

Calling hours will be held at the Bell Funeral Home, 376 Washington st., Brookline, today from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. A funeral service will be held from the funeral home tomorrow.

Burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

Bell Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Edith Underwood

Edith Charolotte Latto Underwood, 89, died after a short illness, on Feb. 6, at Winchester Hospital.

She was the wife of Wilbert E. Underwood who died in 1961 and the mother of Bruce Latto Underwood who was lost during World War II.

Mrs. Underwood was active in many local organizations including MSPCA, the Fortnightly, and as past president of both the Women's Alliance of the Unitarian Church, and the Women's Republican Club.

She is survived by a niece, Sara D. Cameron of Illinois, and a nephew, John S. Duncombe of Cohasset, by two grandnieces and four grandnephews.

A memorial service will be held at the Winchester Unitarian Church on Feb. 25, at 2 p.m. Contributions in her memory may be made to the Winchester Hospital.

Community Oil Painting For Adults

The Medford Arts Council's Artist in Residence Program is ready to launch the first of its many community arts projects planned for this year. Beginning Feb. 26, artist Karen Paicopolos will offer a six week introductory oil painting workshop to interested adults of the Medford CETA Consortium. Winchester is part of the consortium.

All persons interested in the workshop should attend a general registration scheduled for Feb. 21 from 9 to 11 p.m. at the Medford Arts Council Office. The office is located on the lower floor of Medford City Hall.

Rebecca Kazazian

Rebecca R. (McElhinney) Kazazian, a former Winchester resident, died Feb. 7 at age 70. She had been a resident of 25 Sewall st., Somerville.

Born in Winchester, Mrs. Kazazian had been a Winchester resident for 40 years. She had lived in Somerville for the past 30 years.

She was a graduate of St. Mary's School in Winchester and Winchester High School. She had been employed by the Winn Watch Hand Co. of Winchester for many years.

Mrs. Kazazian was a member of the Somerville Senior Citizen's Association.

She was the wife of the late Edward Kazazian and is survived by her children, Margaret Kazazian of Somerville, Mrs. Susan Heitz of Winchester, Mrs. Mary McCarthy of Medford and several nieces and nephews.

A funeral mass was held at the Immaculate Conception Church in Winchester Feb. 10. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Woburn.

Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Elizabeth McCauley

Elizabeth M. McCauley of 11 Park dr., Boston, died in her home Feb. 10. She was 72 years old.

Miss McCauley was born in Winchester and had resided here for 45 years. She had attended Winchester schools.

She was employed as an order clerk by the Colonial Provision Co. in Boston for 35 years. She had been retired for the past eight years.

Miss McCauley was a member of St. Mary's Church.

She is survived by her sisters, Mrs. Esther M. Harrigan and Mrs. Nicholas (Helen) Fitzgerald, both of Winchester, a brother, Joseph T. McCauley of Winchester, and several nieces and nephews. Miss McCauley was the daughter of the late Thomas and Maria G. (O'Rourke) McCauley.

A funeral mass was held in St. Mary's Church yesterday. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Woburn.

Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Early Tenure To Be Topic For Feb. 26 School Meeting

The agenda for the Feb. 26 School Committee meeting will include discussion of early tenure, an action which committee member Jean Weylman is urging be taken for the system's only untenu4ed elementary school teachers.

At this week's meeting Mrs. Weylman made a statement about early tenure, explaining that it is designed to recognize outstanding, superior teachers who could stand the chance of not being kept in the system if they do not have tenure.

The matter has become an issue because of staff cuts. At least five and a half teachers are being cut from the elemenetary staff because of declining enrollment, and perhaps more as some teachers return from leave. By March 1 the committee must decide if it will protect untenured teachers with early tenure.

The five untenured teachers are Ann Kendall and May Burgess at Muraco, Robert Gleason at Lincoln, Stephen Dixon at Washington and Joanne Martignetti at Mystic.

Mrs. Weylman noted that there is precedent for early tenure which the high school principal and the head of the English department were given.

The intent of tenure is to let the least experienced go, but she pointed out that one of the five teachers had been on tenure in another town, two are men one of whom worked in special education which did not count towards tenure, and one was nominated for early tenure last year by the principal.

Noting that the same thing can happen at the secondary level where one "new" teacher is back in the system after having had eight years of experience here, Mrs. Weylman urged consideration of early tenure. Without it the five elementary teachers will not be considered for teaching positions next year, she said.

Seniority alone is not the way to win public respect for teaching professionals and does not consider the interest of children, she said.

How to recycle: Separate clear, green, amber glass and cans; tie newspapers with a string.

Deposit the items in marked containers at the recylcing area of the transfer station off Swanton street. Hours are Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday, 7 a.m. to noon.

Fulltime Principal To Be Discussed By School Board

A proposal to give Noonan and Washington Schools their own principal-teacher or a full time principal instead of a shared principal will be discussed at the School Committee's next meeting on Feb. 26.

The Noonan Parents Assn. executive board this week told the committee that it wants a fulltime principal at the school.

School Committee chairman Constance Papas asked that the matter be tabled for two weeks because of unresolved negotiating issues. She told parents she hoped that waiting two weeks would not make their discomfort greater than it is.

Mrs. Papas reviewed how the experiment to have the schools share a principal was started three years ago. This has caused increasing concern from parents and staff and now there is an opportunity to give each school its own part time principal who also would teach in the same building. This proposal would cost about $2,000, she said.

Noonan parents feel that managing two schools takes its toll on any administrator and becomes an excessive burden and time commitment. They feel Noonan needs a full time principal to help make the transition as the school closes and moves to a new building.

Would you like to have a Newspaper Route?

Few jobs give young people more advantages and experience than they get from a newspaper route

- Earn your own spending money
- Learn the value of good service
- Use spare time wisely
- Enjoy healthful outdoor activity
- Meeting & dealing with people will help you later in life.

Young people managing their own newspaper route gain many advantages: * They learn how to handle money and keep financial records. * They learn how to sell * By meeting and dealing with all kinds of people, they develop their personality and sense of dependability.

Best of all, weekly profits provide the cash they need for "pin money" to buy clothes or sports equipment, or save for their future education. A newspaper route does not take much of one's time and does not interfere with school work.

If you have or know of any boy or girl in your neighborhood — Minimum age 12 — please have them contact . . .

St. Mary's Church To Host Fr. Cuenin For Family Talk

A Catholic Viewpoint, will be the subject of a talk to be given by Rev. Walter H. Cuenin of the Matrimonial Tribunal, Archdiocese of Boston Feb. 25, at 7:30 p.m. in St. Mary's Hall, 162 Washington street.

The following topics will be covered by Fr. Cuenin: developments in family life, fulfillment in marriage, challenges presented by contemporary society, and ministering to the separated and divorced.

Fr. Cuenin received his doctorate in sacrament theology from the Gregorian University in Rome in 1977. He is now serving as a theologian assigned to the Metropolitan Tribunal of the Archdiocese of Boston, as well as adjunct professor at Weston School of Theology, Cambridge.

This talk on Marriage and Family in Crisis will be followed by refreshments and discussion.

Fr. Walter Cuenin

11 Complete Course

Eleven men and women complete the Red Cross Standard First Aid and Personal Safety course that was concluded Feb. 9 at the Red Cross Chapter House on Church street. These graduates received certificates of achievement presented to them by Hubert LeFever, Winchester chairman of safety courses and instructor for the course.

Those who received certificates were Ellen Martin, Janet Lovett, Carl Rowe, Stephen O'Neill, Veronica Karp, Marissa Gulino, David Thompson, Jackie Goupil, Peter McCauley, Paul Poulin, and Thomas Wahl.

Blood Pressure Clinic To Be Held Saturday

The monthly blood pressure clinic sponsored by Winchester Red Cross will be held Saturday. The hours are 10 a.m. to noon at the Red Cross Chapter House on Church street. No appointment is necessary.

To facilitate progress, anyone reporting to the clinic for testing is asked to wear loose clothing on his or her arm, so that the sleeve may be rolled up easily.

The volunteer nurses who will be in charge of the testing will be Ann Watson, R.N. and May Hambly, R.N. They will be assisted by Lou Maroney, Grace Mahoney, Gertrude McPeake and Molly Davis.

Softball Managers To Meet Feb. 22

There will be a meeting of all A and B division managers of the Winchester Men's Slowpitch League Feb. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Board of Health room located on the basement floor of the Town Hall.

35 Participants Turn Out For LWV Candidates Workshop

The League of Women Voters of Winchester held a workshop Feb. 6 for potential candidates for elective office in Winchester. A group of more than 35 people listened to the panel of speakers assembled to discuss procedures of running for office.

David Ashton, the moderator, introduced the first speaker, the honorable Harrison Chadwick, who was substituting for Town Moderator, John Sullivan who had been called out to town suddenly. Chadwick discussed being a Town Meeting member. He said he felt that there could be a great deal of satisfaction and enjoyment in the position.

The commitment involves approximately 12 evenings a year, divided between May and November, which includes the occasional Special Town Meeting. Good attendance is important. There is an orientation for new members at which some parliamentary procedure is covered.

Barbar Hankins explained the functions of various town offices. She told the group that any registered voter can run for office in the town.

A potential candidate must get the correct form and collect fifty signatures to be eligible. Town Meeting members only need 10. She strongly recommended being a Town Meeting member before running for any other office. This, she said, is an invaluable way to find out how the town government works.

She went on to say that most town officers can plan to spend one evening a week at activities connected with their offices. Selectman and School Committee, however, are more time consuming since those boards deal the with collective bargaining.

Annina McCully, an experienced campaign manager, opend her remarks by saying,"Running a campaign is a four-letter word: 'work'." It involves six very busy weeks. She advised the first job is to form a committee made up of precinct captains and a treasurer.

It is the manager's job to protect the candidate, McCully noted. Although it is not vital for the candidate to be well known in the town, it is important that the campaign manager and the workers are. Publicity must be planned, meeting the public is important and coffees are very helpful.

Margaretta Thuma, editor of "Inside Winchester," talked about publicity. Finding out the schedules and regulations about elections of the local newspapaers is important. How much do they charge for an ad? What is their deadline? She suggested gearing to the undecided voter. In the ad, she suggests using and saying why the candidate is running. "Don't underestimate your public," she cautioned. "They are quite knowledgeable in Wnchester."

All candidates must file three campaign finance forms, except those people running for Towm Meeting. Forms and information are available from the Town Clerk; the first reporting date is the day the campaign committee is organized.

Candidates for Town Meeting, if not well known in their precincts, should do a precinct mailing, and if possible, have one or two precinct coffees.

A question-and-answer period followed the talks. Barbar Hankins answered a question about the cost of campaigning. She said candidates for major campaigns should expect to spend $1000. Less important office campaigning costs $200-300 , mostly for literature and ads. Town-wide mailings are expensive and candidates must get a permit for bulk mailings. Hand distribution is much cheaper but flyers cannot be stuffed in mailboxes.

Other participants questioned which type of campaigning is most effective. Candidates' Night, sponsored by the league, is broadcast over the high school radio station.. Campaigning at the dump can be good but it is beginning to be overdone, and therefore less effective. Distributing literature and placing ads in the paper are also good.

Coffees are probably the best method since they allow a two-way discussion between the voters and the candidate and provide exposure to community opinion.

A lively discussion followed the formal part of the evening. A kit of helpful materials was handed out to every participant, free, with the compliments of the League.

About 30 persons attended the League of Women Voters' Candidates Workshop last Tuesday night. At left, Margaret Thuma, editor of the booklet Inside Winchester, discussed the role of a newspaper in a campaign. Harrison Chadwick, (center) former town meeting moderator, spoke on the duties of a town meeting member. Selectman Barbara Hankins (right) explained the functions of her position.

Town's Protestant Churches Host Bloodmobile Saturday At 9a.m.

At the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church on Church street, Saturday, the combined Protestant churches of Winchester will host a Red Cross bloodmobile. The time is 9 a.m. to 2:45 p.m.

"Winchester is known to have a strong ecumenical spirit," said Walter Armstrong, Winchester Red Cross blood chairman. "This is nowhere better illustrated than in the Red Cross blood program. For instance St. Eulalia's and St. Mary's each sponsor two Red Cross bloodmobiles a year. We welcome you regardless of your church."

"Please call Red Cross, 729-2300, and put your name on the appointment list at a time most convenient for you. Or come anyway without an appointment. The Red Cross workers will fit you in somewhere," Armstrong said.

This appeal comes at the beginning of the Washington's birthday holiday weekend. It is hoped that many Wnchester residents will respond (18 to 65 and 17 with parental permission) knowing that renewed blood supplies are essential for emergency needs that come on any holiday. "Why not you?" says Walter Armstrong.

CETA Jobs Available Under Project Assist

Minuteman Home Care Corporation (MMCC) is attempting to fill eight positions under a service project with the Medford Area CETA Office. The purpose of Project Assist is to create new services that will allow older people to live in the dignity of their own homes and avoid instituitonalization.

The positions include:

Two case aides, who run errands, help people with public benefit programs, and provide companionship to the elderly; two chore workers, who help with heavy household cleaning and minor repairs; two rehabilitation aides, who will work with the occupational therapist on the MHCC staff; one graphic artist, who will produce outreach materials to inform the elderly of services available at Minuteman; and one receptionist, who will work at the MHCC office.

Residents of the Medford CETA Consortium towns are eligible for these positions. The Medford Ceta area includes Winchester and eleven other towns.

According to John Paul Marosy, deputy director of Minuteman, "There is a great need for the services created through Project Assist and we hope the project will begin this month." Minuteman Home Care especially encourages older persons to apply

Anyone interested in employment with Project Assist should file an application with Medford CETA. For further information, contact Medford CETA Office at 395-7600.

Girl Scouts Will Travel To Wyoming This Summer

Six Winchester Cadette Girl Scouts and their leader have been selected by the Mistick Side Girl Scout Council to be members of a council sponsored group participating in a national girl scout event in Wyoming this summer.

Mrs. Robert Chebook, leader of troop 510, Kim Brown, Deborah Chebook, Kathleen DiChappari, Mary Fiorillo, Maureen Herlihy, and Averil Svahn will be part of a group of 14 girls and two leaders traveling to the National Center West, Ten Sleep, Wyoming, July 8 to 21. The center is one of three national centers owned and operated by the Girl Scouts of the USA and is a 15,000 acre rugged wilderness area bordering on the Big Horn National Park.

While at the center the girls will camp in a primitive setting and will participate with girls from all over the country in activities including backpacking, horseback riding, fishing, hiking and sightseeing in the area.

The Winchester Community girl Scout association is presently helping the girls in a comprehensive training and fund-raising program to prepare for the trip.

Dance Marathon To Be Held At Lincoln School

The Winchester Student Union will be sponsoring Winchester's first dance marathon on March 2 through 3. Marathon dancers will be canvassing the town for pledges. All money will go directly towards the Pool Fund.

People are encouraged to pledge and come to the Lincoln School gym to urge the dancers on as they try to reach that 24-hour mark.

Career Guide Books Help WHS Teachers, Dept. Heads

The high school guidance deparmtent reports that Career Programs which started in 1976 has been further enhanced by a new guide published by the North Suburban Chamber of Commerce. Winchester is a member of this group and under federal funding they were able to form a Career Center Consortium which in turn produced the "Guide to Occupational Opportunities."

The guide book is desgined to help teachers and department heads. There are current lists of employers who are willing to provide speakers or films, allow visitations, and consider work study programs.

There is a resource directory and an indepth list of businesses and institutions. The 15 main categories are agribusiness and natural resources; business and office; communication and media; construction; consumer and homemaking; environment; fine arts and humanities; health; manufacturing; marine science; marketing and distribution; personal services; public service; recreation and hospitality (tourism); and transportation.

In addition to the above, the Guidance Department has a list provided by Winchester Rotary of local business concerns from accounting to piano and organ retailers which are willing to share knowledge by providing speakers.

Each department head at the high school may choose a method for providing this information to the student body. Some take a week during the winter or spring. Others choose to provide opportunities throughout the year.

It should be pointed out that this program differs from the mini-college program which is held after school and is designed for college representatives to visit with interested students and to explain the advantages of their particular school.

The art, industrial arts, home economics, and business departments have already had speakers and will continue to do so throughout the year.

The Career Program is coordinated by Anthony De Biase, head of the Guidance Department.

The Winchester Archival Center, a journey into the town's past, is open Monday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursday, 7 to 10 p.m. The center is located by the Sanborn House behind Ambrose School.

Unitarian Nursery School Accepting New Enrollments

The Unitarian Cooperative Nursery School has had its annual open house, but still has a few openings for the 1979-1980 school-year.

Openings are available in the Tuesday-Thursday and Monday-Wednesday-Friday-morning sessions under the direction of Jean Mortensen, and the Monday-Thursday afternoon sessions under the direction of Anna Olivier.

Full and partial scholarships are still available and the enrollment period will be until March 10.

For further information and applications call Jean Lucero at 729-2379 or Marti Hood at 729-8635.

Nursing Scholarships Available

Since 1950, the Women's Auxiliary to the Middlesex East District Medical Society has awarded nursing scholarships to deserving students in this area. These scholarships are available to senior girls or boys residing in and attending public or parochial high school in Winchester and eight other towns.

There are many attractive opportunities open to graduate nurses today with a constant need for their services. The training is a satisfying and rewarding experience which will prove useful throughout life.

Complete information and applications may be obtained from the guidance offices at the High school or by writing to Mrs. Harris Gibson, 6 Fox Hunt lane, chairman of the Nursing Schoalrship Committee.

Recreation Dept. Open Gym, 19-23

The Winchester Recreation Department will be running an open gym program during school vacation this February. The program will be held at Lynch Junior High. The program is geared for elementary age children only.

The schedule will be Feb. 19 through 23, grades 1 through 3, 10 a.m. to noon; and grades 4 through 6, 1 to 3 p.m.

On hand will be two college students to supervise and create games for all the children participating.

Library Films To Be Tuesday

The library will be closed on Sunday, but there will be a Tuesday afternoon film program for school-age children at 1:30 p.m. in the meeting room.

"The Adventures of Nils" is an enchanting Swedish fairytale about Nils, who learns to love and care for animals.

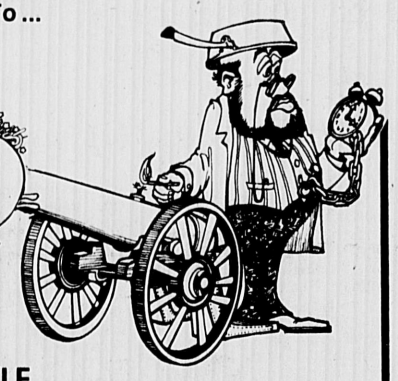

In "Lambert the Sheepish Lion", the stork made a mistake and delivered a lion cub to a flock of sheep. The sheep laughed at Lambert's funny tail and lack of wool until he saved them from a wolf.

"Frog Went A-Courtin" includes the story and the familiar ballad featuring Mr. Frog and Miss Mousie. It ends with an audience sing-along.

Phillips Manager

The appointment of John C. Phillips as manager, proposals-marketing, for the RCA Automated Systems organization, Burlington, was announced recently.

In his new capacity Phillips will work with program managers in supervising the preparation of technical proposals to Automated Systems customers. He also will have responsibility for the RCA unit's news and information activity.

For the past 11 years Phillips was associated with the "RCA Engineer," a bi-monthly journal written by and published for engineers employed by RCA. He served first as associate editor, and was advanced to editor in 1975.

Phillips joined RCA in 1962 as an engineering writer and editor of technical and marketing literature at RCA Astro-Electonics, the company's space activity in Princeton, N.J.

He was graduated from Rutgers University with honors, earning a bachelor of arts degree in mathematics. He has written a number of technical articles for the RCA Engineer and for other publications. In 1977 he won the Alfred E. Goldsmith award of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers for "excellence in technical communications."

Phillips, his wife and their four children are residents of Winchester.

The CPCU designation was awarded by the American Institute for Property and Liability Underwriters to 930 graduates nation-wide who met rigorous ethical, examination and experience requirements.

In addition to holding the CPCU designation, Mrs. Bezis also holds the professional designation of Certified Insurance Counselor. The CIC desgnation marks insurance agents as outstanding insurance professional s dedicated to the merits of continuing education.

Mrs. Bezis was the first woman in New England to receive the CIC designation, and now serves on the Advisory Committee of the Society of Certified Insurance Councelors

Mrs. Bezis is a member of the board of directors of the Professional Insurance Agents of New England and serves as chairman of the Education Committee, and is currently co-authoring the Teacher's Guide for the Basic Insurance Agency School sponsored by the Association.

She is also active in the Massachusetts Association of Insurance Women serving as the State Education chairman for the past two years, and also as secretary, codirector and currently director of the Middlesex chapter of the Massachusetts Association of Insurance Women. She holds the designation of Certified Professional Insurance Woman, CPIW awarded upon completion of national examinations by the National Association of Insurance Women.

Mrs. Bezis is a member of the Zonta Club of Medford, a service organization composed of women in various professions and currently serves as corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Bezis attended Boston University School of Business Administration and has been an associate of the A. David Risman Insurance Agency for 22 years.

Albert S. Hovannesian right, of Diamond Antenna and Microwave Corp., Winchester, receives special award from Robert S. Lee, president of the Smaller Business Association of New England (SBANE) for membership of more than 10 years with the association. Diamond Antenna and Microwave has been a member for 13 years in SBANE. Awards were given recently at SBANE's 40th annual meeting.

American Alarm licensed

The state of New Hampshire's Board of Alarm Installers has issued a license to install burglar and fire alarms to American Alarm and Communications, Inc., 573 Main st.

American Alarm serves residential and commercial clients throughout eastern Massachusetts, including many in Winchester.

Dick Sampson of 8 Sheffield rd., president of the company, explained that several Massachusetts clients own facilities in New Hampshire. The New Hampshire license will permit American Alarm to service these facilities from Winchester.

American Alarm is also a member of the National Burglar and Fire Alarm Association, the top professional association of the security industry.

Sullivan Elected

Chas. T. Main, Inc announced recently that John J. Sullivan of 32 Canterbury rd. has been elected a vice president of the corporation and manager of the of the Thermal Power Division.

In his new capacity, Sullivan will be responsible for all of the engineering work by Main that is associated with nuclear, oil, coal and gas fired power plants. Main's activities include projects outside the United States.

Sullivan, who has been with Main since 1969, is a graudate of Winchester High School, Villanova University and the Oak Ridge School of Reactor Technology. He is currently in his second term as Moderator for the town of Winchester.

Sullivan was selected as one of the 10 Outstanding Young Leaders of Boston in 1975.

Cheryl Bezis

Cheryl Deborah Bezis, a former Winchester resident and graduate of Marycliff Academy of Winchester was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar in December.

She graduated from Northeastern Schol of Law last May having studied for one year at Vanderbilt University Law School in Nashville, Tenn.

Prior to Law school she did graduate work in philosophy at Vanderbilt University from 1972 to 1974 when she left to become coordinator of the Rape Prevention and Crisis Center of Nashville.

Bezis received her A.B. degree from Connecticut College in New London, Conn. in 1971.

As part of her cooperative legal education, Bezis worked as a law clerk for the District Court of the Navajo Nation in Shiprock, N.M.; as a legal research assistant in the litigation department of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination in Boston; as a legal assistant with the South Dakota Legal Services and the Boston firm of Caplan, Christiansen and Reichlin. Last year she did research in juvenile law, an area of special interest to her, for The Children's Law Project which is affiliated with the Greater Boston Legal Services.

Bezis has opened a private law office at 134 Cushing ave., Boston. She currently serves as the legal assistant at the Boston Indian Council, Inc., a Native Community Srevices Center in Jamaica Plain.

Junior League Women's Van Visits; Residents Work On WIRE Service

The Women's Van was parked behind the Winchester Public Library Feb. 5, for viewing by members of the Belmont-Cambridge area (which includes Winchester) of the Junior League of Boston, Inc.

The mobile information and referral service is the most visible aspect of a wide-range community service project of the Junior League of Boston. Other components of the Women's Information, Referral, and Education Service (WIRE Service) include 24-hour telephone service, seminars and workshops, symposia, and a newsletter.

The colorfully painted van offers information, referrals, and on-the-spot counseling for women to help them find resources in areas such as health issues, careers, day care, housing, mental health, alcohol and drugs, adult education, public services, and so forth. It is staffed by trained volunteers.

Alice McCarter is an enthusiastic van staffer. She says, "I have learned something useful from the pamphlets myself everytime I have been in to work, — a bonus to the obvious reward of helping others."

Launched last fall, the van has just completed a tour of Charlestown and will soon be in the Allston-Brighton area. The entire WIRE Service program is supported by the Junior League's ways and means projects, such as the decorator's showhouse. The Women's Van will be open for business April 29 through May 20 outside this year's showhouse in Milton.

WIRE Service chairperson, Kitty Flather, states, "We feel visitors to showhouse will be interested to see one way their money is spent for community service, and some may be able to take advantage of that service themselves."

A number of Winchester women have been involved in the success of other WIRE Service programs. Suzanne Reno is chairperson of a symposium planned for April at Tufts New England Medical Center in cooperation with the Boston School Department. "Choice not Chance — A Teen Health Conference" proposes to directly assess with students their concerns and priorities for health education and services.

Assisting Mrs. Reno are Elizabeth Sayre, Pam Boerner, Gretchen Racek, Margy McIndoe, Carolyn Harder, Karen Holt, and Judy Hawkes.

Dr. Donald E. McLean, Winchester pediatrician, is on the advisory committee. Last year Mrs. Reno was co-chairperson of the highly praised sumposium on teenage parenthood, "Children Bearing Children," co-sponsored by the Junior League of Boston, Inc. and the Ma4ch of Dimes.

Many Winchester women are serving as officers in the Belmont-Cambridge area of the Junior League this year, including Ellen Browning, area chairperson; Gretchen Racek, vice-chairperson; Susan Sawyer, secretary and public relations representative; Carolyn Harder, hospitality; Mary Allen, admissions representative; Kathy Sterling, community research committee; Karen Holt, nominating and finance committees; Barbara Pikl, showhouse representative; and Mary Lou Wilding-White, sustainers committee.

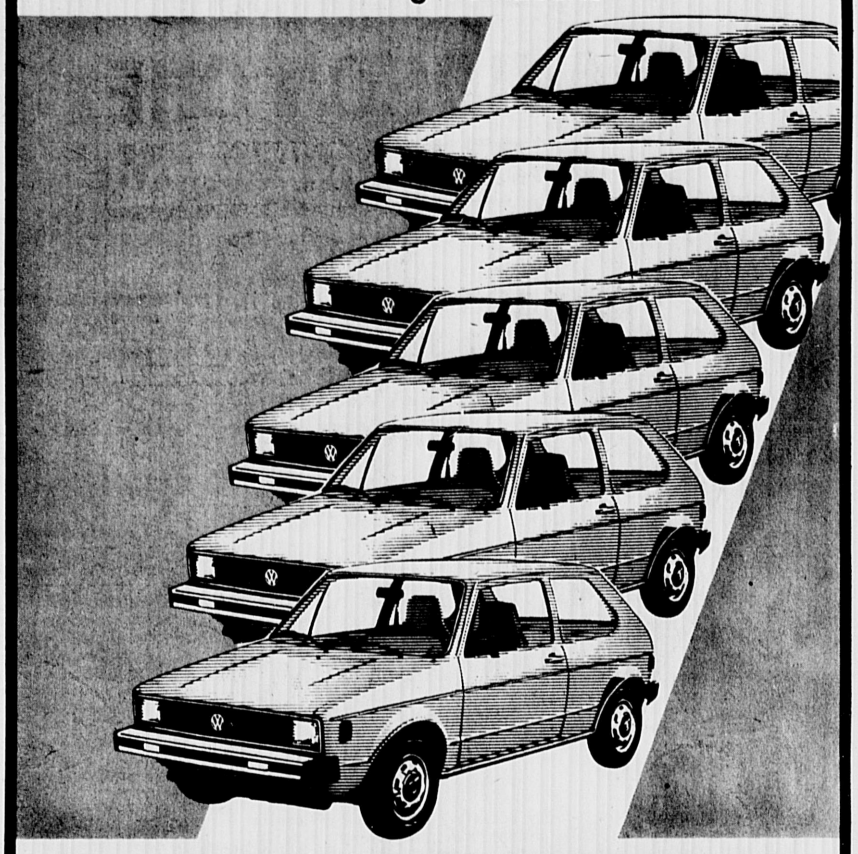

The Junior League of Boston, Inc., is a non-profit organization of women dedicated to trained voluntary community service.

Deposit the items in marked containers at the recycling area of the transfer station off Swanton street. Hours are Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday, 7 a.m. to noon.

Hospital Junior Volunteers Urged To Make Appointments For Interviews

Boys and girls 14 years of age or older (or in the eighth grade) who are interested in becoming junior volunteers are invited to call the volunteer department at Winchester Hospital now to make an appointment for an interview during the February school vacation. Prospective junior volunteers will meet with the hospital's volunteer director, Phyllis Hollinshead, to register for orientation. Youth are urged to bring a parent with them for the interview.

Enrollment will be limited and young people will be accepted in the order that appointments are made.

Following the interview, each prospective junior volunteer will attend a series of three orientation classes to be held March 9, 16, and 30 from 3:15 to 5 p.m. in the auditorium of Washington school across from the hospital

The classes will cover hospital ethics, rules and regulations, responsibilities of a junior volunteer and will include a tour of the hospital.

Young people who complete the classes will be assigned to one of eight junior volunteer services and will receive training during the spring months. They will begin their regular volunteer schedule at the end of June unless they are unavailable, in which case they will begin in the fall.

The Winchester Archival Center, a journey into the town's past, is open Monday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursday, 7 to 10 p.m. The center is located by the Sanborn House behind Ambrose School.

Joanne Ross of Winchester was a junior volunteer at Winchester Hospital last summer and helped out on a patient floor, one of eight different services junior volunteers perform at the hospital. Registration for this year's volunteer class is now open and appointments for interviews during school vacation week can be made by calling the hospital volunteer department.

Unitarian Church To Sponsor Two Family Life Groups In Feb.-March

The Unitarian-Universalist Church of Winchester is sponsoring two programs on family life, and members of the general public are invited to participate.

"Personal Growth and the Family" is a 10-week program beginning Feb. 28. Sessions will run from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and will be conducted by Steve Emmet and Helen Wait of the Unitarian-Universalist Pastoral Counseling Service. The program will attempt to improve the communications skills of participants and increase their awareness of personal dynamics in family situations. It will also offer creative ways of coping with personal changes and life crises.

"Mothers and Others" will be conducted for six weeks, and sessions will be held on Friday mornings between 9:30 and 11 a.m., beginning March 2. Dr. Susan Holton of the Pastoral Counseling Service will lead these support, sharing, and exploration sessions which will be geared to the needs and concerns of mothers of all ages. The meetings will provide an excellent opportunity for participants to share the joys and traumas of motherhood as well as the many other roles and responsibilities undertaken by women today. Child care will be provided.

Persons interested in attending either or both programs are encouraged to call the church office at 729-0949. There is a fee of $4 per session. If there is sufficient interest, additional sessions at different times may be scheduled.

Duplicate Bridge

The Winchester Duplicate Bridge Club meets on Wednesday evenings at the Crawford Methodist Church. The early-bird game starts at 7:15 p.m. Section B starts at 7:30 p.m. Please note: Game time for the month of March will be 7:15 p.m. for everyone. The game will have one or two sessions, depending on the number of tables. Any late comers will play only at the discretion of the director.

On Feb. 21, there will be a meeting for members at 6:45 p.m. This will be held at the church and two new members will be voted to the board.

Winners of Section A on Feb. 7 were: North-South: H. Sharaf and N. Barton, First; E. Joyce and E. Hewelling, second; Mr. and Mrs. Duryea, third.

East-West winners for Section A were: D. Gibbs and E. Poindexter, First; L. Ashman and J. Aronson, second; N. Watts and C. Davidson, third.

Winners of Section B were: North-South: Ray Whittemore and Guy Mingolelli, first; Mr. and Mrs. Enge, second; Mr. and Mrs. Wassmuth, third.

East-West winners for Section B were: Mr. and Mrs. Green, first; Mr. and Mrs. Leland, second; Leo Gonsalves and Norman Houlding and Mr. and Mrs. Salani tied for third and fourth.

The Responsive Double is a fairly new convention with considerable merit. Its use arises when the opponents have opened the bidding, followed by a simple raise and your partner has doubled or overcalled. Your double in sequences such as (A) and (B) below are responsive:

	Opp.	Part.	Opp.	You
(A)	1C	1H	2C	Dbl.
(B)	1S	Dbl.	2S	Dbl.

The Responsive Double tells your partner that you have scattered values in the unbid suits. Traditionally, your double is for penalty and announces that you are strong in the opponent's suit. Since this occurs rarely, your double is better reserved for a responsive bid.

The following hand from Wenesday's game illustrates the bid:

Note the ease with which North can describe his two-suited hand with the responsive double. South can now bid 2 D and be certain of a diamond fit. West competes with a bid of 3 C and North proceeds to a 3 D contract which cannot be defeated.

1979 BUICK RIVIERA S

"The Riviera S offers luxury with taste, and performance with comfort. Though it is plush, it rides and handles extremely well for a car of its type. Its styling is crisp and modern, but not at the expense of utility. Though it abounds with innovative engineering, the Riviera S is well within the tradition that made the original Riviera a classic . . . It offers excellent value, especially when compared to cars costing twice as much." MOTOR TREND Magazine

For Senior Citizens ...

The Jenks Senior Center will be closed on Monday because of the Washington's Birthday holiday.

The Keep Well Clinic is being held today from 9:30-11:30 a.m. For appointments for the clinic, call the Senior Service Line at 729-2111.

Also today, the Jenks Center is holding bridge lessons at 10:30 a.m. and card playing at noon.

The Bowling League will meet tomorrow at 9:30 a.m at the Winchester Bowladrome. Anyone interested in bowling with the league, should join the group at the Bowladrome.

Next Monday, the handicrafts class will be meeting from 9:30-11:30 a.m.. The class is working on crewel and embroidery. For more information, call the Jenk Senior Service line at 729-2111.

Tuesday activities include an art class from 10 a.m. to noon and square dancing from 2:30 to 4 p.m.

Next Wednesday, there will be a chair-caning class at 9 a.m. and a physical fitness class from 1-2 p.m.

Interested in seeing how maple syrup is made? A trip is being planned for March 14. The group will leave the Jenks Center at 12:30 and return at 4:45 p.m. that day. Those participating are asked to bring a bag lunch. Reservations are requested by calling the Senior Service Line at 729-2111.

How about snowshoeing? There are plenty of snowshoes available, the Senior Center says. Call Mal Masters at 729-1039 or the Senior Service Line at 729-2111 if interested.

Seniors needing the Meals on Wheels program should contact Ann Hughes, program coordinator, at 729-6578. Under the program, a hot meal and a lighter meal are delivered daily, Monday through Friday.

Senior citizens participating in the SPAN Postal Alert are asked to return their postcards with their signature, granting permission to be included in the program. For information on the program, call 729-2111.

The Winchester Council on Aging will sponsor a tour of the Boston Edison Mystic Power Plant next Wednesday. The hour and one-half tour will include a film presentation and a discussion on nuclear and fossil energy.

The group will leave the Jenks Senior Center at 9:15 a.m. and return at noon. Cost of the tour is $1.50.

Participants are invited to bring their own bag lunches and eat at the Jenks Center after the trip.

Want to warm up after a cold winter? The Council on Aging announces plans for a trip to Bermuda. Date: March 3-8. Cost: $389, with $100 deposit required. The group will stay at the Bermudiana Hotel.

Call the recreation department at 729-4514 for details.

Larry Hutchings' investment class has resumed again, according to the Council on Aging. Topics discussed in the class include: budget planning for senior citizens, making a will, the advantages of trusts and insurance for senior citizens.

For information on the class schedule, call the Jenks Senior Center at 729-2113.

The Council on Aging says that if the Winchester High School is closed due to inclement weather, activities at the Jenks Senior Center will also be cancelled for that day.

A hospital bed, wheelchair and crutches are available for loan at the Council on Aging office. Call the Council at 729-2111 for information on use of these items.

Regular tax-aid sessions are being held for free on Tuesday and Thursdays, 9-11 a.m. No appointment is necessary. Those attending the sessions should bring all forms with them.

"Over Easy," television's only daily news magazine series about aging, featuring host Hugh Downes, can be seen locally on WGBH, Channel 2, afternoons at 2:30.

The widowed-to-widowed program is set up to help those in widowhood. The program is open to widows and widowers of all ages. Meetings are held on the second and fourth Fridays of the month, at 2 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center.

Are there any senior citizens out there who would like to join in on some old-fashioned ballroom dancing? If the Center receives enough requests for this kind or any other kind of activity, the Center will try to organize a program.

The Friends of Winchester Hospital recently presented senior vice president, Jack Hunter with the results of their two fund raising efforts for 1978. Helen Craig (left) of Winchester president, and Marie Carswell, of Winchester, chairman of the '78 ball present a check for $1788.25, proceeds of the Canterbury Cotillion, last year's ball. Bea Erickson (right) of Reading, and Mildred Buckley of Reading, present $782, the proceeds of the Friends Craft Table at the Winton Club Christmas Fair. The total donation of $2570.25 will be used to furnish the hospital's new Oncology Suite in the Russell House, which was opened to patients this week.

New Fiat Strada Subcompact On Sale Feb. 1

MONTVALE, NJ, Jan. 25 — The first all-new design from Fiat in four years, a front-wheel drive subcompact called the Strada, will go on sale in the United States on February 1. Announcement of the launch of the new car was made today by Claudio Ferrari, president of Fiat Motors of North America, Inc.

Mr. Ferrari forecast that the Strada will soon be accounting for more than 30 percent of all Fiat sales in the U.S. The Strada, he said, will be aimed at the buyer looking for a roomier, quieter, less expensive alternative to the VW Rabbit.

"We think that Fiat has been able to create a car that will compare favorably to any other subcompact on the market today, and at a highly competitive price," said Mr. Ferrari. "The most extensive consumer research ever conducted by Fiat showed us that the Strada was preferred by American drivers who were given the opportunity to make direct comparisons to other cars in its price range."

Built by a company with a strong reputation for leadership in the design and production of small cars, the Strada was created by the most advanced technology in the automobile industry as a car that will be equally at home on American roads as on European.

The Strada is offered in two body styles and three trim levels, starting with the Strada Standard, an economical 3-door hatchback available in three colors — white, dark blue and light blue. It lists for $4,296.

Forecasts, however, are that the more popular of the Stradas among American buyers will be the fancier Strada Custom, which comes as either a 3-door or 5-door hatchback. It's available in a wide range of colors and in a higher level of trim, and with such standard-equipment touches as tinted glass, reclining front bucket seats and carpeted cargo area.

The Strada Custom 3-door is priced at $4,690 and the 5-door at $4,840. Also available is a Luxury package, which adds another $385 to the price of either Custom model, that includes woven cloth upholstery, a digital clock, split rear fold-down seats, rear window wiper, tachometer and roof rack.

All versions of the Strada are built on a 96.4-inch wheelbase and are 161 inches long overall. The single-overhead-cam 4-cylinder engine is a variant of the high performance motor developed for the Fiat X1-9 sports car. It has a displacement of 1498 cc, with a bore of 86.4 mm and a short stroke of 63.9 mm.

The powerplant is equipped with electronic breakerless ignition, an aluminum cylinder head, two-barrel Weber carburetor and exhaust catalytic converter. The Strada engine is rated at 69 bhp at 5,100 rpm (65 bhp in California) and delivers 77.4 lb-ft of torque at 2,500 rpm (75.9 lb-ft in California).

In addition to brisk performance, this powertrain yields good mileage. With standard transmission, EPA mileage estimated for the Strada are: 28 mpg, city driving; 41 mpg, highway; 32 mpg, combined. (In California, the figures are 26, 37 and 30, respectively.)

The unusually quiet ride of the Strada is the result of its advanced aerodynamics, extensive use of sound-deadening materials, and rubber-mounted suspension.

The standard transmission is a 5-speed synchromesh overdrive unit that is combined with the differential to form a compact front-wheel drive transaxle. The optional automatic transmission is a new 3-speed torque converter unit.

The Strada suspension is fully independent, with MacPherson struts at each wheel and coil springs in front (a front anti-sway bar is fitted to cars with an automatic transmission). In the rear, there is a transverse leaf spring which also serves as an anti-sway bar. Steering is positive rack-and-pinion in keeping with Fiat's reputation for precise handling.

Steel-belted radial tires, on styled steel wheels, are standard. Power-assisted front disc brakes are standard on all Stradas, with drum brakes on the rear wheels.

Every Strada features a long list of safety equipment, including integral energy-absorbing bumpers. One-piece, inertial-reel seat belts, recessed dashboard and large built-in headrests on the front bucket seats add to interior safety. There is also an energy-absorbing steering wheel and column and side-guard door beams to complete the safety "envelope" formed by the stiff unitized body-chassis.

For protection of another sort, approximately 65 lbs. of rust-proofing materials are applied to every Strada, including P.V.C. undercoating on the chassis, zinchrometal coating and a baked enamel body finish. Corrosion-proof plastic inner fender-liners ward off road salt and water from the underbody. All Strada trim is stainless steel or rust-free aluminum. Rubber side moldings protect all Stradas from nicks and dents.

The Strada is also protected by Fiat's "double-barreled" warranty. In addition to a 12 month, 12,000 mile warranty, on the entire car, there is a 24 month, 24,000 mile, parts and service warranty on the powertrain.

The Strada is imported by Fiat Motors of North America, Inc., which is a wholly owned subsidiary of Fiat S.p.A. of Turin, Italy.

On The Cover

When the house lights dim at noon on Sunday at the Orson Welles Cinema in Cambridge, sci-fi fans can snuggle into their seats ($6.95 each) for 24 uninterrupted hours of science fiction and fantasy films. The occasion is the Welles' Fourth Annual Science Fiction Marathon, aptly dedicated to ex-Red Sox pitcher Bill "Spaceman" Lee.

The program of 15 films will be punctuated by shorts and cartoons (like the original Superman) and costs less than 50 cents a film, which these days is right up there, fantasy-wise. As of press time, the exact starting time of each film had not been determined, but you can get the details by calling 868-3603. The Welles is at 1001 Mass Ave in Cambridge.

To be shown, but not necessarily in this order:

The Incredible Shrinking Man (1957) Directed by Jack Arnold. Grant Williams does the shrinking, and Richard Matheson wrote the script.

Colossus: The Forbin Project (1970) A computer gone berserk outwits and sabotages its programmers.

Island of Lost Souls (1933) Directed by Erle C Kenton from an H G Wells story, with Charles Laughton as the mad creator of "mansters."

Silent Running (1972) Directed by Douglas Turnbull, an ecological fable starring Bruce Dern and robots Huey and Dewey.

Monolith Monsters (1957) Great steles from outer space sap human energy, and live off any fluid.

Invasion of the Body Snatchers (1956) The original and by now classic version, directed by Don Siegel.

Forbidden Planet (1956) The science fiction version of The Tempest, with Walter Pidgeon and Robby the Robot.

The Mysterious Island (1961) More Harryhausen effects, in this return of Captain Nemo.

The Thing (1951) James Arness has the title role. Directed by Christian Nyby or — some say — Howard Hawks.

On the Beach (1969) Waiting for the (nuclear) apocalypse, Gregory Peck and Ava Gardner star.

The Time Machine (1960) The world of the Eloi and the Morlocks. Another H G Wells adaptation.

15-Thurs

Dancers

The new contemporary ballet company called, appropriately enough, Dancers, makes its Boston debut tonight at 7:30 at the Loeb Drama Center, 64 Brattle Street, in Cambridge. The company was co-founded by its artistic director, Dennis Wayne, and actress Joanne Woodward. Admission tonight is $6.50. The company will be at the Loeb through February 18. For the rest of the schedule call the box office at 864-2630.

February Vacation Camp

Who says camp is only for the summer? Not the YMCA Ponkapoag Outdoor Center, that's for sure. The center has a co-ed winter camp for kids seven to 12 years old scheduled for February 19 through 23, with everything from cross-country skiing, to maple sugaring, to pony rides, to nature crafts. The sleep-over camp costs $100, which includes all meals and lodging, and the day camp costs $75, which includes lunch. Prior registration is a must and today gives you enough time to do it. The center is on the Blue Hills Reservation, exit 65 off Route 128, in Canton. Call 696-4520 for all the details.

Dancers, dancing Thursday through Sunday at the Loeb Drama Center.

Big Band Concert

The big band sound of the Hal McIntyre Orchestra, with the vocals of April Newman thrown in for good measure, can be heard in concert tonight at 8 in the Student Union at Regis College, 235 Wellesley Street, in Weston. The orchestra features the music of the Forties and Fifties, and it's free. Call 893-1820 for additional information.

16-Fri

Gallery Opening

Paintings by Debora Gilbert-Ryan, whose geometric motif is a highlight of her work, go up today at the Bromfield Gallery, 30 Bromfield Street, in Boston. Regular gallery hours are from noon to 6 pm Monday through Saturday. For more information call 426-8270. This show stays through March 10.

Classical Music

The Hungarian musicians who make up the Pogacnik-Onczay Duo (that's pronounced po-gotch-nik own-sigh) make their Boston debut tonight at 8 in Pickman Hall of the Longy School of Music, 1 Follen Street, in Cambridge. Admission is $3.50, $1.50 for students and elders, with tickets available at the door. Call 876-0956 for more information. For those who lean towards the Baroque, the Banchetto Musicale presents Italian and French works by Corelli, Vivaldi, Couperin, and Rameau, tonight at 8:30 in Jordan Hall, 30 Gainsborough Street, in Boston. Admission is $5, $3 for students and elders. For all the particulars call 864-2634.

Pop and Bluegrass

Engelbert Humperdinck, the pop star, stops by at Framingham's Chateau de Ville for a 10-day series of performances. Many of the days are sold out but there are tickets still available for tonight's 10:15 show. Tickets cost — hold on to your wallet — $20, and are available by calling 965-2200. The Chateau is on Route 9 in Framingham. Over in Cambridge, the Country Gentlemen play some honest-to-goodness bluegrass at 8:30 tonight in the Sanders Theatre on Kirkland and Quincy Streets. Tickets are $6, $3 for kids under 12. For all the details call 492-0415.

17-Sat

Puppets on Parade

Kids, choose your favorite character on display at Salem's Peabody Museum, be it the New Guinea medicine man, the Chinese merchant, a penguin, or whatever, and turn the character into a puppet. When the puppet is finished, introduce it to everyone else and join the Grand Parade. The creative fun is at the museum, located on East India Square in Salem, at 10 am. Admission is a mere dollar. This program is for kids in grades four through six. Call 745-1876 for all the details.

The Hobbit

The Hobbit, an adaptation of JRR Tolkein's fantasy, is presented by the Boston Children's Theatre beginning today at 2 pm in New England Life Hall, 225 Clarendon Street, in Boston. Tickets cost $2, $2.50 and $3. Performances are also scheduled for February 20 to 24 as well as March 3 and 10. For tickets, and all the particulars, call 277-3277.

PDQ Bach

Peter Schickele and his cohorts, the creators and long-time promoters of The Intimate PDQ Bach, a slightly irreverent and wholly hilarious musical farce, bring their shenanigans to Symphony Hall, 251 Huntington Avenue, in Boston tonight at 8. Scattered single tickets are still available at prices ranging from a low of $5.50 to a high of $8.50. They're available at the box office (266-1492).

18-Sun

China

China has been in the news a lot lately, so the new exhibit at the Museum of Our National Heritage is particularly timely. Early Oriental Export Ware, which opens today, is a collection of things from China and Japan that were made for the export trade in the 18th and 19th centuries: porcelain, lacquerware, and fans. The museum is at 33 Marrett Road in Lexington, and the hours are 10 am to 4 pm Monday through Saturday, noon to 5:30 pm on Sunday. Whenever you go, it's free. For more information, call 861-6559.

Born in Boston

The De Cordova Museum has its spotlight on 16 prominent artists who were born or raised in the Boston area. Represented by their works are local talents like Jack Levine, Frank Stella, Carl Andre, and Irene Rice Pereira. The show will be up at the De Cordova through April 22, Tuesday through Friday from 10 am to 5 pm (Wednesday nights until 9:30), noon to 5 pm on Saturday, and 1:30 to 5 pm on Sunday. Admission is $1.50, 50 cents for anyone under 21, and free on Wednesday nights. For more information, call 259-8355. The De Cordova is on Sandy Pond Road in Lincoln.

Shirley Verrett

As part of the Boston University Celebrity Series, Shirley Verrett is in recital this afternoon at 3 at Symphony Hall in Boston. Verrett started her professional career as a mezzo-soprano, and has recently turned her attention to pure soprano roles. Her recital of songs this afternoon includes works by Beethoven, Richard Strauss, Chausson, Debussy, and spirituals. Ticket prices are $8, $9, and $10, at Symphony Hall, where you can also call, for more information, 266-1492.

Peter Schickele plays PDQ Bach, Saturday in Symphony Hall.

In the Afternoon

Take your Valentine to a program of lovely music, performed by the Pro Arte Chamber Orchestra of Boston, directed by Larry Hill, this afternoon at 3:30 at the Church of the Covenant, 67 Newbury Street in Boston. On the agenda: the Boston premiere of Matthew Locke's Cupid and Death; Bach's Wedding Cantata Number 202; and selections from The Magic Flute. Admission is $3.50, $2.50 for students. For more information, call 267-9060 between 10 am and 5 pm any day but Sunday or Monday.

Roots

A sequel to the phenomenally popular television series Roots is Roots: The Next Generation, and it starts tonight at 8 on Channel 5, WCVB. The Next Generation will run for eight nights, two hours a night.

Jazz All Night

For the tenth year in a row, Jazz Coalition is holding an all-night jazz concert. The music starts tonight at 8 at the Church of the Covenant, 67 Newbury Street in Boston, and continues right through Monday morning. Some of the musicians and groups slated to perform are pianist Jaki Byard and vocalist Shiela Jordan, trumpet favorite Claudio Roditi, and Baird Hersey and the Year of the Ear.

February 15/21

The 12 hours of jazz costs $5, and that includes breakfast. For more details, call 267-3608 or 266-7480.

An Evening of Jazz

If 12 hours of jazz is too much of a good thing, you still don't have to stay home. Stan Strickland (saxophone and flute), Stanton Davis (trumpet), and Aisha Kahlil (vocals) are on stage tonight from 9:30 on at Lulu White, 3 Appleton Street in Boston. The music is African and American, jazz and dance; the cover is $4. Call for information and reservations: 423-3652.

19-Mon

Hockey Action

Now through February 25, the Kiwanis Club of Quincy's Sixth Annual International Youth Hockey Tournament is going on at the Quincy Youth Hockey Rink, 60 Murphey Memorial Drive in Quincy. It's a Class A, AHA-sanctioned event, with 56 teams from the United States and Canada competing in Bantam, Pee Wee, Mite, and Squirt play. 80 games will be played during the double-elimination tournament, starting at 7 this morning. A pass good for all the games can be purchased on the first day of the tournament for $3; otherwise, single tickets are $2 for adults, $1 for students; all at the door. For more information, call the rink at 479-8371.

Cuban Music

Silvio Rodriguez and Pablo Milanes, two musicians from Cuba, are in concert tonight at John Hancock Hall, 180 Berkeley Street in Boston. The music, which starts at 8, is a combination of Afro-Cuban-Latin styles. The tickets are $5, and are on sale at the door. For more information, call 421-2000.

The Harvard Chamber Orchestra

The Harvard Chamber Orchestra gives a free concert this evening at 8:30 in the Sanders Theatre of Harvard University in Cambridge.

Stanton Davis plays jazz at Lulu White on Sunday.

Under the baton of composer-pianist Leon Kirchner, the orchestra has chosen a program of Haydn, Schumann, and the First and Second Suites for Petite Orchestra, by Igor Stravinsky. For more information, call 495-2924.

20-Tues

The Two Penny Circus

Beginning at 2, an afternoon of fun for vacationers. The Two Penny Circus at the Newton North High School auditorium, on Elm Street in Newtonville means clowns, mime, music, juggling, and fantasy. Admission is $1.25 a head, and you can get directions and more information by calling the Newton Recreation Department at 552-7120.

Chapter Two

Chapter Two is Neil Simon's semi-autobiographical Broadway comedy. Now, via touring company, it comes to Boston's Shubert Theatre, where it opens tonight at 7:30. Running to March 17, the show hits the boards Monday through Saturday evenings at 8; matinees are Wednesday and Saturday at 2, Sunday at 3. To reserve tickets, which range in price from $17.50 to $9, call the theatre at 426-4520. It is located at 265 Tremont St.

Well-Tempered

Harpsichordist John Gibbons starts a series of lecture-recitals tonight at 7 at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. Taking as his text Bach's Well-Tempered Clavier, Gibbons will perform and discuss Books I and II in five meetings through April 10. Tonight: Preludes and Fugues One through Twelve from Book I. All the concerts take place in Gallery II-45. Individual tickets are $3, $2.50 for students and members. Tickets for the whole series are $14 and $11. For more information, call 267-9300, extension 340.

The Circus

The Monte Carlo International Circus Festival Spectacular (whew!) opens tonight in the Civic Center in Providence with a full contingent of acrobats, aerialists, clowns, gymnasts, tigers, chimps, and tightrope walkers. Tonight's show is at 7:30. Wednesday through Friday the circus starts at 2:30 pm and again at 7:30. There are three shows on Saturday, February 24: at 11 am, 3 and 8 pm; and two on Sunday the 25th: at 1:30 and 5 pm. All the tickets are $5, $6, and $7.50. To charge tickets, call 426-8181. For information, call the box office at (401) 331-6700.

21-Wed

Movies

There is a festival of German cinema happening at the Brattle Theatre in Cambridge, and tonight's offering is one of the most popular German movies of all: The Threepenny Opera (Die Dreigroschenoper), directed by G W Pabst in 1931. The music by Kurt Weill is the source of Mack the Knife. Also coming up at the Brattle: a double feature of Fritz Lang's M, and The Blue Angel, with Marlene Dietrich. The Threepenny Opera shows at 7:45 tonight and the tickets are $1.50. For more information, call the Brattle (40 Brattle Street in Cambridge) at 876-4226.

Outdoors | Off-Season

There are other attractions to off-season vacation spots besides the solitude.

By Liz Horwitt

There's something very special about a summer resort in the off-season. Places like Rockport or the Cape, mob scenes in July and August, become havens of solitude in February or March, with wild, windswept, empty stretches of sand and beachgrass, or rocky coast. There are other attractions to off-season vacation spots besides the solitude: the inns and restaurants that stay open offer cut-rate prices, and you don't have to worry about anything being booked up.

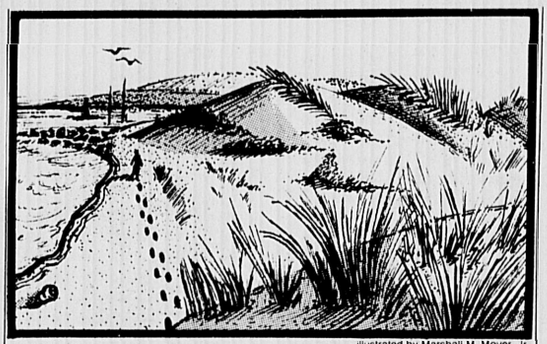

Here are some spots which you may know intimately as summer places, but which turn into different kinds of places altogether in the winter.

Walden Pond. In the summer, it costs $2 to enter the parking lot by MetroBoston's Walden Pond, in Concord, unless you want to park on the road and risk getting towed. Once you finally do get inside Thoreau's sanctified retreat, you have to pick your way among the beer cans, blankets, rowdy teenagers and blaring radios, and walk at least half way 'round the Pond before you find an empty patch of ground big enough to sit down on.

October through March, though, Walden gets other types of visitors: fisherfolk, a few quiet couples, and joggers, for whom Walden is a private place they want to keep for themselves. Bring a blanket and a thermos of hot coffee.

The Cape. Contrary to popular belief among Bostonians, Cape Cod doesn't disappear in the winter time. Hit the beaches — it'll be just you (and maybe a friend), and a seagull or two. The Cape Cod National Seashore (South Wellfleet, Massachusetts 02663; 349-3785) has literature describing the different historic and nature trails. Nauset Trail, Head of Meadow Trail and Province Lands Trail are bicycle trails open in winter. Two visitor centers are open: Salt Pond in Eastham and Province Lands in Provincetown, both from 8:30 am to 4:30 pm. Province Lands is closed Monday through Wednesday.

There are no guided walks along the trails in winter, but going by yourself, quietly, has its advantages: you may see a fox, or rabbit, or even a deer. The most exciting times on the Cape are during ocean storms, when the natives gather at beach parking areas to feel the high winds and watch the waves.

illustrated by Marshall M. Moyer, Jr.

Lots of motels, some with heated pools, stay open during the winter on the Cape, at much lower rates. Hyannis has several; Provincetown has a few; so does Orleans. The Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce (Hyannis, Massachusetts 02601; 362-3225) has information about what's open when. Restaurants stay open, too, from ritzy establishments in Provincetown to native-frequented Portuguese-style seafood eateries.

Sturbridge Yankee Winter Weekends. Sturbridge in the summer tends to be a well-beloved cliché of the stereotypical tourist town. A Massachusetts resident visits Sturbridge the way a native New Yorker visits the Statue of Liberty — once is maybe too much.

If you're fed up with Sturbridge in the tourist season, you may be pleasantly surprised by what it offers in the winter. This very week, there is a whole variety of activities planned at Old Sturbridge Village, from slide talks to walking tours, all part of the Village's Washington's Birthday Week. The Week kicks off on Sunday, February 18, with an early 19th century-style Washington's Birthday Ball. And, through March, the Village combines forces with the Old Sturbridge Publick House, and the two come forth with their Yankee Winter Weekends.

The weekend starts at the Publick House, where visitors are met with a "syllabub", a mixture of Chablis wine and cream, and "Joe Froggers" — gigantic ginger cookies. Food, as well as history, is a major theme of the weekend. Later on there's a candlelight buffet, in case you're still hungry. Next morning there's a "hearty New England breakfast." If you're capable of movement after all this, you're taken over to Old Sturbridge Village, a complete recreated New England Village from the early 1800s, with, among other things, a working gristmill, General Store, pottery shop, meeting house, blacksmith, and tinsmith.

The weekend guests convene in Old Sturbridge Tavern for mulled cider and a buffet luncheon. Afterwards, they can catch a "sugaring off," the making of maple sugar candy on snow, outside the Tavern. After that guests are treated to a sleigh ride through Sturbridge Village, then head back to the Publick House, for a game dinner. Sunday is a "day for relaxation" in front of the big open hearth in the Publick House taproom, with more food.

For rates and information about Yankee Winter Weekends, which are held through the last weekend in March, write or call the Innkeeper at the Publick House, Sturbridge, Massachusetts 01566, 347-3313. For details on Washington's Birthday Ball and Week, call Old Sturbridge Village at 347-3362.

Museums | Higgins Armory

The armory is a living history book of the days when men lived, fought, and died for God, their ladies, and their countries.

By Alice Wilding-White

The John Woodman Higgins Armory in Worcester brings the past to the present in a very warm and realistic way. Over 100 suits of armor line the vaulted hallway, making the museum's collection the largest and most diverse in the western hemisphere.

Founded in 1931 by John Woodman Higgins, the museum's major objectives have always been to illustrate the uses of metal in art and war. There is an exception, a show of Stone Age tools and weapons in the upstairs gallery; most of the museum, though, is dedicated to armor and helmets, from ancient times all the way up through the 19th century. To give a touch of authenticity, the armor is displayed in a simulated castle hall. And, unlike many other museums' exhibits, which are surrounded by white, sterile walls, the armor at the armory is kept totally in the open. The viewer can see, without the glare of glass, the intricate details in each suit.

Greek and Roman helmets and armor dating back to 600 BC show the gradual adaptation of metal for armor. The earliest armor was made out of copper, then bronze, and finally, iron. The goal was to create a suit that was strong, yet comfortable. The Greek breastplate and backplate on exhibit are shaped to the countours of a man's body, and were made from a cast taken from the imprint of the wearer's body in sand.

The eastern countries contributed a great deal to the development of armor in the west by introducing chain mail, a strong yet flexible shirt made of metal rings linked together. Chain mail was used in the rest from Roman times onward, particularly during the Crusades. The museum has several examples of chain mail on display.

Rows of suits in the main hall demonstrate the final perfecting of armor in the 14th, 15th, and 16th centuries. Iron plates were placed over coats of mail to provide more protection. As many as 200 individual plates were worked into a suit of armor, so that the wearer's movements would not be hindered by the 65 pounds of metal that encased him. The later pieces in the collection are elaborate, beautiful, and very impractical, since armor, however pliable, slowly lost its use in battle and became purely decorative.

John Woodman Higgins began gathering this unusual collection of armor when he bought his first suit as a schoolboy on a tour of Europe in 1904. Fascinated by the many properties and uses of metal in art and in the modern world, he later traveled throughout Europe with his wife, Clara Carter Higgins, studying and obtaining what he felt was "historic examples of . . . functional art."

As a result of his interest in steel, John Woodman Higgins built one of the first steel and glass buildings in Worcester. He moved his growing collection of armor, which had quickly become too large for his house, to the third and fourth floors of the building. Designing the interior like a castle, he wanted to create that old, dusty atmosphere, and even tried blowing grease from smudge pots onto the walls.

Due to John Woodman Higgins' work, the armory is a living history book of the days when men lived, fought, and died for God, their ladies, and their countries.

Notes:

The John Woodman Higgins Armory is located in Worcester, at 100 Barber Street. Hours at the Armory are Tuesday through Friday 9 am to 4 pm, Saturday 10 am to 3 pm, Sunday 1 to 5 pm. It is closed on Monday. Admission is $1.50 for adults, $1 for anyone over 65, 50 cents for children, and free for members. Reduced admissions are available for groups of 20 or more with advance reservations. There is no charge for parking.

During school vacation week, there are special activities for children, which include demonstrations of Suiting-Up in Armor (February 20 at 2 pm), Jousting (February 21 at 2 pm) and a helmet-making workshop (February 23 at 10 am and 2 pm). Call the armory at 853-6015 for details.

Theatre | Strangers

What Strangers ends up being is a minor history lesson, with some passion on the side.

Strangers
A new play by Sherman Yellen, directed by Arvin Brown. Settings by David Jenkins, costumes by Ann Roth, lighting by Ronald Wallace. The stars are Bruce Dern and Lois Nettleton. At the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston Street in Boston.

By Vivian Noble

Strangers is a new, Broadway-bound play about the romance between journalist Dorothy Thompson and novelist Sinclair Lewis. It is aptly titled. Not only do the two principals seem to be completely unfathomable to each other throughout — no one else gets to know them, either. What Strangers ends up being is a minor history lesson, with some passion on the side.

The real Sinclair "Red" Lewis and Dorothy Thompson had both suffered through unhappy marriages before they met, in Berlin, in the mid-Twenties. Love-smitten, Lewis pursued Thompson as she flew off, chasing stories, to Vienna and even Russia. They were married in 1928, and the match lasted 14 stormy years, during which Thompson ascended to national fame for her probing columns and radio talks, and Lewis disintegrated into drunkenness. Their story is the stuff of misguided romance; so romantic, and so close to outlandish, that any reiteration of it runs the risk of being absurdly melodramatic and totally incredible.

Strangers, which traces the affair, is both, through it's more unbelievable than soapy. From the moment Bruce Dern, as Lewis, declares his love and intentions of marriage, and Thompson replies, wearily, that geniuses are always attracted to her, you're set up for an evening with super-beings, not people. Unfortunately, these super-beings aren't terribly interesting. Despite some amusing verbal ping-pong games devised by playwright Sherman Yellen, and despite all the honors that fall upon the pair (Lewis won the Nobel Prize in 1930; Thompson was dubbed "The First Lady of Journalism"), and despite some tempestuous argument scenes, the two are nothing more than posters pasted up against assorted backgrounds, mouthing feelings. They get dull. Lewis is always the brilliant, drunken hayseed who wrote Main Street; Thompson is the perpetually excitable and ambitious journalist.

A few moments of genuine drama do exist in Strangers. When Thompson speaks briefly about one of her lesbian affairs, there is a quick flash of something more than the ranting go-getter. It's there too, when she and Lewis get together with her ex-husband and his new, scatter-brained wife, and the men start taunting Thompson. It's there in some of Lewis's one-liners. But isolated scenes and phrases don't make a play, and neither do two legends, however exotic they may have been. In much the same way that a biography can't be confused with a novel, a staged biography so literal as Yeller's can't be confused with a play. Strangers should have more to it.

It should also have a more relaxed Dorothy Thompson. Lois Nettleton, with a few exceptions, is nervous, and too declamatory; her reaction to thrilling assignments is that of a child hopping up and down because she's going to camp tomorrow. With his hair dyed red, Bruce Dern bears a very strong resemblance to the real Sinclair Lewis, and he's nicely understated, especially when he's being viciously sarcastic. The two wander through sets by David Jenkins that are pleasant, if not inspired. They are directed adequately by Arvin Brown.

Strangers is at the Colonial until February 17.

Movies | Same Time, Next Year

Same Time, Next Year is the sort of movie that ought to have been made 20 years ago, with Doris Day and Rock Hudson.

Same Time, Next Year
Directed by Robert Mulligan, with a screenplay by Bernard Slade, from his own play. Music by Marvin Hamlisch. With Alan Alda and Ellen Burstyn. At Boston's Cheri.

By Maggie Hall

Picture this. It's 1951. George, a happily married accountant from New Jersey, and Doris, a happy housewife from Oakland, meet one day in a lovely little country inn in California. George is on an annual business trip, and Doris is on her way to a religious retreat. They each have three children. They get to talking over dinner, spend the night together, discover they have fallen in love, and have an affair, once a year for the next 26 years. That's Same Time, Next Year.

It's a conceit that's hard to swallow. If they are so happily married, why continue the affair for so long? If they are so much in love with each other, why keep up the other marriages? This is "creative license," folks, and it calls for an almost total suspension of belief.

George (Alan Alda) and Doris (Ellen Burstyn) celebrate their affair, in Same Time, Next Year.

Same Time, Next Year is clearly a stage transplant. The screenplay was adapted by Bernard Slade from his own Broadway success, and it arrives on the screen with all the usual problems of a play-become-movie, chief among them: How do you deal with the curtain between the acts? Under Robert Mulligan's lackadaisical direction, the answer is not to deal with it at all. Every half-hour or so, the music swells, the action freezes and fades into a montage of photographs (stills) that we can recognize to pin down the passing years. Truman, Presley, Kennedy, the Beatles . . . in old movies, they used to use a revolving door, or pages falling off a calendar. Same thing: it's a lazy solution.

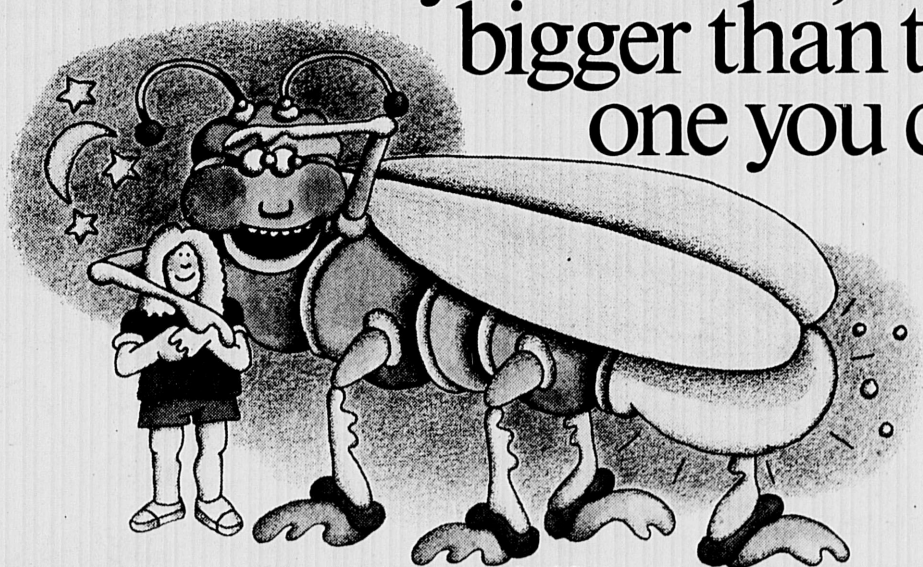

Another problem faced by plays that want to make the leap onto the screen is the relatively static set imposed by the physical limits of a stage. Mulligan hasn't approached this one with much creativity, either. He's kept one basic set, the inside of the cottage the lovers share for their rendezvous. Once in a great while he lets his players make a break for it: there's a stroll in the garden and a few dining room scenes, but for the most part, it's that same old cottage, and that being the case, someone ought to have been wittier about the interior design, because you get pretty sick of looking at it. And it's not as though there's much action to liven things up. Same Time, Next Year is all talk.

It isn't to everyone's taste, this badinage about love and sex and manners, but it creeps up on you. It's funny in spite of itself. Many of the laughs depend on the costume changes and the personality changes they are supposed to represent. Doris, who starts out simple and silly, dyes her hair blonde, has another baby, freaks out at Berkeley, starts her own business, and retires to play golf. George moves from accounting to consulting, to playing piano in a cocktail lounge, and back to accounting. He seems to age three years to every one of Doris's and he gets sillier as she gets wiser. He's still spouting pseudo-psychoanalytic jargon long after she's given it up, and their lives are in synchrony only in 1951 and 1977.

Ellen Burstyn, who originated the role of Doris on Broadway, has a funny squeaky voice and a warm presence. Alan Alda can keep up a good line of chatter, but his role is far less sympathetic than Doris's — George spends a lot of time being a jerk — which puts Alda at loose ends. He twitters aimlessly about, picking things up and putting things down, and at one point attacks a piano. Not spectacular.

Same Time, Next Year is the sort of movie that ought to have been made 20 years ago, with Doris Day and Rock Hudson. It's entertaining in its own mild way, slick, and dopey. The absolutely worst thing about it is the music, by Marvin Hamlisch, and a song called The Last Time I Felt Like This, sung by Johnny Mathis and Jane Olivor, all of which rival the state Iowa for pure corn.

See a firefly that's 262,000 times bigger than the last one you caught.

WCRB is proud to announce that The John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company will sponsor this season's Boston Symphony Orchestra. The concerts will be broadcast live on Saturday evenings over WCRB-FM radio. With no commercial interruptions.

Instead, Hancock is devoting all their commercial time to programs in the public interest. Like provocative discussions with Sarah Caldwell, Vernon Alden and many others.

We know how special these live performances of the Boston Symphony are to you. And we hope that listening to people like these will make these evenings even more special.

HUB

The Bay Tower Room-60 State St, Boston, 723-1666. High above downtown, haute cuisine (and haute prices). Pomme de ris de veau, filet of beef en cocotte, caviar . . . Full bar, and reservations are a good idea. Hours: Mon-Sat 6-11 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Dini's Sea Grill-94 Tremont St, Boston, 227-0380. Right on the Freedom Trail, the home of the schrod. Also, sole with lobster sauce. Relaxed family atmosphere. Full bar. Buncheon Special 10 am-11am. Hours: Daily until 10:30 pm. AE, MC.

The 57 Restaurant-200 Stuart St, Boston, 423-5700. A varied menu, with prime rib, lobster, and steak. Full bar. Reservations are recommended, and the prices are moderate. Hours: Daily, from 11:30 am to 2 am. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Hyatt Regency Cambridge-575 Memorial Dr, 492-1234. Three ways to eat: the revolving rooftop Spinnaker Lounge for lunches and light suppers; Jonah's on the Terrace for seafood and Sun brunch; and the Empress for continental Chinese cooking. Hours vary. All have a full bar, no reservations at Jonah's. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Jason's-130 Clarendon St, Boston, 262-9000. Dining among palm trees and sensational salt-water aquariums. Seafood and continental specialties: oysters Rockefeller, veal Oscar, roast Long Island duck. Downstairs, sandwiches and a seafood bar. Moderately expensive, full bar. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30 am-3 pm. Dinner daily 5 pm-midnight. AE, DC.

Legal Seafoods-237 Hampshire St, Cambridge, 547-1410. There are two principal schools of thought about Legal Seafoods: broiled or fried. Debate the issues while you are waiting in the upstairs bar; the lines at Legal are very long, even on weeknights. Patience is rewarded because the fish is great and the prices moderate. Hours: Open Mon-Sat from 11 am-9 pm and Sun from 1-9 pm. The bar provides all drinks. No credit cards and no reservations.

Marilave Restaurant-10 Bosworth St, Boston, 423-6340. Italian food like veal parmigiana and pasta specialties, all priced so that you can, here in the shopping district, put your money on your back, not in your tummy. Full bar. Hours: Daily except Sun, 11 am-10 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Polcari's-238 Causeway St, Boston, 742-4142. Yes, even on Wednesdays. Italian food like shrimp Margherita, lobster Fra Diavolo. Full bar, moderately expensive, reservations are a good idea. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-11:30 pm, opens at 5 pm on Sat. AE, DC, MC.

Scotch 'n Sirloin-77 N Washington St, Boston, 723-3677. Menu specials include teriyaki steak, ale-battered shrimp, and King Crab. Full bar, moderate prices, reservations accepted. Live entertainment. Hours: Daily, 5:30-10:30 pm, until 11:30 Fri and Sat. Dinner from 5 when the Bruins or Celtics play the Garden. Sun 3:30-9:30. AE, BA/V, MC.

Stroke and Eight-At the Ramada Inn, 1234 Soldiers Field Rd, Boston, 254-1234. A gay Nineties, athletic setting with continental and American food like veal Oscar and shrimp specialties. Fully licensed, reservations accepted. Hours: Daily, 11 am-3 pm and 5-10 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

NORTH

Andover Inn-Chapel Ave, Andover, 475-5903. On the grounds of Phillips Andover Academy, but a far cry from school fare. Some of the far-flung favorites are Loempia, scampi flambe. Make sure that the pastry cart rolls past your table. On Sundays, the dinner feature is Rijstaffel, a Dutch-Indonesian buffet. Moderately priced, elegant. Full bar. Open Mon-Sat, 11:30-3, and 5-10. Sun, 10:30 am-3 pm, and 4-9 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Bishop's-99 Hampshire St, Lawrence, 683-7143. The standard bill of fare — roasts and steaks — is enlivened by shish kebab and Arabic appetizers: tahini, stuffed grape leaves, baba ganoosh. Open daily, 11:30 am-10 pm, Fri-Sat nights 'til 11. Full bar. No reservations are taken on Sat nights, but they are strongly advised on Wed-Fri, and Sun. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Century House-235 Andover St, (Rte 114), Peabody, 531-1410. American cooking: Lobster pie, roast duckling Cumberland, twin lobster dinner. Full liquor license. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11:30 am-10 pm; Sun, noon-9 pm, AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Woodman's-121 Main St, Essex, 768-6451. Highly informal, this place is seafood city. Clams, scallops, sole, shrimp, lobster: an ocean of fish. It's inexpensive, and in the winter, not too crowded. Full bar, but no credit cards, and no reservations. Hours: daily, 11 am-9 pm; Fri-Sun, til 10 pm.

SOUTH

Canton House-Rte 27, Stoughton (at Cobbs Corner), 828-4720 or 344-4782. Chinese cuisine and Cantonese specialties. Full bar, reservations accepted. Hours: Daily, 11:30-2. No credit cards.

Casa Berrini-Main St, Marshfield, 843-8765. Italian, continental, and traditional cuisine: veal, prime rib, fresh seafood, and salad Gazebo. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: Daily except Mon, 4 pm-1 am, Sun from 11 am. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

The Ground Round-Kings Plaza, Braintree, 848-4848, and other locations: a multi-media dining experience, music and TV along with burgers and other sandwich specialties. Inexpensive. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-1 am. No credit cards.

Humarock Lodge-Humarock Beach, nr Marshfield, 834-7981. Traditional and continental dining by the shore. Chateaubriand, coquilles St Jacques. Full bar, reservations. Hours: Daily except Mon 11:30-3 and 5 pm onwards. Sun brunch from 11:30-3. AE, DC.

The Victorian-583 Linwood Ave, Whitinsville, 234-2500. Whitinsville may be off the beaten track, but if you're in the area, or even if you're not, The Victorian will reward you with period decor and a menu that is mostly French, with continental and American accents. Closed Mons, otherwise, Tues-Sat, 11:30 am-2:30 pm and from 5:30 pm onwards, and Sun, noon-8 pm. Fully licensed. BA/V, MC.

Winsor House Inn-390 Washington St, Duxbury, 934-2548. The Winsor House is grandly Federalist without, warmly panelled within. Continental menu: Saltimbocca, coquilles St. Jacques, sole Jacqueline. Moderately expensive. Fully licensed. Hours: Tues-Sat 11:30 am-2 pm; Tues-Sat 6 pm-9 pm, Fri-Sat 6-10 pm. Reservations are a good idea for weekend dining. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

WEST

Le Bellecour-10 Muzzey St, Lexington, 861-9400. Now open under new management, Le Bellecour offers French cooking with some other touches, like an Indonesian Sate Babi at lunch, and medallions de chevreuil, which is venison. Full bar, reservations are recommended. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30-2 and 6-10; Sat, 6-10:30 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, MC.

The Inn at Princeton-Mountain Rd, Princeton, 464-2030. Home-cooked French food, like sweetbreads Divan, paupiettes de veau, and lamb chops en croute. Full bar, rather expensive. A reservation is a must on the weekends, and a good idea the rest of the time, too. Hours: Wed-Sun for dinner, 5-9 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Legal Seafoods-Rte 9, in the Chestnut Hill Shopping Center, 277-7300. Legal's outpost on the western front is sometimes less hectic than the Cambridge branch, especially if you are willing to eat early or late. Otherwise, the set-up is pretty much the same: the crowds, crowds, crowds are offset by the fish, fish, fish. Reservations for large parties. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Sat, 11 am-9 pm; Sun, 1-9 pm. AE, and personal checks.

Mill Falls-383 Elliot St, Newton Upper Falls, 244-3080. At Echo Bridge, a continental menu with rack of lamb, veal Oscar. Full bar, moderately expensive. Reservations are accepted. Hours: 11:45-2:30 and 5:30-10, until 11 Fri-Sat. Closed on Sun. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

The Publick House-Main St, on the Common, Sturbridge, 347-3313. The Publick House has been serving solid Yankee cooking for over 200 years. Full bar, reservations recommended on holidays. Hours: Daily, 7:30 am-1 am. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

It could only have happened at Jason's.

She wasn't an easy woman to impress. I told her about Jason's spinach salad. She preferred his swordfish with bernaise.

I described the beef wellington but she deftly topped me with a description of baked fish en papillote that left me weak with hunger.

I reminisced about Jason's Sunday brunch. She recited the whole brunch menu and told me what I'd missed.

In desperation I brought up Downstairs at Jason's. And when she didn't tell me about the handcut sandwiches and Jason's spectacular seafood bar I knew I had a chance.

I took her downstairs for drinks, and she was impressed.

Proving once again that the only way to impress someone who's been to Jason's is to take them there again.

#67 Spots

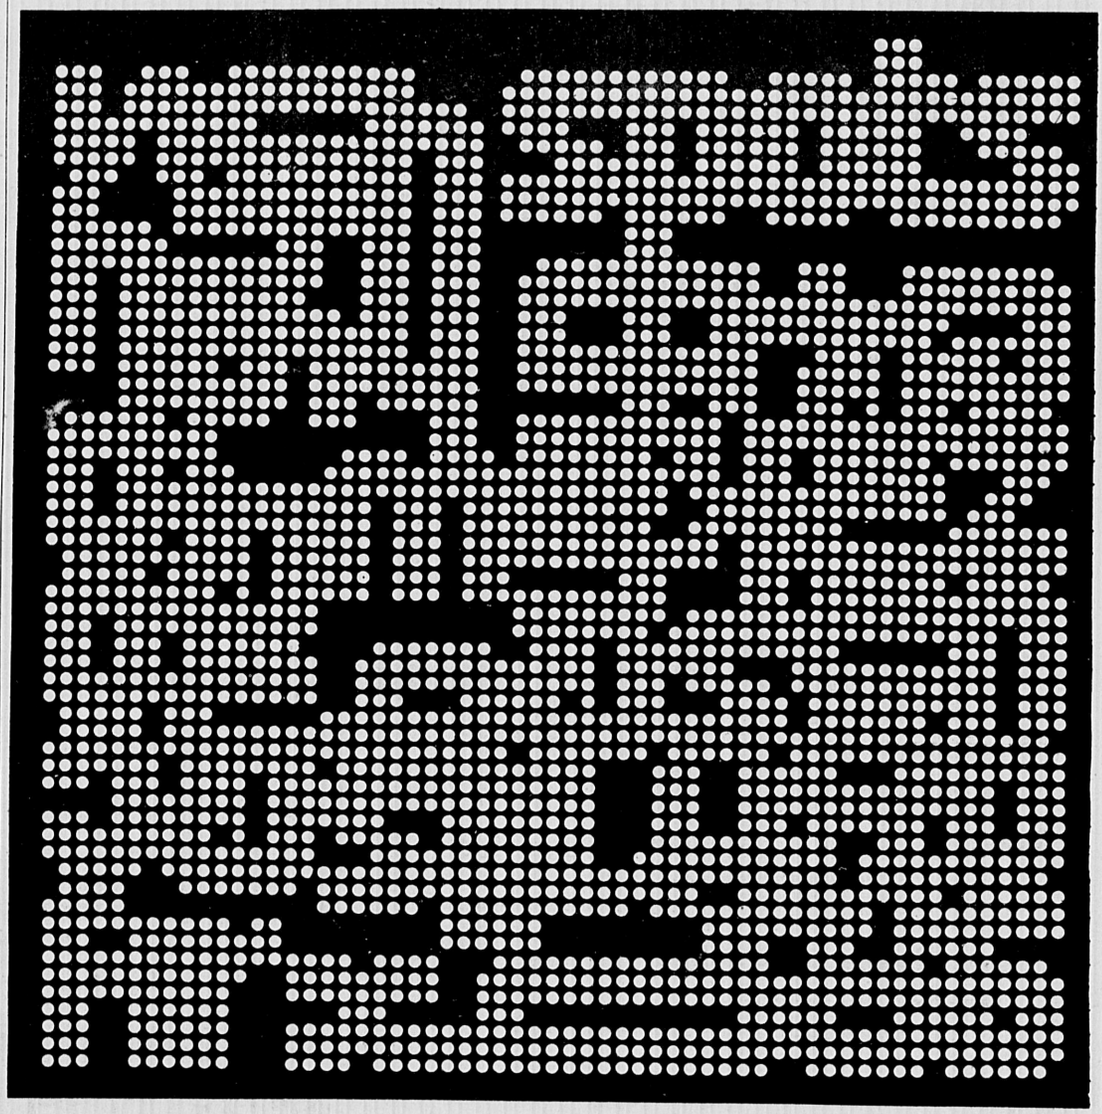

By Don Rubin

"So what is it that brings you to the ophthalmologist today, Mr. Stone?"

"It's these spots, Doctor, they're driving me crazy, absolutely crazy. To tell you the truth, I was even thinking of seeing a psychiatrist about them."

"A psychiatrist? Nonsense. There's nothing wrong with your mind. You're just suffering from a little eyestrain, that's all. Now if you'll take that colander off your head, I'd like you to look at this chart."

You can test your own sanity by identifying the words camouflaged at the right. Those words appear horizontally and vertically, rightside up, upside down, and sideways. We've even spotted you one to start you off.

Answers To Puzzle #65
Your P's and Q's

"Mirror, mirror on the wall . . ." Yes puzzlers, if you took this puzzle before a mirror you then could begin to unravel the words that were so cunningly hidden. But a mirror isn't all that it took. You also had to make some sense out of what we told you and the majority of you did just that. Here are the answers: piquant, undo, nymph, puny, nunnery, pundit, myrrh, hyphen, queue, boyhood, bipeds, prompt, and nonunion.

The first ten winners are: J L Swanton, N Smithfield, RI; Jack Kean, Winchester; A E Israelson, Framingham; J Cade, Winchester; Ruth M Smith, Arlington; Carol Donovan, Braintree; K E Connors, Framingham; Dave Cailler, Tewksbury; Steven Rose, Natick; Peter and Dolly Shields, Lowell.

Host f et a foreign student c at the airport. They expl customs and the monetary the student over for dinner, According to the program's chairman, Susan Forrester, many lasting friendships have been formed.

The Winchester families participating are Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Clive Holborow, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Potter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rothmann, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard I. Smollen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gosselin, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bumiller, Mr. and Mrs. William Lang, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Legvold, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Thompson Jr.

Immersion in a lifestyle that has completely disappeared in the United States was the daily experience for Kelly Evans, class of 1982, of Winchester, at Skidmore College.

She was a member of a January term course at Skidmore entitled "Voyaging Under Sail," integrating the experiences of reading voyaging literature and actually living on ships.

The first week of the course was held in Mystic, Conn. at Mystic Seaport aboard the Joseph Conrad, moored there as headquarters, and included studies of maritime history, sociology, economics and the conditions of life in a seaport.

The students also travelled to Woods Hole, Mass. to visit the Oceanographic Insititue and Marine Biolgoy Laboratory.

The final week of the course was spent aboard the Unicorn, a Tampa, Fla. brig, cruising the Flroida straits. As part of the crew, Ms. Evans studied navigation, seamanship and sail handling.

Ms. Evans is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Evans of 31 Myopia rd.

Mrs. Paul Keleher of Winchester is one of the Chaplaincy Committee members of the New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn preparing for the upcoming benefit hockey game featuring the Bruins Old Timers and the Woburn Captains "Over Thirty."

The Chaplaincy Program, which sponsors the event, includes the work of six seminarians at Boston area schools, providing pastoral counseling and helping to serve the religious needs of all faiths.

Viewers can see the "Bruins" and "Captains" face-off on Feb. 23 at 7 p.m. at the O'Brien Skating Rink in the Joyce Junior High School, Woburn.

Eva Orman of Winchester is very busy these days at Bunker Hill Community College in Charlestown. A member of student government, she is attending a workshop to make plans for the new semester.

Adele Pasciuto, Brookside avenue, Winchester, was the winner of a 17-jewel Swiss watch Saturday night in a drawing held at the Continental Cow, 32 Church st.

Ruann Warford, owner of the Beehive of Knots, 5 Shore rd., will be a participant in the annual New England Home Show, to be held at John B. Hynes Memorial Auditorium on March 3 through 10.

For more than nine years Warford has been creating decorative objects through the knotting and weaving of twine, cord and string into intricate patterns. Some of the items that may be purchased or seen on display at the home show are wall hangings, belts, purses, and chair seats.

The Winchester Shop has been in business for three years.

Peter MacDonald of Winchester was a recent winner in the Metroguide puzzle contest. MacDonald solved puzzle number 67, "Spot."

Ain't Misbehavin' is a musical tribute to Thomas "Fats" Waller, the jazz great of the Twenties and Thirties who composed and recorded such favorites as Keepin' out of Mischief Now and Honeysuckle Rose. When it opened in May 1978 on Broadway, the show was an immediate hit. Now. Three Tony awards later, it's swaggering into Boston for a seven-week run.

A young audience and parents alike were captivated by "76 Trombones," a musical production by the fifth and sixth graders at Parkhurst School. (Staff photo by Dan Walsh)

Maureen Winn Fights For Rights, Acceptance Of The Handicapped

By PAT ZUR

At Logan Airport a DC-8 had crashed. The streets were a whirlwind of excitement as ambulances and police cars, their sirens blaring, roared to the scene of the accident.

But inside the State House, a short distance away, no one stirred. All eyes were riveted upon a dynamic young woman with ice blue eyes reciting a poem at the assembly's podium.

The woman, Maureen Winn, was in a wheelchair. And the poem she was reading was a composition she had written to express the need for architectural change to accommodate disabled persons.

"It was amazing," says Maureen a Winchester resident now in her thirties. "Sirens were blasting so loudly from outside, but no one moved, not even the people who usually need only the slightest excuse to leave. It was my first time in the State House. I got up in front of all those people and I was on. It was like magic!"

That magic day was six years ago. Thanks to Maureen and her supporters, 15 months later, in July of 1974, the Architectural Barrier Bill was passed into law.

The bill, which adds a new chapter to the Massachusetts building code, stipulates that certain structural modifications be made in building construction to better accommodate people who are mobility impaired. Depending upon the size and value of the work to be done, the changes include making entrances more accessible to wheelchairs, reducing telephone heights, and modifying bathroom facilities.

The effects of the new law have been felt by a great number of people, not only builders and contractors, but those at the MBTA, Port and Housing Authorities as well.

Today, four and one-half years after the bill's passing, Maureen continues to be actively involved with its enforcement, acting on a board which hears the complaints of those unable to comply with the law and testifying against offenders of the bill at state hearings.

Maureen Winn has come a long way from the shy young girl in Spanish class who was secretly infatuated with the boy across the room. She has undergone a great many changes. Most of them normal, natural progressions we all experience in our lives as we encounter new friends or change work or lifestyles. But some were sudden changes, forced upon Maureen when, 18 years ago, unexpectedly and with little previous warning, she was stricken with multiple sclerosis, a progressive disease of the central nervous system.

Maureen sits in the comfortable surroundings of her colonial-furnished home. Misty, a shaved English sheep dog, is sprawled lazily at the side of her wheelchair. Although both of Maureen's legs are paralyzed, she still retains partial use of her hands.

Of the changes in her life says, "I was the most socially uncomfortable person I knew. I think that over the years my inner strength has most definitely surfaced. I didn't ask to be put into a world that can't accommodate me. But I'm here, so I'll just have to try to make all the necessary changes so that it does. Ten years ago, when I first started using a wheelchair, I began seeing all the things that were inaccessible to me. That's when we started a task force on architectural barriers."

Active in numerous sports in high school, Maureen had hoped to go to California to practice swimming and diving for possible Olympic competition. Although those sports may be out for her now, Maureen has discovered an entirely new hobby — wheelchair sports.

"Many disabled people don't realize their options," Maureen explains, "They don't know about all the neat things they can get into."

Everything that Maureen undertakes, it seems, is done with the same zeal and drive which reduced a state assembly room to a scene of quiet ceremony that long ago day in 1973.

A human services major at Boston University, she completed her program and received a bachelor's degree in just two years.

At her graduation, one of her teachers remarked that she should go to law school.

"Maureen," he said, "you'd be great in the court room."

Her father's retort to that: "Don't even mention law school to her because she'll probably be out in a year and a half."

Maureen has helped to pass 13 laws in the Massachusetts legislature. She also played an instrumental role, with a little help from Ralph Nader, in bringing the Department of Justice to file an anti-trust action against the country's leading durable equipment manufacturer. The suit which was filed in spring of 1978, questioned a company's right to be the sole manufacture of equipment for the handicapped which is, in many cases, poor quality.

Maureen recalls that at one consumer meeting, a man from this large corporation came "just to see who I was." In another instance, people belonging to this manufacturing company refused to sell her equipment, saying that they didn't want to lose their franchises.

"It's frightening what one person can do if he just speaks out," says Maureen.

The Architectural Barrier Bill and the anti-trust suit are only two in a long list of achievements Maureen has compiled for the cause of the handicapped. Every day she discovers yet another cause for protest, and in Maureen's case, a good fight for her rights.

At the root of Maureen's successful life is her desire to maintain a strong identity and a certain amount of independence.

"One of the greatest problems for a person who is born disabled," says Maureen, "is that they tend to get their wheelchair and their own identity mixed up."

At ther high school reunion, Maureen met up with a few guys who used to play basketball with her. "They were really upset," Maureen recalls. "They remember a super tom boy, now they see someone in a wheelchair." Her voice becomes emphatic. "Do you know two of those guys cried. I told them, 'Don't cry. Get to know me the way I am now.'"

In one of her classes in college, a professor decided to draw an aspect which described each of the members in his class. For Maureen, he drew a wheel. Maureen was crushed when she saw it. Here is this man, she thought, with so much supposed understanding, teaching about human services, and all he can see of me is my handicap.

Maureen, it is apparent, sees herself as much more than a woman in a wheelchair. And so, it seems, do the people with whom she associates.

Currently she is dating three men (only one of whom is handicapped). And she recalls that one of the nicest moments of her life was the time when one of her dates came to pick her up and forgot she was in a wheelchair.

WHS Plan Marathon Dance To Benefit Town Pool Fund

There are several things that the average person does on a Saturday afternoon. Commonly people wash the car (weather permitting), go grocery shopping, or simply enjoy the day off from work or school. But March 3, it's likely that some Winchester High School students will be doing an uncommon thing with their afternoon. They'll be nearing the end of a 24-hour dance marathon at Lincoln School.

The 24-hour dance, the idea of WHS student. Stephanie Schwartzman, will benefit the town's proposed community swimming pool. The town's first dance marathon, it is the combined effort of high school students and staff, members of the Parent Faculty Association, and the town Recreation Department.

The event will begin at 7 p.m. March 2 in the gymnasium of the Lincoln School. A wide variety of music, from disco to waltz, will be played by a taped sound system. If the dancers' stamina holds out, the marathon will continue until 7 p.m. the next day.

Already 40, 10th, 11th, and 12th grade students have signed up to participate, but Stephanie and Student Union president, Donna Farrell, said they expect more to join in.

To dance, students must obtain at least 10 sponsors. A sponsor pledges to pay the dancer a minimum of 25 cents per hour on the floor. The dancers have an incentive for making it to the 24-hour mark. A $100 prize will be awarded to the couple dancing the longest. If more than one pair is still moving after 24 hours, the prize will be given to the couple who collect the most pledges.

"A lot of kids are going for the $100," Stephanie explained. "One kid has 45 sponsors already and he's sure he can make it 24 hours."

Another selling point for marathon organizers in recruiting people to dance, is the possibility that Channel 4's Evening Magazine camaras may be filming the marathon.

Stephanie said that Jerry Ferro of the Recreation Department contacted Evening Magazine with the film feature idea. She said the Evening Magazine board will review the idea, and the marathon organizers should know if the camaras will arrive a week before the dance.

Stephanie and Donna both insist that many of the dancers will be able to last 24 hours. They claim students stay up 24 hours writing papers for school, why not stay up doing something they enjoy?

If you have visions of "They Shoot Horses Don't They," Stephanie and Donna said Winchester's marathon will not be that severe.

First, the only rule is that the dancer's feet are moving. Slow dances will help to "rest" tired feet. The participants will also take 10 minute breaks every hour.

The organizers are encouraging many people to dance, even if it's only for four hours. Individuals may also enter the contest, but only couples are eligible for the $100 prize.

Stephanie said that Disco-tronics will be providing the taped music, and light show. The music, despite the system's name, won't be all disco.

"Kids get sick of disco," she said. The Disco-tronic people will bring along music spanning 40 years. A disk jocky comes along with their repertoire, and Stephanie said he is expected to be an inspirational force to keep the dancers dancing.

The organization has played for Winchester high school dances before, and Stephanie said they are getting a break on the price of the music. They'll play 24 hours for $400. The group's usual rate is about that price for only four hours.

The radio station will carry the marathon during their regular hours. There is a possibility that the station may

Officials See Many Problems Ahead From King's Plan

Governor Edward King's proposed plan to cap local spending and taxes at the FY'79 level presents serious problems to Winchester, a town with limited potential for tax growth and rising service costs due to inflation, the members of the Board of Selectmen said Tuesday night in a meeting with State Sen. Samuel Rotondi and State Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh.

The Governor's proposal also includes measures which would substantially decrease local control over municipal budgets, board Chairman Edward F. O'Connell told Rotondi and Saltmarsh, who were invited to give selectmen clarification of the bill, before the first hearings on the proposal, scheduled for yesterday.

"Are we paranoiac when we raise the specter of state intervention in local affairs?" O'Connell asked. "Sure, we want to cut our budget to the minimum, but we also want to preserve this aspect of local government," he continued.

"How are these statements perceived by members of the Legislature?" O'Connell asked Rotondi and Saltmarsh.

Rep. Saltmarsh agreed that elements of the bill would seriously erode home rule, citing as an example the section dealing with a Local Finance Appeals Board.

The appeals board, which would grant exemptions from the established tax limits, would consist of five members, all appointees of the Governor, Saltmarsh noted.

A local governing body would be able, by a two-thirds vote, to request permission of the board to exceed its budget limit, the representative explained.

No guidelines for judging these requests is outlined in the Governor's tax limitation proposal and full authority is granted the board members, according to an analysis of the proposal by the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns.

Rep. Saltmarsh called the description of the appeals board "misleading," noting that the selectmen had hit the sensitive point in the bill in questioning this section.

"From reading this, you get the impression that you get what you want," Saltmarsh said. "All it means is that you go to an appeals board. It doesn't say what you're going to do there," he added.

"Any type of appeals board like that would lose my support," the representative told selectmen.

Commenting on other details of the proposal which are causing concern to local governments, Sen. Rotondi said, "There are still lots of issues to look at, bugs to be worked out — the questions of binding arbitration, tenure for both teachers and non-teachers.

"Senate President William Bulger, who hasn't yet commented on the legislation, and others are being very cautious on this," Rotondi said.

Saltmarsh noted another problem which the bill presents to local officials, saying that the proposal doesn't address the problem of fiscal autonomy of school departments.

"If the school budget goes up," Saltmarsh said, "the funds will have to come from other town departments."

Both legislators agreed with selectmen that the proposed tax limitation proposal presents particular problems to a town like Winchester, that is well managed and has already made concerted efforts to keep its costs pruned.

Saltmarsh said that because Winchester has no "fat in its budget," it will be especially difficult for the town to meet the intent of the legislation.

Selectman Richard N. Wilsack noted that some communities have talked of borrowing to keep their tax rate down, but Winchester has not considered borrowing.

In response, Saltmarsh noted that borrowing brings further problems to communities, saying, "I think that's poor management on a town's part, even in view of the tax caps. Winchester is one of nine communities in the state that has a triple A credit rating," the representative added.

In response to the board's questions about the mood of the Legislature, Saltmarsh said, "There is a lot of pressure on every elected official, that we've got to do something about property taxes.

"I don't think the proposal will end up in the form as presented by the Governor, because it's loaded with technical problems," he said. "I don't know what form it will be in on the ballot," he continued," but if it gets on the ballot, it will sail by."

Chairman O'Connell requested that Sen. Rotondi and Rep. Saltmarsh keep the selectmen informed of any changes in the tax limitation proposal.

"Here we sit with our budget," O'Connell said," "not knowing what may be imposed on us. It's possible that major surgery will have to be performed."

FY '80 Budget Proposes $6.74 Tax Increase

The Town Manager's Office has released a proposed budget of $22,688,065 for fiscal year 1980 for the town of Winchester.

The fiscal year 1979 budget is $21,784,710.

According to Town Manager Thomas Groux, a tax rate of $81.54 is projected at this time, in order to produce a property tax of $16,879,065 (assuming assessed valuations of $207,000,000).

This would be a $6.74 tax increase over the present tax rate of $74.80.

In announcing the budget, Groux said, "My revenue projections are conservative, expenditure projections are realistic or even on the high side, and, of course, the cherry sheet has not been distributed by the Commonwealth yet."

Groux said he believes that the tax increase projected at this time will be substantially lower by the time the May, 1979 Town Meeting convenes, since Governor Edward King and the Legislature are in the process of drafting new legislation aimed at producing caps on local spending as well as caps on local taxes.

Furthermore, Groux said, the amount of state aid distributed to local governments will hopefully be increased.

The town manager said he carefully

Still No Newspaper? Call Us At 643-7900

To Our Subscribers:

The gremlins are slowly being driven out of our new computerized mail label system but your help is still needed to refine the list.

If you are getting your paper late or are getting the wrong paper or are not getting a paper at all, please notify us by calling the circulation department at 643-7900.

The problems which have occurred have generally involved a mismatch between the way your street and address was recorded in our records and the way it occurred in the computer master list of the entire town. So if we spelled "road" as "Rd." and the computer only recognized Road, it would kick your label out of sequence and put it at the bottom of the list.

Over the past several weeks our circulation department has spent literally hundrds of hours checking and cross checking addresses and we hope you will bear with us during this transition period. Thank you for your understanding and cooperation.

Suspect Charged With Sat. Robbery

In the second robbery at the Old Colony gas station within a week, an attendant at the station was held up at knife point and approximately $150 was taken on Saturday night.

A short while after the robbery, Winchester police Sgt. Joe Perritano apprehended a suspect, Peter S. Greco, of Blossom Hill road, in the woods approximately one quarter of a mile from the gas station. The suspect was carrying a knife and $175.

According to the gas station attendant, Andrew Bowker, of Winchester, a man wearing a green jacket and welding glasses approached him, produced a knife, took the money and fled in the direction of the Dairy Barn next door.

Winchester police alerted the Woburn Police Department and dispatched a description of the man.

Police apprehended the suspect and brought him back to the station, where he was identified by the attendant and charged with armed robbery.

The suspect was arraigned on Tuesday and a date was set for a probable cause hearing.

Assault and battery complaints against four Winchester youths, in connection with a Sunday attack on four out-of-town youths were filed in Woburn District Court on Tuesday.

Police said the three youths from Woburn and one youth from Lynn had left the train station and were walking on Main street early Sunday morning, when they were confronted by the Winchester youths.

A short while later, according to police, the same four Winchester youths were involved in an assault, also on Main street, of a Winchester man.

The man was taken to Winchester Hospital, police said, where he received 12 stiches in his forehead.

Police later identified the owner of the car in which the four Winchester youths were riding.

Police report that a man in a car exposed himself to a 13-year-old youth in front of the youth's house on Dix street at 5:49 Friday evening.

broadcast all night for the event, but details still need to be worked out, Stephanie said.

The idea of holding a marathon in Winchester first came up last year.

Stephanie said she suggested it to the Student Union because she would like to dance in one herself. A marathon was planned for the spring of 1978. At that time Evening Magazine was called by Ferro, who expressed an interest in filming the marathon's start and finish.

Last year's marathon was planned to benefit the scholarship fund, but at the last minute it was cancelled.

Stephanie blames its cancellation on not having a formal written proposal of the event.

This year, with the support of Mary Barger of the Parent Faculty Association, she went before the Student Union at the high school and the event was approved.

Many details have been worked out in the marathon's planning stages. For instance, if a dancer drops out of the marathon after 11 p.m. Friday, he or she will not be allowed to leave unless their parents come to pick them up. The doors of the Lincoln School will be closed to dance marathon spectators after 11 p.m. Friday, but will reopen Saturday at 8 a.m.

The PFA is providing "high energy" foods for the dancers during the marathon. Ferro is trying to arrange a special lunch on Saturday.

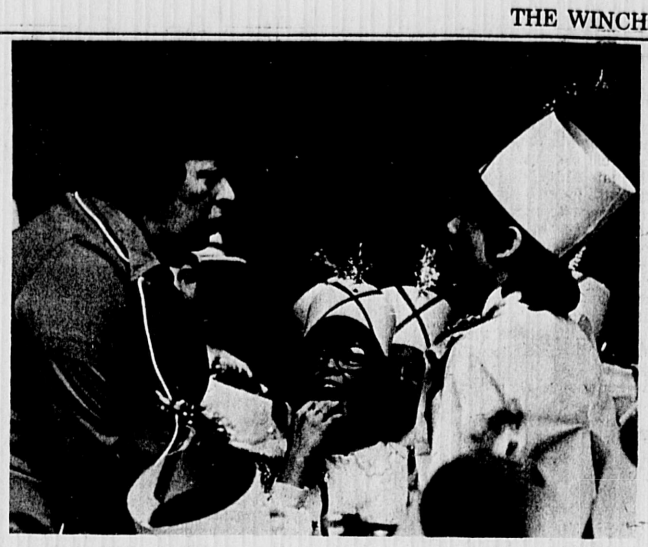

Some of the staff members at WHS are assisting as chaperones. Nancy Atkins, and Randee Martin, and Lorin Maloney have volunteered for the task.

Five nurses have also volunteered their time so that medical help will be available throughout the marathon. Assisting will be Kathy Kirkpatrick, Loretta Pharo, Ann Kent, Pat Skehan, and Kathy Sullivan.

Others who will help include Mrs. Barger, Ferro, students, and parents.

Spectators will be more than welcome during the marathon, except when the doors close for the early hours of Saturday.

All in all, there's a good possibility the pool fund will benefit generously from the event. Expenses for the dance are estimated at $1500, and sponsors are hoped to outnumber the costs.

reviewed the budgetary requests of all departments and made reductions in those requests, in anticipation of the Governor's proposed legislation, which would substantially limit local expenditures and local taxes.

Groux said he also made reductions from the fiscal 1979 level of spending in some cases where it appeared possible to do so without significantly affecting services. The only budget requests he did not reduce, Groux said, were those submitted by elected boards.

Most of the expenditure increases in the town's budget are the result of either wage adjustments flowing from collective bargaining contracts or increased energy costs for fuel, gas, electricity and other types of utilities, the town manager said.

Power Outage Hits Center Area

Three hundred customers of Boston Edison were without electrical power for approximately eight hours Monday, according to a Boston Edison spokesman.

The power outage that occurred at 1:30 p.m. affected homes and business in the Winchester center area. According to police, a short circuit on a shield of an Edison pole on Winchester place caused the failure. Edison crews worked on temporary repairs to the wire, and power resumed at 3 p.m.

Edison spokesman Bill Conley said power was stopped again at 6:40 p.m. and remained out until 1:15 a.m. Tuesday while the crews made permanent repairs.

Officials Critical Of CETA Change

Local officials for the federal jobs program CETA (Comprehensive Employment Training Act) are upset over a change in CETA regulations, announced on Jan. 19.

As of April 1, the average annual salary per CETA position must be $7200, according to the new regulation.

Under the present policy, an average of $7800 per slot has been set as a goal, but there has been no requirement that the goal be reached.

In order to achieve the $7200 average for yearly salaries, the CETA consortiums in Massachusetts will not be able to offer as many $10,000 a year maximum salary positions as they do at present.

Howard Chase Jr., CETA coordinator for the town of Winchester and a member of the Area Advisory Manpower Planning Board, called the new regulation "upsetting," one which could "cripple the program."

"This requirement will automatically rule many people out from the CETA program," Chase said. "You . Ceta regulation can't offer a married person with a family a job paying $138 a week," he said.

A CETA laborer working at the department of public works currently earns $192.30 per week, according to Chase.

"Now we're going to ask them to work for a weekly salary of $138," he continued, noting that some local CETA officials are "wild over this new regulation."

"We'd like to see something done about this," Chase said.

Winchester is one of 12 communities within the Medford CETA Consortium.

Cathy Bentis, public information officer of CETA Balance of State, which includes the Medford Consortium, said work is still being done on the new regulation, which will be finalized by the end of March.

"People in our office have questioned the Department of Labor about this regulation," Bentis said. "They're asking, 'Is it realistic to think we'll get people on board for $7200 a year?'" Bentis said.

The intent of the requirement that consortiums achieve an average of $7200 per CETA slot is related to the intent of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act itself, some CETA officials have said.

If the salaries of more CETA positions are reduced to entry-level wages, the officials said, CETA participants will perhaps feel compelled to see their CETA jobs as transitional and will look for better-paying nonCETA jobs, instead of staying with the program.

The Medford Consortium received an allocation of approximately $12 million to fund about 1900 CETA positions in special projects and individual slots for this year. The jobs are located in both governmental and non-profit agencies that service the Medford CETA area.

The positions have to be filled by April 1, according to Richard Lee, CETA public service officer at the Medford Consortium office.

To be eligible for the program, applicants must be residents of the consortium, be unemployed and meet the economic guidelines as set by CETA.

Lincoln School Damaged In A Holiday Weekend Fire

Police and fire officials are investigating the source of a weekend fire and vandalism which damaged a room in the Lincoln School.

The damage was reported on Tuesday at 3:16 p.m. The school is closed for February vacation.

Fire officials said that sometime during the long weekend, someone had entered the south door of room 105 and set a map, rug and papers on fire. The floor and wall of the room were scorched.

The fire, which was not hot enough to set off the sprinkler or alarm system, burned itself out, officials said.

Fire officials found evidence that papers had been pulled down from the ceiling of the room and ignited. Cigarette butts were found on the floor of the room.

No forcible entry was made into the room, officials said.

In other fire news, a car was completely destroyed by fire on Monday at 12-14 Mt. Pleasant st. When firefighters arrived at the scene, there was an explosion in the 1974 Triumph, fire officials said.

Firefighters extinguished the fire and wet down a nearby barn, removing shingles and the wooden frames around the barn's windows, to check for fire according to the officials' report.

Dry chemicals were used to control the gasoline fire under the car's hood, before removing it from the barn area.

According to the report, the car's owner was heating the fuel line with a propane fuel torch when the fire began.

Damage to the barn was slight.

A small fire in the women's restroom of the first-floor lobby of Winchester Hospital Sunday morning caused minimal damage, fire officials said.

On arrival at the scene, firefighters found that paper towels in the restroom had been set on fire, according to the report.

There was a fire in a telephone booth at Wedgemere Station on Friday. A burning telephone book and papers were found in the phone booth by firefighters arriving at 1:24 p.m.

A large pile of burning logs was the cause of an outdoor fire near the swim club on Squire road on Sunday night, officials said. The fire lasted one-half hour and traveled two miles, officials said.

Robert Ericson, Former Personnel Board Chairman, To Run For Board Of Selectmen

Robert C. Ericson, 155 High street, announces that he is a candidate for the Board of Selectmen in the March 27, town election.

Ericson has a 19 year record of prior service and accomplishment in Winchester Town Government. Since 1960 he has served in a variety of elective and appointive positions: 19 years as a Town Meeting member; five years on the Personnel Board (3 years as chairman); three years on the Finance Committee; two years on the Town Government Study Committee; and elected to the Winchester Charter Commission (served as vice chairman and played a key role in the development of the Home Rule Charter).

Ericson has consistently accepted leadership resonsibility on key townwide issues. In 1975 he organized the Ad Hoc Committee to stablize the tax rate. The committee sponsored an article at the fall Town Meeting which requested all town boards to submit to Town Meeting along with their budgets additional information regarding how to achieve a reduction of five percent in the spending rate.

The article was passed unanimously.

In the extended debates which shaped the current zoning by-laws, he helped to organize and represent the zoning concerns of a broad-based voter group in the Town Meeting.

Others areas of service in the community include five years in Scouting and Explorer Leadership and service as sr. deacon of the First Congregational Church.

His educational background and business experience further qualify him for the Board of Selectmen. His academic training includes a B.S. in mechanical engineering from the Illinois Institute of Technology and a master's degree in business administration from the Harvard Business School.

He served four years on active duty as a naval officer; he is currently employed as a manufacturing executive with the Construction Materials Division of W. R. Grace Co.

Chamber To Hold Sign Forum

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce will hold a forum on the existing Winchester sign by-law March 5 at 5.:30 p.m. at the K of C Hall. The meeting will be preceded by a half-hour social.

Representatives from the Building Commission, the Planning Board, the legal profession and the sign industry will participate in a panel discussion and make presentations on the origin, purpose and specific features of the by-law. Albert Vanderbilt, president of Winn General of Winchester will moderate the discussion.

Ninety-five Winchester business people recently received notice that they have business signs that are in nonconformance with the Winchester sign by-law. They were also told that they have until July of 1981 to replace the signs. Many of these people have indicated that they were not even aware of the existence of the by-law.

Consequently in order to improve business-town government communication and understanding regarding the by-law the chamber will sponsor this timely forum.

Anyone affected by the by-law governing the erection and existence of business signs is urged to attend the forum on March 5.

DPW Reports Pipes Freeze

Winchester residents have not escaped water pipe freeze-ups during the past weeks of cold weather. The DPW reports 93 calls have been received from residents reporting frozen or broken water pipes.

DPW Director Walter Tonaszuck said a rash of calls were made when the cold weather first started, but the number has decreased lately. He blames the freeze-ups on the severe cold and the lack of snow cover that can insulate the ground and protect pipes.

The Fire Department also reports receiving approximatley 25 calls

Parents To Review Reading Lists

Junior high parents and School Committee members have been invited to a meeting with junior high language arts teachers after school on March 1 at Lynch Junior High to review the school reading lists.

The invitation was extended by Frances Russell, head of the English department, who reviewed the junior high language arts program with the committee.

Standardized testing shows that Winchester students are scoring high, and the seventh and eighth grade language lab program seems to be successful, she reported. The goal of having language arts skills transferred into other academic areas is being accomplished.

Miss Russell said the seventh and eighth grade lab program, which is held once a week for all students, is more successful in meeting some of the reading problems than everything that was done in grades 1-6. She said she wished the program could be extended to the ninth grade.

While Miss Russell was complimented for the reading list for the high school which was developed, committee members and parents expressed their feeling that the junior high list was weak and did not offer enough books to challenge students.

Miss Russell said she felt there was enough challenge for the gifted students, but she said there is a need for materials which students with low ability can handle.

Teachers try to start a student at a level where he can read and enjoy it, she said, cautioning that reading that is too difficult could kill reading for a child. Gifted students are directed to a supplementary reading list, she explained.

★Police

A Cabot street resident was locked inside of Wildwood Cemetery after its 4 p.m. closing on Monday. Police unlocked the gate allowing the resident to leave 15 minutes later.

Among several incidents of larceny this week, the Watertown High girls' basketball team at Winchester High School for a game on Friday, had several items stolen from an unlocked locker during the game. Several pieces of 14 and 18 karat jewelry were taken.

Later that same evening, a vending machine containing air freshener products was taken from outside of a building on Main street. The machine was valued at $250.

Also on Main street, a store owner reported on Friday that someone entered the store within the past few days by a hole in the roof. Several alarm clocks and watches were reported missing.

According to police,a battery, worth $60 was stolen from a car parked at the Wedgemere Train Station Friday evening.

On Sunday afternoon, a resident reported that his four car tires were slashed sometime around 9:30 the previous night. The cost of replacement was $334.18.

Police report that same day that someone smashed a window of the Lynch Junior High School on Brantwood place.

At 12:53 p.m. Sunday, someone threw a rock at a car parked on Cross street, smashing the windshield.

Police report two incidents of vandalism on Quigley Court on Sunday afternoon.

According to police, the rear fender of a car parked in a driveway on Quigley court was discovered damaged on Sunday.

Another Quigley court resident reported to police that someone smashed the windshield of his car sometime during the night while it was parked in the driveway.

Police discovered a stripped vehicle at the end of Sylvester avenue on Thursday evening. The car was stolen on Tuesday in Woburn.

That same evening, a Burlington resident reported the theft of his rented car from the tennis courts on East street. The car, which had been damaged on the side and windshield, was recovered a half hour later between River street and the old scrap metal yard.

At 9:59 a.m. Thursday, police recovered a car in Lexington which had been stolen from Wedgemere Depot on Tuesday. Taken from the car was the registration, a stereo, tapes and clothing.

On Friday morning, a Canterbury road resident reported that sometime during the night someone stole his ca4 from his driveway.

In a hit and run incident, a Francis circuit resident reported on Saturday that his car was hit at 9 p.m. the previous evening while it was parked in the driveway of his home. According to police someone backed over the front lawn, hitting the car, then left the scene. Damage to the car was over $200.

Police reported two accidents this week.

Robert White, of 148 Marble st., Stoneham, skidded and struck two trees when he lost control of his car Friday night on Highland avenue. White sustained head lacerations from the accident.

Police report Paul D. Beeman, 21, of 526 Russell st. Woburn, was taken, unconscious, to Winchester Hospital after he fell asleep behind the wheel of his car and hit a tree at 342 Cambridge st., Monday afternoon.

Beeman, who received cuts and bruises about the head, was later transfered to New England Medical Center for further treatment.

"Maureen," he said, "when I see you I never see the chair."

Says Maureen,"That was one of the nicest things anyone could ever say to me."

Aside from her numerous political dealings, Maureen even finds time for religion and poetry, as well as her fervent hobby — Friday nights at the Lenox Hotel.

"I meet people from all over the world here. I really enjoy the singing and the people. I will always have music in my life," she notes.

Maureen proudly displays a poem she wrote for her father after her graduation from B.U. One of the lines reads, "Sometimes it's sad to think of how much time must go by without openly admitting love with no fear of rejection."

"Is it that hard to give away a smile or a nice word?" Maureen asks. "Someday you'll regret all the things you never said."

Maureen has little cause for worry. What with her poetry, political work, and obvious love for people, she is a woman of few regrets.

John Hackett To Run For School Bd.

John A. Hackett has announced his candidacy for the Winchester School Committee.

Hackett, his wife Mary, and their four children, all of whom attended Winchester Public Schools, reside at 16 Buckman dr. A resident of Winchester for 15 years, Hackett was born and brought up in Medford. He attended St. Agnes Grammar School, Arlington, Matignon High School, Cambridge, and Boston College from which he graduated in 1962 with a bachelor of science degree in finance.

He is the presdient of the J.J. Ruddy Insurance Agency Inc., with offices in Medford, and has been employed there since 1956, working with his mother, Mary Ruddy Hackett. Past president of the Winchester Jaycee's, he was awarded the JCI Senatorship, the highest award given by the Jaycee organization.

He is also past president of the Medford Chamber of Commerce, and its member on the Medford Square Study Committee responsible for the revitalization project started in Medford Square. On July 1, 1979 Hackett will be installed as president of the Medford Rotary Club for the coming year.

In announcing his candidacy, Hackett said that more fiscal responsibility must be taken regarding the School Department budget. He said that as the president and chief operating officer of a large insurance agency, coupled with his finance degree, he can provide the necessary responsible professional expertise to help cut costs in the School Department, and still provide the children of Winchester with the quality of educational experience which they deserve.

AIR CONDITIONING, HEATING, HUMIDIFICATION, ELECTRONIC AIR CLEANING

JUST HOW DIRTY IS INDOOR AIR?

We can't do without air but we wonder whether most of us are living with it properly. Unless you live on top of a Swiss Alp, most of the air you breathe in during a normal day contains a great deal of pollution.

With a good furnace system and a humidifier, air's temperature, its dryness, and its circulation are controlled, but what about its cleanliness? Are you aware of just how much the indoor air you breathe is contaminated?

Like to get rid of most of this airborne contamination? Why not look into the purchase of a HONEYWELL electronic air cleaner for your home? Installed on your furnace or air conditioning system, the HONEYWELL electronic air cleaner starts where the ordinary furnace filter ends . . . by removing more than 90 per cent of the dirt, dust, and pollen that are found in indoor air.

The HONEYWELL electronic air cleaner is so effective that it removes particles as small as those in cigarette smoke. The power of the unit is such that it will attract and collect particles as often as 144 times a day.

Naturally, the air you breathe is going to be healthier . . . but just think of what this means as far as the cleanliness of your household furnishings. Many of your cleaning and painting bills for drapes, rugs, slipcovers, walls and ceilings, will be greatly reduced. The savings in these costs alone will be enough to pay for the HONEYWELL electronic air cleaner in a short time.

For more information or any questions call FEDERAL HEATING day or nite at 623-1515 or 729-6866.

One Approach To Solving Teenage Drinking Problems

By REP. SHERMAN W. SALTMARSH, JR.

The 18 year-old girl was apprehended by the Winchester police at 2:30 in the morning as she drove her car round and round the rotary in the wrong direction! When informed of her hazardous act, she insisted that she had not been driving the car. Her breath reeked of alcohol. Her speech was garbled.

But she was only one of the scores of teenage drinkers who have come into contact with the local police in recent months. Since 1976, a total of 123 persons under the age of 21 have had to be placed in protective custody. That figure represents 50 percent of all those detained until they could sober up enough to be released.

In addition to the human evidence of youthful alcohol abuse, Winchester has been hard hit with attendant social problems of a serious nature. Wildwood Cemetery has been desecrated and beer cans left strewn among overturned tombstones.

Vandals and would-be arsonists, who broke into McCall Junior High, left empty liquor containers behind when they fled the scene. Church dances had to be cancelled when the drinking problem became too widespread to handle and a dance at Town Hall led to several arrests when some young people, under the influence of alcohol, turned a social event into police statistics.

Such have been the results of the law that lowered the legal drinking age to 18. As deplorable as they are, they pale into insignificance when compared to the serious accidents caused by young drinkers and to the consequences on innocent drivers who were unfortunate victims of accidents caused by youths driving under the influence.

It was recognition of these facts that led me to co-sponsor legislation for the last four years to raise the legal drinking age. I believe this will finally come to pass in the immediate future.

Last week, however, I voted against the substitute motion passed by the House that would raise the drinking age to 19 because I felt it was a poor compromise — a band-aide approach to a problem requiring major surgery. We're all aware of the filter effect of liquor purchasing. There were problems prior to 1973 when older teenagers used to ask their friends who were over 21 to make a buy for them. Now the problem has filtered through to youngsters of junior high age. Parties for kids only 13 and 14 often feature alcohol along with the latest records on the stereo. When it comes to drinking, the age of consent seems to bear distant relationship to the legal age.

Therefore, I consider it imperative to remove liquor from our schools and since there are 19 year olds attending our high school, it is clear that the minimum age must go beyond this point. It also is important that we pass legislation that can be enforced with consistancy and uniformity. The establishment of one legal age for the purchase of liquor in bars and restaurants and a second one for the purchase in package stores is a bit ridiculous if the intent of the law is to protect our young from the abuse of alcohol, regardless of where the alcohol is imbibed.

Like so many of my colleagues, I regret that some young people view any change in the drinking law as a punitive act on the part of the legislature. They cite many of the arguments that led the legislature in 1972 to approve a drinking age of 18. Passed amid the emotionalism that characterized the era of the Vietnam War, it was a well-meant gesture designed to show public confidence in a generation sent to fight and die on foreign soil.

But, no matter how well-meant the act was, time has proven it to be a mistake. And it was a mistake I am willing to acknowledge by going along with a two-year phase-in so that those now legally entitled to drink will not have the right withdrawn. But at the end of that period, hopefully, no teenager will be able to purchase liquor in the Commonwealth with the sanction of the law.

The term "teenager" has come to connote to most of us adolescense — the time in life when an individual strives to establish direction and discover identity. Punctuating the final teen year with alcohol will do little to expedite maturity or help clarify sensitive issues. Just as legislators refuse to allow children to be exploited by labor, we should refuse to allow them to be exploited by the purveyors of alcohol.

Any doubt about the wisdom of raising the legal drinking age should be dispelled by a visit to some of the scenic areas in this community. Our public beaches, parks, woodlands and open fields are littered with every conceivable form of liquor containers. The public drinking problem has brought us a public litter problem and the sooner we act to correct them both, the better life will become for all involved.

"Make it one for my baby and one more for the road" might have been a catchy line in a hit song, but taken at face value it's a request that is costing Massachusetts more than we are willing to pay.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

(Editor's note: The drinking age controversy is a very complicated issue and the number of different amendments considered by the House added more confusion to the situation. . . Legislators have a variety of different reasons for voting for and against the various amendments. In this week's Star, Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh reports his view of the drinking age bill.)

The Senate

The senate held its first roll calls of the 1979 session last week, and all its action centered on the bill to raise the drinking age.

Governor's Conference — Senate approved 31-0, resolutions urging Governor King to request a meeting of the governors of the New England states and New York to consider establishing uniformity in the various states' drinking age laws.

Supporters argued the resolution would help begin a process to establish a uniform drinking age in the New England states and New York and would help prevent younger people from driving across state lines to drink in states which have lower ages than others.

Sen. Rotondi voted for the resolutions.

Discharge Ways and Means — Senate rejected 21-10, a motion to discharge the Senate Ways and Means from further consideration of the entire House bill which hikes the drinking age to 19 immediately, to 20 in one year and to 21 in two years. If a two-thirds vote of the Senate were to discharge the bill, the measure would then go to the Senate floor and would allow Senators to debate, amend and vote on the House version. Without the bill being discharged, the Senate technically is unable to vote on any measure except a hike to 19 because the Ways and Means Committee never reported out the House phase-in to 21.

Supporters argued it was important to discharge the bill to allow the full Senate to consider the House phase-in to 21. They said it was unfair for the Ways and Means Committee to bottle up the House version. Some opponents voted against discharge for a number of reasons. Some support a hike only to 19 and preferred not to allow the bill to be amended to 20 and-or 21 on the Senate floor. Some preferred leaving the age at 18. Others may not have wanted to discharge the bill because it would put them in a position of opposing the leadership and the "committee system."

Sen. Rotondi voted against the discharge.

Hike to 19 — Senate gave final approval 31-3, to the bill hiking the drinking age to 19 for both on and off-premise consumption. The bill also provides for a special commission to study alcohol abuse.

Some supporters argued the bill was a reasonable compromise and would get drinking out of the high schools and away from younger teenagers. Other supporters indicated they actually support a hike to 21, but voted for a hike to 19 for now because they said it was better than leaving it at 18. Some opponents objected to raising the age to 19 and said they may have preferred leaving it at 18. Others may support a hike to 21 and refused to vote for a hike to only 19.

Sen. Rotondi voted for the hike to 19.

House

Hike to 19 — House approved 94-64, an amendment to hike the drinking age to 19 for both on-premise consumption and package store purchases. The amendment would replace the original bill's language hiking the age to 19 immediately and then to 21 in six months.

Supporters of the hike to 19 argued raising the age from 18 to 19 would help take liquor out of the high schools and help prevent it from filtering down to junior high schools. They also noted the hike to 21 would encourage young people to drive to bordering states with lower drinking ages to buy liquor and could actually increase highway fatalities. Some also noted a hike to 21 was another example of "big brother" and government intrusion into private lives, while others noted 19-year-olds have most other legal rights and responsibilities and should not be prohibited from drinking.

Most opponents argued a hike to 19 was not sufficient and noted an increase in alcohol-related highway accidents since the age was lowered from 21 in 1973. Others noted an increase in vandalism and alcohol abuse among teenagers since 1973. Some said they realized they were making the hike to regulate the lives of individuals, but claimed it must be done to consider the common good. Some opponents also voted against the hike to 19 because they opposed any hike in the age, and favored leaving the age at 18.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted against the hike to 19. This would leave the original bill intact with a hike to 19 and then in six months a hike to 21.

Package Stores to 21 — House approved 112-46, an amendment to gradually raise the age for which liquor could be purchased at package stores. The age would remain at 19 for one year, then be increased to 20, and after two years would be set at 21.

Supporters argued the amendment was a compromise and said it would go further toward keeping liquor out of the hands of those under 19 since most of those youngsters get liquor from older friends who buy it in package stores. Many noted they favored the amendment because they favored a general hike to 21 and this was a step toward that. Opponents argued the amendment would be extremely confusing and unfair for young adults. Many also noted this would encourage those under 21 to drive across the state borders to buy in package stores and then drive home drunk.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted for phasing in a hike in the age to buy at package stores to 20 and then 21.

Initial Approval — House gave initial approval 121-37, to the bill raising the legal drinking age immediately from 18 to 19 for both on-premise and off-premise consumption. The bill also raises the legal age for package store purchases to 20 in one year, and then to 21 in two years. Another provision allows 18 year olds to continue working as bartenders, waiters and package store clerks.

Some supporters were happy with the package as a whole and called it a reasonable compromise. Other supporters still supported an overall hike to 21, but saw this version as a beginning to that end and certainly better than leaving the age at 18.

Opponents voted against the package for a variety of reasons. Some may support a general hike to 21 and preferred not to vote for a hike to 19; others may support the 19 year old age but objected to the package store hike to 21; and others may not support any hike and prefer leaving the age at 18.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted for the bill.

Hike to 21 — House changed its earlier decision and gave final approval 109-44, to a new bill raising the age for both on and off-premise drinking to 19 immediately, to 20 next year, and to 21 the following year. The measure also allows 18 year olds to work in restaurants, package stores and warehouses selling liquor. It also provides a penalty of up to six months in prison and-or a $500 fine for anyone convicted of selling liquor to minors and a $1000 fine and -or two and one half year sentence for a second offense.

Arguments for and against the phase-in hike to 21 were similar to the ones voiced in the previous debate over hikes in the age.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted for the phased in hike to 21.

County Government — House rejected 93-63, a bill providing for the establishment of a special commission to study the abolition of county government and the transfer of county functions. The committee would then make its recommendations, if any, together with legislation to implement any of its suggestions.

Supporters argued that court reform has taken away the major function of county government, and claimed there is very little reason to continue the existence and expense of county government. Opponents argued it was beyond the time to study county government and said it was time to act on the problems. They noted there were concrete bills before the legislature toward improving and changing county government, and said a study on abolishing it was a waste of time.

Rep. Saltmarsh voted for establishing the commission.

School Board Meets

The Winchester School Committee will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Sanborn House.

The committee will discuss affirmative action programs in the school system; advanced placement (AP) "weighting" of courses and class rank; early tenure; and the principalship of Washington and Noonan schools.

Social studies teacher William O'Connor will report on social studies programs at the secondary level.

Budget issues will also be discussed.

Mahogany Importer Dies

William I. Palmer, a life long and highly respected citizen of Winchester passed away early Thursday morning, Feb. 7, at his home "Oak Lodge" McCall road, after an illness of a little less than three weeks.

Mr. Palmer was born in Winchester March 1, 1869, the son of Irving S. and Eugenia E. (Parker) Palmer.

He attended the public schools and was graduated from the Winchester High School before entering Massachuuetts Institue of Technology from which he received his degree with the class of 1891.

His business life was spent with the Charlestown firm of Palmer and Parker, mahogany importers and manufacturers, he having been at the time of his death treasurer of this old line business house which was established by his maternal grandfather, Harrison Parker., in 1833, and which claims the distinction of being the oldest manufacturer of mahogany in the world.

Mr. Palmer took an active interest in the civil life of the community and many local institutions have benefited through his generous philanthropy. He was a life member of William Parkman and Mystic Valley Masonic lodges, also of Winchester Royal Arch Chapter, Woburn Royal Arch Chapter, Boston Commandery, Knights Templar and Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine.

His social and business connections were with the University Club, the Winchester Country Club and the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

He is survived by his wife.

The funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at his residence and will be conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congretational Church. Internment will be in Wildwood Cemetary.

The Last Laugh

For a while yesterday it looked as if the joke was on the squad of Winchester police who were attending District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell's school for court procedure at Cambridge. In fact it still looked like they were "out of luck" at a late hour last night, for while the "boys" were listening to ways and means for "getting the crooks," the same crooks were busy appropriating the police Buick which had been parked outside the lecture hall and which was very much missing when the bluecoats got out onto the street.

An alarm was sounded and police departments everywhere worked frantically to restore the missing machine to its home garage at local police headquarters. The Buick was finally recovered in good condition early this morning by the police of Station 2 in Cambridge.

Public Health Dept. Committed To Immunization

The State Department of Public Health has issued an advisory memorandum, stating the department's commitment to enforce the School Immunization Law.

The 193 cases of measles reported in Massachusetts schoolchildren last year would not have occurred, the department said, if the Immunization Law had been enforced properly.

In monitoring each public and private school system, the Department of Public Health will continue the Immunization Survey for children entering kindergarten; require school officials to report the immunization status of new school enrollees (grades 1-12) who transfer into their school systems in September, 1979; and require that all newly-enrolled kindergarten children be immunized against mumps and rubella, beginning September, 1979, in accordance with the School Immunization Law.

The efforts of school and health officials, the department said, have eliminated the diseases of diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis and polio as serious health problems in Massachusetts.

In it's memorandum, the department said, "There is no reason why measles, mumps and rubella should not be added to this list."

The Massachusetts Open Meeting Law says that notice of meetings of all boards, including committees, commissions and sub-committees, however elected, appointed or constituted, shall be filed with the Town Clerk and posted at least 48 hours before the meeting.

The Star welcomes letters to the editor of interest to the citizens of Winchester, written by Winchester residents.

Letters should be typed, double-spaced, and no longer than 250 words. They must also be signed and accompanied by the author's printed name, address, and telephone number, in order that we may verify letters.

Names and addresses will be withheld on request.

PLANNING BOARD
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

REGARDING PROPOSED ZONING AND BY-LAW MAP AMENDMENTS

Notice is hereby given that the Winchester Planning Board will hold a public hearing on in the Board of Health Meeting Room, Basement, Town Hall, on the proposal to amend the Zoning By-Law as follows:

1. To amend the Zoning Map incorporated in and made a part of the Zoning By-Law by changing land lying between Pepper Hill Drive and Edward Drive from a General Residence District (RG 6.5) to either a Residential District A (RDA-20) or a Residential District B (RDB-10), said land supposedly owned by E. S. Johnson Construction Company and R. Curtis and Bertha M. Hamilton and containing approximately 13.3 acres and described substantially as follows:

Northwesterly by Winchester-Lexington town line 1237' plus or minus;

Northeasterly by land now or formerly R. Curtis and Bertha M. Hamilton and James J. Jr. and Brenda J. Walsh 506' plus or minus;

Easterly by Pepper Hill Drive 155' plus or minus;

Southeasterly by land now or formerly Richard J. and Edna M. Clarke, William A. and Gail V. Koenig, Alfred and Ruth L. Landberg, and northerly side of James Street 422' plus or minus;

Southerly, southeasterly and northerly in three courses by land now or formerly Robert S. and Joseph B. Jones, Robert J. Jr. and Joanne F. McDonough, and Robert Gock and Susanna Ming Lee 508' plus or minus;

Southeasterly by land now or formerly Richard C. Mellow, Conservator, Robert A. and Jean A. Pacheco, Lincoln S. and Laura M. Boyden 344' plus or minus;

Southwesterly by land now or formerly Oscar W. Carlson, William A. and Elena M. Rich, Irene B. Graziano and existing layout of Edward Drive 338' plus or minus.

2. To amend Section 6.1 of the Zoning By-Law by adding footnote (h) under the "RG" column opposite "Minimum lot frontage" and "Minimum lot width" and by deleting the text of footnote (h) and substituting therefor the following:

"(h) Two family dwelling: Minimum lot area: 11,000 square feet; Minimum lot frontage: 85 feet; Minimum lot width: 85 feet: Minimum side yard: 15 feet."

Information pertaining to said zoning amendments may be obtained at the Planning Board Office, Basement, Town Hall.

By order of the Winchester Planning Board this twentieth day of February, 1979.

Anthony F. Pelletier
Secretary

BOARD OF APPEAL
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The WINCHESTER BOARD OF APPEAL will hold a PUBLIC HEARING on THURSDAY, MARCH 8, 1979 at 7:30 P.M., in the BOARD OF HEALTH CLINIC ROOM at the TOWN HALL on the following matters:

(1) PETITION NO. 2419 — that of DAVID SANTINI concerning the premises located at 25 THOMPSON STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner seeks a Special Permit pursuant to Section 8.4 of the Sign By-Law so as to be permitted to maintain a free standing sign larger than two (2) square feet. This property is located within the CBD (Center Business) zoning district, consists of 4,355 S.F. and the record owners of these premises are JOHN B. and MARY M. MERCURIO.

(2) PETITION NO. 2420 — That of PETER J CORONIS by LAWRENCE M. MURRAY, ESQ., 573 MAIN STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. concerning the property located at 24 RIVER STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner is aggrieved and is appealing the determination and order of the Building Commissioner, in accordance with Section 8, Chapter 40A of the General Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, that found the premises at 24 RIVER STREET being used contrary to the conditions set forth in Board of Appeal Decision No. 2280 dated December 8, 1975.

Alternatively, the petitioner seeks an amendment or clarification of Board of Appeal Decision No. 2280, and a Special Permit with Site Plan Review in accordance with Sections 4.4-34 and 8.7 of the Winchester Zoning By-Law, in order to allow the petitioner to store and repair his own equipment within the building. The property is located within the IL (Light Industrial) zoning district, consists of 10,821 S.F.

(3) PETITION NO. 2421 — That of PAUL E. LA JOIE, JR. concerning the property located at 600 MAIN STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner seeks a Special Permit pursuant to Section 3.34 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law so as to be permitted to lease a portion of his premises for additional retail sales (Winchester Sport Shop).

The petitioner also seeks a Special Permit pursuant to Section 8.5 of the Sign By-Law so as to be allowed to erect more than the permitted number and size signs on his premises. This property is located in the RB (Apartment House) zoning district, consists of 4,777 S.F. and is a non-conforming retail use.

(4) PETITION NO. 2422 — That of ABERJONA APOTHECARY, INC., by PATRICK PALLADINO, JR., PRESIDENT concerning the premises at 890 MAIN STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner seeks a Variance from Section 317.0 of the Massachusetts State Building Code in accordance with Section 126.0 in order to place a temporary structure on his premises to be used as a Drug Store during the rebuilding of the structure that was destroyed by a fire. The property is located in the GBD (General Business) zoning district and consists of 7,897 S.F.

Win. Cathedral Celebrates 900 Years

Winchester Cathedral, famed in popular song and the only great church in the world ever to be saved by a deep-sea diver, is celebrating its 900th anniversary this year.

This event would not be taking place if diver William Walker hadn't worked for five years during the early part of this century in the peat-bog under the cathedral and single handedly given it new foundations. They say that he worked entirely by touch, the water being too murky to see anything.

Located only 65 miles southwest of London, Winchester Cathedral is more than just a great church. It is embedded in British history. The early kings of England were crowned there, and its city was William the Conqueror's second capital.

The cathedral is also the home of the Winchester Cathedral Choir, a group of men and boys, who will be visiting the Church of the Epiphany March 2, in connection with their anniversary.

The choir will sing under the direction of Martin Neary for the 9 a.m. Eucharist. Parishoners of the church may obtain tickets for the service. Tickets will be available to the general public after all parishoners interested in attending are served.

Winchester is just one stop on the choir's 15-city tour. In the Boston area, they will also sing at the Harvard Memorial Church, Cambridge, Feb. 28 at 8 p.m. and at the Trinity Church in Boston, March 1, at 8 p.m.

While in Boston, Church of the Epiphany parishoners will accommodate choir members in their homes.

Music critics of the American and British press have given the choir members high praise.

The choristers at the cathedral are expected to reach professional music standards as well as keep pace with their studies, and this requires choir practice 10 hours a week and seven hours of singing at cathedral services. All the choristers are expected to learn a musical instrument and many learn more than one.

In the choir there are 20 boys whose ages range from nine to 13 now studying for entrance examinations to Britain's top private schools.

They will be able to continue their musical studies after their voices have broken and they can no longer sing in choirs. While visiting Winchester, the boys will study Thursday morning at the Church of the Epiphany.

Adult members of the choir, or "lay clerks" are highly experienced singers, many have been choristers themselves and, later, choral scholars at Oxford and Cambridge. Most follow independent careers apart from their singing (many of them are teachers) but several are already making their mark as soloists in Britain.

Martin Neary, 38, solo organist, orchestral conductor, and choir director, has been named "Organist of Distinction" by Grove's Dictionary of Music. He has been director of the cathedral choir since age 31, the youngest person to ever hold that position.

Before his association with the choir, Neary received a conducting scholarship from the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 1963 and studied with Erich Leinsdorf at Tanglewood. Two years later he became organist and master of the choristers at St. Margaret's Church Westminster, London.

The current tour, which began in Canada Feb. 15, is Neary's seventh tour to the US and Canada since 1963.

There has been a choir school at Winchester Cathedral for six centuries. Male choir singing, however, has been going on at the church for the past 900 years.

The cathedral itself has an interesting history. A cousin of William the Conqueror (Bishop Walkelin) began the church in 1079, which makes it one year younger than the Tower of London. Although it is not tall (blame the marshy ground) it is the longest medieval church in Europe, measuring 526 feet.

Once there was a great tower, built by Walkelin, but it collapsed in 1107. The fall of the tower was popularly attributed at the time to the burial beneath it of the hated King William Rufus seven years earlier. Rufus, son of the Coqueror, met his death by an arrow - perhaps it was an accident, perhaps murder - hunting in the new Forest, 15 miles away.

The original oak roof was constructed of massive beams hewn from the nearby forest. The present stone roof was completed during the time of Bishop William of Wykeham, founder of Winchester College. He also founded New College, Oxford, which, by coincidence, celebrates its 600th anniversary in 1979.

The cathedral was severely 'sacked' by Cromwell's troopers in 1642. The next disaster was its near collapse in 1900. The sealing of the foundations by Walker required 28,000 bags on concrete, 114,000 concrete blocks, and 900,000 bricks. The only part of this period of restoration that can be seen is the great buttresses, built 70 years ago but now so well mellowed that many visitors assume they are part of the original cathedral.

The imposing nave with fine vaulting and massive piers, is little changed from Walkelin's time. There are breath-taking stained glass windows; a 12th century black marble font; a multitude of carvings and statues, a magnificant 15th century altar screen, and the entrace to Bishop Langton's Chantry, a little statue of William Walker. The cathedral does't forget.

Many famous people are buried in Winchester Cathedral, including: Izaak Walton the fisherman (1593-1683), he died near the cathedral at No. 7, The Close; novelist Jane Austen, who died aged 42 in 1817 and is buried in the north aisle of the nave (she lived 17 miles north-east of Winchester, in the village of Chawton. Her home, where she wrote such masterpieces as 'Pride and Prejudice' and 'Persuasion', is now a museum with many personal relics); also St. Swithin.

The city of Winchester makes an ideal center for a mini-cathedral tour. Chichester with its lovely cathedral, drama festival and Roman Villa is 30 miles to the Southeast, and Salisbury, another great cathedral town, is 20 miles West, with Stonehenge just beyond.

That's where we give boys and girls summers that come once in a lifetime...on hundreds of forest acres, with wilderness and waterfront, beautiful cabins, tennis courts, riding stables, sandy beaches...and people who care about kids all year-round.

The Y invented summer camp, and we've been giving kids New Hampshire for half-a-century...sailing, singing, waterskiing, playing...learning skills, learning about nature, and about each other. Growing up better. Call or write for a brochure or slide presentation: Greater Boston YMCA Camping 316 Huntington Ave., Boston, MA. 02115. (617) 536-7800.

REAL ESTATE by Ann Blackham

COMPARATIVE TAXATION

Your house is for sale. The location is great; the price is right; and the community is desirable. But prospects keep turning it down because they claim the tax rate is too high. How do you meet this objection?

It just may be that the taxes in your town are actually lower per dollar value than neighboring, less desirable communities. Remember, taxes are not determined by tax rate alone. They're also determined by the valuation practices of the local assessors. In some areas, homes may be assessed at only 25 per cent of true value. In other areas, it may run 50 per cent or 70 per cent. So you must take both the tax rate and the local valuation practice into consideration. Don't be misled by an apparently low tax rate.

This is one of the reasons why it pays to sell your house through a local Realtor. It's his business to be familiar with this vital information. He's an expert negotiator and has the facts to back up his claims.

In all your real estate needs — buying — selling — rentals — appraisals — consultation — please phone or drop in at ANN BLACKHAM & CO., 11 THOMPSON ST., WINCHESTER. PHONE 729-1663. We're here to help!

Skaters' Season Ends With 2 Defeats LaFauci, Collins Named To All-Stars

By DAVE LA FAUCI

Winchester's hockey team concluded its season last week with games against Wakefield and Woburn.

Last Wednesday afternoon the Sachems dropped an 8 to 4 decision to Wakefield. Jerry Kenney started his first game in the Winchester nets.

The Warrior's Tom Evangilista opened the scoring at 9:20. Mark Kumpel dug the puck out of the right corner and fed Evangilista in the slot. Evangilista's quick release was in the net before Kenney could react.

Bill Prowse made it 2 to 0 at 13:15. Wakefield was on the power play. Prowse took a cross-ice pass from Jim Chisolm and beat Kenney with a blast from the left point.

The Sachems were called for tripping at 14:21. Again a penalty proved costly as Mark Roberto took a feed from Rich Stevens and rang a shot off the left post and into the net.

The first period ended with Wakefield leading, 3 to 0. Winchester's offense had been non-existent in the period. The Sachems did not manage a shot on net.

At the start of the second period, Bob Surabian replaced Jerry Kenney in the Winchester net.

Wakefield upped its margin to 4 to 0 at 4:17. Surabian got a piece of Bob Mazzone's shot but the puck got by him. Rich Stevens picked up the loose puck and slammed it into the net.

The Warriors made it 5 to 0 at 6:06 when Paul Bruce tipped home a centering pass from Tom Evangilista.

Winchester finally got on the board at 8:06 when Hugo LaFauci fired a well-placed wrist shot just inside the left post.

Less than a minute later the Sachems had narrowed the gap to 5 to 2. Wakefield was a man up. Bubba Sanford did some excellent forechecking in front of the Wakefield net. Sanford's scrapping produced a loose puck which was pounced on by Jack Collins. Collins drove a backhander past Wakefield goalie John Merry to seemingly give the Sachems new life.

However, Mark Roberto put a damper on Winchester's comeback hopes when he tipped a pass from Rich Stevens through Surabian's legs at 12:39.

The second period ended with Wakefield in control, 6 to 2.

It looked like the Sachems were dead when Steve Bergholtz walked in alone to deck Surabian and tuck the puck behind him at 3:30.

But the Sachems refused to quit. Jack Collins took a center ice feed from Ricky Kimball and fired a wrist shot from 25 feet which caught the top right corner of the net. Collin's goal came at 4:39 and cut the Winchester deficit to 7 to 3.

It became a 7 to 4 game two minutes later. Peter Mahoney broke in on Merry after a face-off and flipped the puck between his legs to make it a hockey game.

Mark Kumple nailed the coffin shut for Wakefield at 8:51. Kumple positioned in the slot, took a pass from the right boards and snapped the puck into the far corner.

Kumple's goal ended the scoring for the afternoon.

After the game Winchester coach Mike Houghton felt that, despite the loss, there had been some encouraging signs. Houghton said, "We played better today than we have for a while. We played them fairly even and Wakefield is a good team. I thought we broke out of our zone well against a good-skating team."

Houghton added, "I was pleased to see Peter Mahoney score off a face-off, because we have put in a lot of time practicing face-offs. I thought Mahoney and Jack Collins played well."

On Saturday afternoon Winchester closed out its season with a game against arch-rival Woburn. The Sachems had beaten the Tanners in their first meeting.

In a lively, penalty-filled game (16 in all) the Sachems came up on the short end of a 6 to 3 score.

The large crowd at Woburn's O'Brien Rink saw Winchester jump out in front when tri-captain, Peter Mahoney, took a long pass from Ron DiVencenzo and faked Woburn goalie Bob Rufo with a fine move.

Soon after, Hugo LaFauci was robbed by Rufo after a nice Sachem passing play.

Goalie Bob Surabian kept the score at 1 to 0 by making a great save off Woburn's Joe Reboin.

The Tanners tied the game just 19 seconds into the second period. Reboin made a nifty rush to score with assists going to Bill Kenton and Len Tramonte.

Just five seconds were left on a Winchester penalty when Tramonte scored Woburn's next goal. Assists were credited to Jerry Rochon and Fred Gilgun.

Tanner goalie Rufo turned back two good scoring bids featuring the passing of LaFacui and Mahoney. At the 13.24 mark LaFauci took a good pass from Bob Coppins and used Mahoney as a decoy before snapping a quick shot into the net. The period ended in a 2 to 2 deadlock.

One minute into period three Woburn's Reboin broke the tie as he deflected in a slapshot by Randy Parker past new Sachem goalie Steve Grainger.

Tanner left wing Gilgun socred what proved to be the game winner just 90 seconds later after being sent away by Jerry Gatley and Reboin.

Sophomore John Ferullo made two good defensive moves to hold back Woburn's fired-up offense and gave the Sachems time to regroup. Tri-captain Jackie Collins scored to bring the Sachems back to within one goal. LaFauci and Ferullo had assists on the play. This goal put spark into the Winchester attack. Peter Mahoney was robbed by a Rufo glove save and several shots went a little wide of the goal.

As Winchester pressed with time running out, Woburn scored two insurance goals by Rochon and Tramonte. The final score was 6 to 3 Woburn.

Congratulations to Sachems Jackie Collins and Hugo LaFauci. Both seniors have been named to represent Winchester in the Middlesex League all-star game.

Coach Mike Houghton also received the honor of being named assistant to Wakefield's Charlie Driscoll in coaching the south division squad.

Road Runner's Club Meet Tuesday, Members Welcome

By BILL HART

Just over a month ago 22 runners met for the first time on a cold January evening at the Town Hall to discusss the possibility of organizing a running club in Winchester. Jerry Ferro was appointed interim chairman along with five others to serve on a temporary advisory committee.

The 22 discussed such issues as where to run, how to run, when to run, and even, why run. Through it all, the group was in total agreement that a running club is necessary. The Winchester Road Runners Club was spawned that evening.

One of the many strides (uh!) made that evening was the idea of getting together as a group at 9 a.m. on Saturday and-or Sunday morning's at Sandy Beach to run eight kilometers around Mystic Lakes. Five to six people have been doing just that during the past month. Other subjects brought up that evening were to find out how the WRRC could use the Fells for running, organizing fun and serious races, assisting the Winchester Recreation in their annual mini-marathon, and designing a logo for club members' identification.

Applications may be picked up for joining the Winchester Road Runners Club at the Winchetter Recreation Department or The Running Racquet. The purpose of the club's objectives are spelled out in the opening paragraph on the application. The WRRC is in the process of being sanctioned under the guidelines of the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU).

The dues for membership are as follows: to age 14, $1; ages 14-18, $2; ages 18-21 and student $3; ages 21 and up, $5; and family membership, $8

The second meeting of the Winchester Road Runners Club is scheduled for Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Lincoln School cafeteria. Decisions for WRRC officers, the club's logo, the club's colors, types of races, and other important subjects will be on the evening's agenda.

Little League Directors Plan For Season

By JOHN LOWELL

Sparked by vigorous plans of Pres. Bill Morton, Winchester Little League's board of directors met in the Winchester Sport shop recently to solidify their operations for the coming 1979 baseball season.

Named public relations director, John Lowell of 26 Jefferson st. outlined his campaign to publicise the activities of the league. He said he hoped to produce an article regularly in The Winchester Star to keep players, parents, sponsors and the town of Winchester, in general, aware of the opportunities Winchester's young baseball players would have in participating in this activity. Little League is one of the few activities that is wholly supported by private individuals and companies.

Keith Puffer, sponsor and insurance chairman, revealed that he was well into contacting supporting businesses so that they would be an integral part of this 900 strong youth program.

"There are some 38 available sponsorhips, this year," he said "and it is our sincere hope that the majority of the 1978 sponsors will agree to continue their support. We plan to link sponsor teams with our publicity, and we will keep our sponsors appraised of all activities of their teams."

The Winchester DPW, through its director, Walter J. Tonaszuck, and its field supervisor, Dick Tofuri, has promised their complete cooperation in the preparation and maintenance of the baseball fields to be used by Little League to insure proper and safe playing surfaces.

McCall Girls End Successful Hoop Season

The McCall girls' basketball team had a successful season this year with the A team finishing eight and four and the B team ending play with a 10 and two record.

The A team posted wins over Kennedy, Joyce, Belmont, Muzzey, Watertown west, Reading, and two over Lynch. Their losses were to Wakefield, Clarke, and two to Watertown

Marla Montuori was the A team's season high-scorer with 177 points. She was followed by Sarah Richardson with 72 points and Kathy Mangano with 63 points and Kim Donlon with 50 points.

The B team lost only two games. Both were to Watertown east. Anita Anderson was the B team's high scorer for the season with 84 points. She was followed by Kristen McNamara with 60 points and Alison Sughrue with 36 points.

Managers for the teams this year were Kindra Brown, Liz Cullen, and Tyest Smith.

National Curling Meet Comes To Country Club

Curlers from eight states will be competing for national honors next week when Winchester Country Club hosts the US Women's National Curling championships. The winner of the nationals will go on to represent the United States in international competition in Perth, Scotland.

On-site chairman Mrs. Earle F. Spencer Jr., of Winchester, said United States Women's Curling Association clubs from Alabama, Washington, North Dakota, Illinois, Minnesota, Michigan, New York, and Wisconsin will be represented. Competition will run Wednesday through next Saturday.

The New York club won the east playdowns in New Jersey Jan. 24, to earn this region's spot for the nationals.

Mrs. Spencer explained that Winchester Country Club was chosen as the site for the national competition by the women's curling association board. Every year clubs wishing to host the event alert the association of their interest. This year is the third year the nationals will be held.

The curlers will arrive at Winchester Country Club for practice games Feb. 27. Opening ceremonies will be held Wednesday morning with J. Paul Sheeran, president of the club, giving the welcome. Stanley Neill, past president of the club and past president of the Grand National Curling Association will be the master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Joseph Butler is chairman of women's curling at Winchester Country Club and Mrs. George Reading is the chairman of the program book for the event.

The Winchester Archival Center, a journey into the town's past, is open Monday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Thursday, 7 to 10 p.m.

Community And Family Problems Discussed At Interagency Series

The Winchester Interagency Council is sponsoring a course on "Human Problems of Our Community" during four Thursday evenings in March, beginning March 8. In cooperation with the Winchester School Committee, this focus upon problems within the family and within the community will be lead by experienced professionals in the field. The sessions will take place in the social studies area of Winchester High School.

The first session on March 8 will deal with the question of "New Women - New Men" and will be led by Dr. Alice L. Palubinskas, professor of psychology at Tufts Universtiy. It deals with the impact of women's liberation on women and resulting new roles for men.

The three subsequent sessions will be panel discussions. Moderated by Dr. Priscilla Ellis, Mystic Valley Mental Health Center psychologist, the March 15 session will consider "Absentee Parents." It will address the challenges and stresses faced by single and working parents attempting to meet the demands 9f work, family, and self.

The panel will be made up of the Rev. John J. Bishop, Parish of the Epiphany; Robyn Gittleman, coordinator of the Experimental College at Tufts; and Kay Tiffany, guidance counselor at Winchester High School.

"Home in Conflict" is the subject on March 22, dealing with problems of alcoholism, child abuse, neglect, and violence in the home and support services and resources available for parents.

The panel will be moderated by Elizabeth Kenney, director of social service at Winchester Hospital, with panelists James L. Bell, general secretary of Children's Protective Services; Carla Masse, area office of the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health; John McHugh, Winchester Chief of Police; and Dr. Donald E. McLean, Winchester physician.

The final session, March 29, deals with "Town in Conflict," problems of ethnic, economic,and moral values in the community and the question of a reasonable consensus.

Moderated by Rev. Walter B. Davis, First Congregational Church, the panel will consist of Dr. T. J. Anderson, chairman of the Department of Music at Tufts; Kay Bigelow of CONCERN; Barbara Hankins, Winchester Selectman; and Vincent E. Larocco, principal of Winchester High School.

This course is a follow-up to previous courses on "Family Fare" and "Life's Passages: Tensions and Stress" sponsored by the Winchester Interagency Council, a group composed of representatives of many community organizations and agencies.

Any interested person is welcome to attend the discussions. Registration will take place at the door or through a preregistration procedure. If preregistration is desired, the contact persons are Sarah Dillon at Jenks Senior Center or Grace Ashton (729-2708).

Couples A-Go-Go Bowling League

The couples A-Go-Go Rollers increased their first place lead to six points over the Strikers as a result of matches held last Saturday night. In the race for third spot all the other teams (Spares, Splitters, Hookers, and Lobbers) are also within six points of each other.

Bowlers of the evening went to Guy Pollino for his 233 single and Vi Vangell for her 85 game. This is the sixth time this season that Guy Pollino has rolled a 200 plus game.

Hosts for the evening were Stephanie and Whitey Allen.

First Church Hosts Three Talks On Contemporary China

The Mission Study Program, for 1979, presdented by the Women's Association of the First Congregational Church of Winchester, will offer insights and personal experiences about life in China.

"Contemporary China" will be presented Feb. 28, March 7 and 14. All the programs will be held in the Palmer and Tucker Rooms of the First Congregational Church. Coffee and tea will be served at 9:30 a.m. and the Mission Study Program will begin at 10 a.m.

Next Wednesday the series will present ::"An Introduction to Contemporary China: What the West Needs to Know to Understand China" with Mr. Raymond Lee. Lee was born in Shanghai and has just returned from his second visit to China in the last year.

"A Look at China, Revisited Kodachrome Presentation;; with Beatrice C. Lee, will be featured March 7. Mrs. Lee also was born in mainland China and has traveled the country extensively. Mr. and Mrs. Lee are now residents of Winchester.

"What is Possible for Christian Mission in China?" with Lulu Snyder Hamilton is scheduled for March 14. Mrs. Hamilton and her husband lived in China for 14 years, where she did missionary work. She helped develop curriculum for primary and secondary schools, and taught bible studies, and bible teacher's training.

Youth Plan Sunday Service At Congregational Church

Members of the Forum, the senior high youth group at the First Congregational Church, will be planning and leading the worship service on Youth Sunday, Feb. 25, at 10 a.m. in the main sanctuary.

The theme of the service will be "God's Children," and the service will focus on issues surrounding the growth from childhood to adulthood that is a part of every human experience. Special music will be offered by the Forum Ensemble and adult choir, along with a voluntary composed by one of the members of Forum, Kurt Phinney.

Winchester Surgeon's Working Vacation Benefits Hondurans

By KERRIE OSBORNE-WILTSEE

At a time when many people were vacationing on the slopes of Colorado or basking in the Caribbean sun, Winchester resident Frank Virnelli singed up for a two-week trip to the tropics of Central America — but he didn't go to soak up the tropical sun. His was a working vacation, and the people of Santa Rosa de Capon, Honduras, were the ones to benefit.

Dr. Virnelli, a plastic surgeon on the staff of Winchester Hospital, recently spent two weeks at a Honduran hospital providing care the population would not otherwise receive. For although general medical care is available to the people of Honduras, his patients were suffereing from deformities of the skin and muscles that could be helped only by a plastic surgeon's skills.

He was one of two plastic and four general surgeons in a surgical team of 16 that journeyed to the 260-bed regional Hospital Occidente in Santa Rosa de Capon, a town on the western Honduran frontier near Guatemala and El Salvador. The trip was sponosred by the Medical Group Missions of the Christian Medical Society in Oak Park, Ill., which regularly sends American medical personnel into developing countries. Although the CMS arranges opportunities for the medical teams, the participating doctors pay all of their own expenses.

A radio broadcast announcing the arrival of the surgical team in Santa Rosa brought most patients to the hospital. Patients ranged in age from two months to 40 years. "We saw not only infants but many adults," commented Dr. Virnelli, "in fact, half the patients with cleft lips that we treated were over the age of 10.

Cleft lip repair was the most frequent operation performed on small children. A deformity present at birth which is usually treated in early infancy in the US, a cleft divides the upper lip into two sections and prevents normal speech and appearance.

Many times correction could be done under local anesthesia and even very young children often went home the same day with only a bandage on their lip. Most repairs were done by the team's other plastic surgeon Dr. Bruce Baker, senior assistant resident at University Hospital and follow-up care was provided by Honduran surgeons on staff at the hospital.

In addition to repairing cleft lips, the surgical team corrected skin contractures, a deformity often found on the hand or neck caused either by an accident or present from birth. Dr. Virnelli treated two patients for serious machete wounds; both wounds were over 24 hours old when he saw them.

"Hondurans manifest the manana syndrome," he explained. "They don't worry about getting immediate attention for medical problems because it isn't always available."

Honduran surgeons assisted in surgery, and the American surgeons were able to demonstrate the current approach to many commonly-performed procedures.

The Americans left behind a little mechanical expertise as well, by repairing two pieces of broken equipment. One device, the electric dermatome, is used to take skin grafts and is essential if a large graft is required to cover a wound. After it was repaired the staff was trained to use it.

Cultural differences proved interesting during his stay, too. Language barriers were especially difficult to overcome. Bed and board was provided at the home of a Honduran physician, and each morning the American guests and their Honduran hosts showed up at breakfast accompanied by their Spanish-English dictionaries.

Breakfast itself was very American and consisted of several courses — eggs, pancakes, bread, cereal, and coffee. Such a spread is not the usual Honduran breakfast, but Dr. Virnelli's hostess wanted to make certain her guests felt at home. "I also think she was afraid we wouldn't get enough to eat," he laughed.

Lunch and dinner were closer to the traditional Honduran diet, supplying rice or beans and a tortilla, with meat and two kinds of sauce — "devil sauce," a hot and spicy concoction, and "heavenly sauce," its cool counterpart. Fried bananas were common as were very good cuts of beef. The hospital kitchen was well known for its soup kettle and a different kind of soup could be seen steaming on wood stoves each day.

Virnelli had a chance to see a little of the Honduran countryside during his stay. An all-day bus trip down bumpy dirt roads into the Honduran rain forest provided a chance to see the Mayan ruins at Copan, a civilization dating back to 600 A.D. And a trip to a hot sulphur spring provided the only hot bath of his stay.

Shortly before he was to leave Honduras and return to the US, Dr. Virnelli was walking the streets of Santa Rosa with a Honduran pediatician when he saw a man in his 30's with a badly cleft lip approaching.

As the man walked past, Dr. Virnelli wondered whether he had heard the radio broadcast announcing the availability of treatment for cleft lips provided by the visiting surgeons.

"If I don't tell him, he'll never know," he thought and called out to the man, who stopped to listen while, through his Honduran colleague, Dr. Virnelli explained what could be done for him.

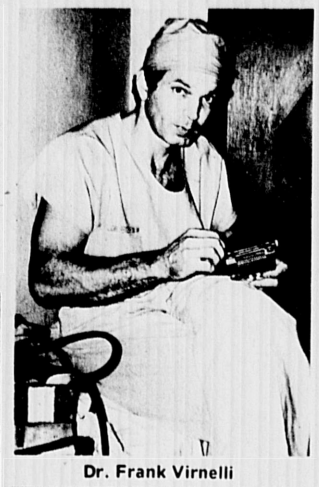

"Come to the hospital tomorrow at eight and we can repair your lip."

The man appeared the next morning and by 9:30 his lip had been reconstructed. A small scar, easily hidden by a moustache, was the only indication that the man's face had once been other than handsome. Before applying a bandage, Dr. Virnelli handed the man a mirror and invited him to take a look.

The man studied his reflection in the mirror, then despite the stitches on his upper lip, he broke into a wide grin.

Congregational Church Celebrates Birthday Feb. 25

On Feb. 25, at 5:30 p.m., a gala birthday party is planned for members and friends of the First Congregational Chutch.

Supper will begin with steaming hot soup. There will be gourmet birthday cakes for each month of the year.

This will be an evening of music — families, singles, and groups. A pinata for the children will be another highlight of the festivities.

The committee members for this exciting event are: Kathleen, Sara, and Robert Laber; Dorothy and William Burrows.

Old Brands Not Missed.

—National Smoker Study

Research shows 14 out of 15 MERIT smokers find total "taste" satisfaction.

Low tar MERIT has proven that it delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but can it satisfy smokers long-term? A nationwide research effort confirms it.

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

And in interviews conducted among current high tar smokers:

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

This ability to satisfy former high tar smokers over a long period of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is the first real taste alternative for high tar smokers.

Kings: 8 mg "tar," 0.6 mg nicotine—
100's: 11 mg "tar," 0.7 mg nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report May '78

Agencies Receive United Way Allocations

Two Winchester agencies have received a total of $27,014 as their 1979 allocations from the United Way of Massachusetts Bay. The allocations are $2932 more than what the agencies received from the United Way in 1978. The money will be used to provide services to area residents during 1979.

The Winchester Chapter of the Red Cross received $21,014 as its 1979 allocation, an increase of $932, and the North Metropolitan Homemaker Home Health Aide Service aws allocated $6000, an increase of $2000.

Tri- Community Health services in Lexington, which serves Lexington, Arlington, and Winchester, was allotted $6000, a decrease of $2500.

The specific allocation to the Red Cross was determined by the Red Cross, based on a total United Way allocation of $1,891,000 to the Red Cross for the support of 26 local chapters in the Mass. Bay area.

The $6000 allocation to Tri-Community, despite a decrease from the previous year, is equivalent to the level of "free" care as reported by the agency. "Free" care is defined as that amount of service not covered by third party payments (e.g., Medicare, Medicaid) nor by clients' fees.

United Way allocations for 1979 are the result of year-round efforts by 113 volunteers, led by James F. Callahan, Jr. of Lynnfield, chairman of the United Way's top-level Allocations Suypport Policies Committee and partner of Arthur Anderson & Co.

Four Winchester residents serve as United Way allocations volunteers and took part in the decisions on 1979 allocations: Edward W. Kane, assistant loan officer, New England Merchants National Bank; Ellen M. O'Brien, first vice president, Massachusetts Teachers Association; Deborah Broadhurst of Glen Road; and Jan Levine, Investors Diversified Services.

Thirty-six other United Way agencies in 17 other cities and towns in the United Way's West Region received a total of $1,207,525 as their 1979 allocations. The United Ways' West Region, which includes Winchester, is comprised of 18 communities west of Boston. Most agencies serve residents throughout the area.

Total allocations by the United Way for 1979 to all of its affiliated agencies amount to $16 million, one million dollars more than 1978. More than 160 United Way agencies provide a variety of health and social services to residents in 86 cities and towns in the Massachusetts Bay area.

The 1979 allocations are based on the result of the 1978 United Way campaign, which raised a record $19,265,711 in pledges. The campaign total from the West Region was $736,167.

Toastmistresses To Meet Mon.

The Winchester Toastmistress Club will present a program Monday, at 7 p.m. at the Stoneham Public Library, Main street, Stoneham. The public is invited. Admission is free.

The purpose of the program is to demonstrate how to deliver impromptu and extem0oraneous speeches for those special occasions that demand an oral expression. Such speeches must be brief, sincere, friendly and dignified.

Members of the club who will participate include Lois Hamilton and Mrs. Joseph Darish, both of Malden; Mrs. John H. Harris and Mrs. Preston Johnson, both of Melrose; Mrs. Aldo J. Pietrantoni of Medford, and Mrs. Daniel A. Murray of Somerville. Mrs. Charles W. Tyner of West Medford, president of the club, will preside.

Toastmistress is a international, non-profit organization which offers women of all ages training in leadership, poise, self-confidence, speech organization and delivery.

For further information contact Carol at 665-1796 or Madeline at 625-9503.

VFW Auxiliary To Hold Social Monday Night

The Aberjona Ladies Auxiliary 3719, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold its monthly social at the post quarters on River street next Monday at 8 p.m.

The social is being held to benefit the organization's charitable endeavors.

Chairman Margaret Labedz invites the public to attend the monthly social. Refreshments will be served.

Duplicate Bridge

The Winchester Duplicate Bridge Club met Feb. 14, with Section A having six tables in play and Section B having nine. Al Oszy directed.

The North-South winners in Section A were Ida Finlay and Nancy Atkinson, first; and Mr. and Mrs. Duryea, second.

The East-West winners were S. Hazeltine and E. Joyce, first; and tied for second and third, P. Donaghy and J. Donoghue, and Nancy Watts and F. Stryker.

Section B winners for North-South were Barbara Shea and Jolene Whittemore, first; Mr. and Mrs. Enge, second, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cincotta, third; and Frank Lombardo and Leo Gonsalves, fourth.

The East-West winners were Mr. and Mrs. Lappin, first; Al Oszy and D. Pamir, second; S. Aronson and L. Ashman, third; and Mr. and Mrs. Green, fourth.

Starting time for the month of March will be 7:15 p.m. for everyone.

Hands of enormous values are uncommon. A majority of competitive bridge players feel it is more practical to utilize 2 D, 2 H, and 2 S as weak hands (which occur more often), similar to the pre-emptive three bids. This system requires some strong and artificial bid to alert partner to the really big hands. In Standard American bidding, this is 2 C. The hand below is a bridge player's dream, even though it contains only 17 High Card Points. To reach a cold 7 H contract it is only necessary to find out if your partner has the K and Q of Hearts.

+The 5 NT bid is called the Grand Slam Force and asks partner to bid 7 H. (The automatically agreed upon suit as 2 C is artificial and doesn't refer to clubs), if he has 2 of the top 3 honors. If he has one or none, he would sign off at 6 H. Getting the most of the cards you are dealt is what duplicate is all about.

Would you like to have a Newspaper Route?

Few jobs give young people more advantages and experience than they get from a newspaper route

- Earn your own spending money
- Learn the value of good service
- Use spare time wisely
- Enjoy healthful outdoor activity
- Meeting & dealing with people will help you later in life.

Young people managing their own newspaper route gain many advantages: * They learn how to handle money and keep financial records. * They learn how to sell + By meeting and dealing with all kinds of people, they develop their personality and sense of dependability.

Best of all, weekly profits provide the cash they need for "pin money" to buy clothes or sports equipment, or save for their future education. A newspeeper route does not take much of one's time and does not interfere with school work.

Shakespeare At Heritage Museum

The MIT Shakespeare Ensemble will appear in "Scenes from Shakespeare" on Saturday at 2 p.m., at the Museum of Our National Heritage, in Lexington. This theatrical performance will be followed by a discussion between the actors and the audience, and has been especially planned for people from junior high through college ages.

Admission is free to this event as well as to the museum which is located at 33 Marrett rd., corner of Rt. 2A and Massachusetts avenue in Lexington.

Scout Show At Mall March 3

The Minuteman Council, Boy Scouts of America, will present their annual scout show at the Burlington Mall on March 3. Cub Scout packs, Boy Scouts troops and Explorer Scout units are combining their skills to bring before the public aa display of Scout ability, coordination and leadership.

Units from 20 cities and towns that are within the Minuteman Council will be taking part in this scout skill show. Boys and their leaders are busy putting together interesting displays and perfecting their skills in order to show the public what scouting is all about.

Units participating will be judged during the course of the day on neatness, content and knowledge pertaining to their presentation. Winning units will be awarded a gold steamer to add to their unit flag.

In order to promote participation and public interest in the skill show and scouting in general, scouts are now out in their local areas selling tickets to this scout show. The Burlington Mall is open to the general public and no admission ticket is needed to see the show.

Neighbourhood Co-op Nursery School Holds Open House March 6

The Neighbourhood Cooperative Nursery School, which meets at the Congregational Church on the Common, will hold its open house March 6 at 8 p.m.

Visitors will be welcome to look at the classrooms and equipment and to ask questions of the teachers and parents of this year's students.

Melissa Irwin attends the three-year-olds class at the Neighbourhood Cooperative Nursery School. The school will host an open house March 6.

Students Attend Career Days At High School Feb. 13, 14

Ten residents of Winchester, including Edward O'Connell, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and Dirck Stryker, professor of economics at Tufts University, spoke to foreign language students of Winchester High School on Feb. 13 and 14, emphasizing how the knowledge of foreign language has helped them in their profession.

Other Winchester residents who participated in Career Days were Peter Arnott, Miriam Balmuth, Elizabeth Bishop, Gabriel R. Caggiano, Dr. Albert L. Muggia, Hewson Ryan, Eileen Schell, and Alan Schoenegge.

Six speakers were from outside Winchester. They include Karen Camp of the Palmer Organization, who has had a career in international business, and Eve Lee who is currently employed by the Christian Science Monitor, after several years spent teaching German at the university level.

Lisa Jordan gave advice to students interested in entering the field of communications, particularly television and radio.

Edward Silk of Massachusetts FARE Plan represented the insurance industry, while Mary Jane Enterkin spoke for the travel business and Carol Rodomanski for a firm of international accountants.

Each speaker addressed a group of 75 to 100 students, and student response was most favorable.

VO Fashion Show Planned To Aid Scholarship Fund

The Vinson-Owen Parents' Association will present a fashion show March 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Vinson-Owen School. Fashions donated by Sears of Burlington Mall will be modeled by the students.

All proceeds from this fund raiser are to benefit Vinson-Owen's newly established Scholarship Award fund. The awards provide recognition to two high-ranking seniors of Winchester High School who have attended Vinson-Owen Elementary School.

Tickets may be obtained at $3 per adult and $1.50 per child by contacting reservations chairman, Sue Powers. Private donations to the Vinson-Owen Scholarship fund are welcome and are tax-exempt.

Drum And Bugle Corp To Start Fund Drive

Within a week, the Immaculate Conception Drum and Bugle Corps will step off a fund drive involving all business and professional organizations, and community service groups in the Woburn-Winchester area.

The drum and bugle corps is one of the largest youth-oriented programs in both communities, and the group aks for support of the youth, ages nine to 21, who participate in the program.

Bob Cummings, an employee in the Century Publications production department, explained screen overlays in last week's Winchester Star auto section, to Ben Dulong and other Cub Scouts from pack 521. The pack recently toured CPI offices. (Staff photo)

Carolyn Tiffany Leads Discussion At Title I Night

Carlyn Tiffany was the featured speaker at the annual Winchester "Title I Night" held recently at McCall Junior High. Nineteen parents, among them Winchester Parent Advisory Council chairman, Joan Surabian; McCall PAC co-chairman, Lynn Wagstrom; and Lynch PAC chairman, Pat Struthers, participated in the informative discussion on the whys and ways of effective communication between parent and child.

Tiffany, a member of the Winchester High School Guidance Department, is an experienced workshop leader in parent effectiveness and has run several well-received workshops at the high school. She used an informal, audience participation method, and her non-threatening delivery was very effective, according to comments of the audience.

Parenting, an impo4tant job which entails many man hours for many years, is, unfortunately, one of the few jobs for which people receive no formal training or preparation.

What do parents want for their children? From this basic question Tiffany elicited responses from her audience concerning what they wished for their children. She thus drew out from those present a common-sense, but helpful list (the whys) and then gave a presentation establishing the means (the ways) for achieving those goals for our children: self-awareness, self-esteem, confidence, assurance, ability, responsibility, and trustworthiness.

After a brief brain-storming session and sharing of the results, coffee and refreshments signaled the end to the formal meeting, as the parents and staff mingled and discussed both the topic at hand and other specific concerns.

Staff present were Title I staff: coordinator and teacher, Misty Schwartzman; associate teacher, Carol Noones from Lynch and Joy Reppucci from McCall; clerical aide, Ms. Rogers from McCall.

Also present were Sister M. Louise, teacher of the eight grade class receiving Title I services at St. Mary's, accompanied by Sister M. Jean, second grade, and Dr. Walter Gleason, assistant superintendent of curriculum who was introduced as the "Father of Title I."

The next PAC meeting, open to all, parents of Title I schools (over 95 students are served by Title I in Winchester) as well as the general public will be held March 8, at Lynch Junior High at 9:30 a.m. All PAC meetings are held on the second Thursday of the month, and meetings rotate with most meetings held at the Title I office at McCall Junior High.

Regional Meetings On Alcoholism Set March 5 In Waltham

Regional committees of the Governor's Council on Alcoholism will sponsor public hearings on the 1979 state plan for the prevention, treatment and control of alcohol abuse and alcoholism, at three separate locations in the greater Boston area.

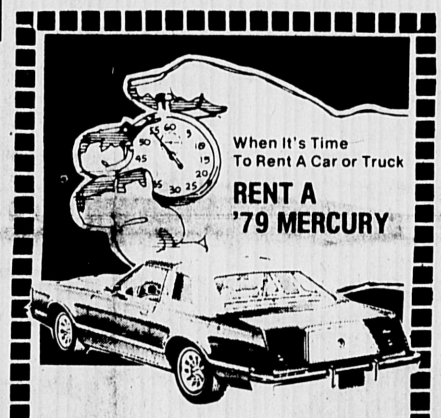

The event of public hearing, represents a major change in the alcoholism planning process but will become a mainstay in future plans.

For Winchester (Region IV A) the hearing will be held March 5, at 7:30 p.m., in the Middlesex County Hospital, 775 Trapelo rd., Waltham. Laura Burns (876-1748) can be contacted for further information.

It's a Matter of Choice

Let's get right to the meat of the subject. Pewter Pot's new Branding Iron Steak, served with Pilgrim Fries and salad now comes in two portion sizes.
Our always popular 6-ounce steak, only $3.50. And now, for a heartier appetite, a full half pound steak at $4.25. Same great steak, only now more of it.
Of course, Pewter Pot still offers lots of other great meals at terrific prices. Not to mention delicious desserts.
Come on in to Pewter Pot, where the menu's been beefed up, the prices are still low, and the choice is yours for the asking.

Travel Along with MAVIS

St. Croix is one of the Caribbean's most popular and beautiful islands. Like many Caribbean islands, shopping on St. Croix is duty-free; you could save enough money on duty-free jewelry, native art, fine liquors, and cameras to pay for your entire vacation. The beaches are magnificent, and there is excellent sailing and big game fishing available. St. Croix is duty-free; you could save enough money on duty-free jewelry, native art, fine liquors, and cameras to pay for your entire vacation. The beaches are magnificent, and there is excellent sailing and big game fishing available. St. Croix also boasts the world's only underwater national part, Buck Island. The night-life and restaurants are superb, and the picturesque little towns such as Christiansted, with its pastel-colored houses, and Frederiksted, with its Victorian architecture and cobblestone streets, make delightful daytime excursions.
Make your reservations through MCGRATH TRAVEL SERVICE 14 Eaton Avenue, Woburn . . . St. Croix offers just the right combination of peaceful seclusion and city excitement. For once, you can have it both ways: you'll enjoy the sophisticated shops and nightclubs as well as unspoiled seascapes. It's too good to miss! . . . Call 935-0600 . . . For Senior Citizens...

About 170 persons enjoyed last Wednesday's Valentine's Day party at the Jenks Senior Center.

There were games, prizes, music and "more food than you could shake a stick at," says Leonor Rich, publicity chairman for the Seniors Association.

Mrs. Rich played the piano and the Winchester High School jazz band, under the leadership of Priscilla Miller of the music department, performed for the senior citizens.

Senior Citizens wish to express their thanks to the members of the jazz band, to the high school students who help out at the center and to all who helped to make the party a success.

Seniors needing the Meals on Wheels program, providing a hot meal and a lighter meal delivered daily Monday through Friday, should contact Ann Hughes, program coordinator, at 729-6578.

Senior citizens participating in the SPAN Postal Alert are asked to return their postcards with their signature, as soon as possible. For information on the program, call 729-2111.

Anyone interested in the trip to Burmuda, March 3-8, should call the recreation department at 729-4514, for more information. Cost of the trip is $387, with $100 deposit required. The group will stay at the Burmudiana Hotel. Full breakfast and dinner will be included daily.

Tax assistance in filing state and federal income tax forms is available free. Volunteers will be at the Jenks Senior Center every Tuesday and Thursday, 9-11 a.m. No appointment is necessary, but those wishing help should bring all forms with them.

The Winchester Seniors Association is planning a "sugaring off" trip on March 14. Those interested in the trip should make reservations by calling the senior service line at 729-2111.

The group will leave the Jenks Senior Center at 12:30 and will return at 4:45 p.m. Participants will see how maple syrup is made and tastes.

The Seniors Association says to be prepared for muddy, rough ground and to wear appropriate footwear. Cost of the trip will is $4.25. Seniors are asked to bring a bag lunch to eat at the Center.

The quarterly meeting of the Winchester Seniors Association will be held on March 16.

According to the Seniors Association, on days when the Winchester High School is closed, due to inclement weather, activities at the Jenks Senior Center will also be cancelled.

For information on activities at Jenks Senior Center, 109 Skillings rd., call the senior service line at 729-2111.

The March monthly luncheon will be held at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church on March 6 at noon. For reservations, call Ivy Watson, 729-4788, or Alice Ahern, 729-3914. The luncheon will be co-sponsored by the Methodist and Second Congregational Churches.

The widowed-to-widowed program is open to widows and widowers of all ages. Meetings are held on the second and fourth Fridays of the month at 2 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center.

Are there any senior citizens out there who would like to join in on some old-fashioned ballroom dancing? If the Center receives enough requests for this kind or any other kind of activity, the Center will try to organize a program.

Ann Franciose To Be In Concert At Museum Of National Heritage

Ann Franciose, of Winchester, will perform a concert on Sunday, at 3 p.m. at the Museum of Our National Heritage in Lexington. Admission to the performance is free and the public is invited to attend.

Franciose will be performing works by Chopin, Schubert, and Debussy for this afternoon's program. She received her musical training at Oberlin College, the New England Conservatory, and the Mozarteum Akademie in Salzburg, Austria. She has performed extensively in this country and abroad.

Recent Boston appearances include concert engagements at Symphony Hall, Jordan Hall and the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum. From 1970-78, Franciose was a member of the music department faculty at the University of Vermont where she taught piano music theory, chamber music and music history.

The Museum of Our National Heritage is located at 33 Marrett rd., at the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Route 2A.

Two Winchester Artists Display Work In Lexington

The artwork of two Winchester residents is on display during this month at the Medical Building on Clarke street, Lexington.

Pastels and oils by Dorothea Jeffery, of 5 Cliff st., are part of the display. Included in Jeffery's exhibit are several of her award-winning portraits: "Susan," "Young Man" and "Lisa," voted best portrait in a recent Lexington Arts and Crafts show.

Jeffery, a member of the Lexington Arts and Crafts Society, is a graduate of the New England School of Art and Design. She has also studied under Ernest Major and King Coffin.

Also on display at the exhibit sponsored by the Lexington Arts and Crafts Society are works by Doris Holt of Winchester.

A self-taught artist for the most part, Holt has painted since childhood, mainly for her own enjoyment. It has been only in the past three years, she says, that she has had the time to study and accumulate some paintings to show.

Since 18 months ago, Holt has been a member of the Winchester Art Association and a member and exhibitor of the Lexington Arts and Crafts Society.

Her work has been accepted and shown in a national exhibition of American artists at the Ogunquit Art Center, Ogunquit, Maine.

For several years, Holt was the illustrator of the cover of the Aux Chart, the news bulletin for the Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Medford. She has also produced a coloring book which is being used in the pediatric program at the Medford hospital, as well as in the lower grades of the Medford elementary schools.

Holt has been studying with Paul Planchett of Medford.

Local Churches To Observe Day Of Prayer

Speaker for the 1979 World Day of Prayer service to be held at Immaculate Conception Church March 2 will be the Rev. James J. Haddad, pastor of St. Eulalia's Church.

He will be speaking on "Spiritual Growth" the theme chosen by the students in the Pan-African leadership course for women at Mindolo Ecumenical Foundation, Kitwe, Zambia, who prepared this year's service for use around the world.

Joining in observance of this, the 92nd birthday of World Day of Prayer, will be women of many denominations and communions in 170 countries and islands.

In the United States World Day of Prayer is the most widely observed ecumenical celebration sponsored by Church Women United. Locally, CWU in Winchester is coordinating the participation of women from all 10 churches in the observance.

Directing the planning for the day is chairman Mrs. Antonio J. Paolitti of the Immaculate Conception Church asssisting her are Mrs. Raymond Gosselin, First Baptist Church; Mrs. Joshua Lombard, Unitarian Church; Miss Hilda Hope, Church of the Epiphany; Mrs. Patrick Giallongo, St. Eulalia's Church; Mrs. Ferdinand Pacione, St. Mary's Church; Mrs. Anne Feuss, First Congregational Church; Mrs. Ronald Richburg and Mrs. Levon Boodakian, Second Congregational Church; Mrs. David Dettinger, Crawford Methodist Church; Mrs. Henry K. Stevens, First Church of Christ Scientists, Norma Littlefield, Immaculate Conception Church and Mrs. Rodney Torres, president of Church Women United for 1978-79 from St. Mary's Church.

Participating as readers from Winchester's 10 churches will be Mrs. Lemuel R. Cudmore, Mrs. Jenness Eugley, Mrs. Raymond Gosselin, Mrs. Anthony Hardcastle, Mrs. Ralph Hatch, Mrs. Frederick Herberich, Mrs. Thomas Leonard, Mrs. Joshua Lombard, Mrs. Carl Ockerbloom, Jr. and Alice O'Leary.

The choir will be directed by Loretta Figucia of Immaculate Conception Church and choir members representing all 10 churches will be Mrs. Stephen Anderson, Mrs. George Barry, Mrs. Stewart Brine, Mary Cullen, Mrs. Donald E. Cullivan, Mrs. Alan Ferguson, Mrs. Robert A. Gallant, Mrs. Robert Holdsworth, Mrs. James Keefe, Mrs. Dana Kelly, Mrs. Ronald King, Mrs. John H. Lynch, Mrs. Archibald MacDaonald, Mrs. Robert Millican, Mrs. Richard McIntyre, Mrs. Innocent Noel, Mrs. William L. Owens, Mrs. David Purdy and Mrs. Johnnes Spanjaard.

Solist will be William C. Gurrisi and the organist will be Mrs. Ronald DiIeso.

The service at 1 p.m. is to be followed by a fellowship tea hosted by the women of the Immaculate Conception Ladies Sodality. Baby sitting will be provided from 12:30 to 3:30 in the school hall.

There were very few Winchester residents on the streets Saturday because of the freezing temperatures. But this child, seen merrily skipping up Church street, didn't seem to mind the cold. (Staff photo)

How to recycle: Separate clear, green, amber glass and cans; tie newspapers with a string.

Deposit the items in marked containers at the recycling area of the transfer station off Swanton street. Hours are Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday, 7 a.m. to noon.

On The Cover

Ain't Misbehavin' is still running strong on Broadway, with no signs of closing, but that doesn't mean that Boston theatregoers will miss out. This Wednesday, via a national touring company, the musical that won the Tony Award for Best Musical of 1977\78 and other accolades officially opens at Boston's Wilbur Theatre.

Ain't Misbehavin' is a tribute, in dance and music, to jazzman Thomas Wright "Fats" Waller. Under the tutelage of rag-timer James P Johnson, Fats Waller rose to fame as one of the outstanding stride pianists and jazz organists of the Twenties and Thirties, and as a composer. Often accompanying his fancy keyboard sprees with an easy singing style, Waller appeared on records, live on his own radio show, and even in films. His was a fast-paced career, cut short by pneumonia in 1943, when Waller was just 39. By that time, there were over 500 recordings under the Waller belt.

The 30-odd songs in Ain't Misbehavin' come from that legacy. Some of them, like Honeysuckle Rose and Keepin' Out of Mischief Now, are old-time swinging favorites. And some, like Waller's biggest hit I'm Gonna Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter aren't his compositions at all, but he made them live. They are all given voice and substance by five performers, a six-piece orchestra, and of course a piano, manned by J Leonard Oxley.

Among those striding under the Wilbur's kleig lights will be Ken Prymus, who played the blustery and befuddled Cowardly Lion in the Boston production of The Wiz this summer. You can see him on the cover, swaying Yvette Freeman.

Ain't Misbehavin' is slated to stay at the Wilbur for seven weeks; closing night is April 14. Previews are held this Friday through Wednesday afternoon. Opening night, on Wednesday at 7:30, is a benefit for the Greater Roxbury Development Corporation, which includes a gala cast party and reception after the curtain falls. The performance schedule, for previews and all other shows is Tuesday through Saturday at 8 pm, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2, Sunday at 3. There is a special Monday night show set for April 9, at 8.

There's no denying that this is an expensive undertaking. Tickets range from $9 to $20, and may be charged by calling 426-8383, or get them at the box office at 252 Tremont Street (423-4008). For group rates, give a ring to 426-6444. Opening night benefit tickets cover the spectrum from $15 to $25, and for information on how to get them, call the Development Corporation at 445-4242.

dining out au naturel

By Steven Raichlen

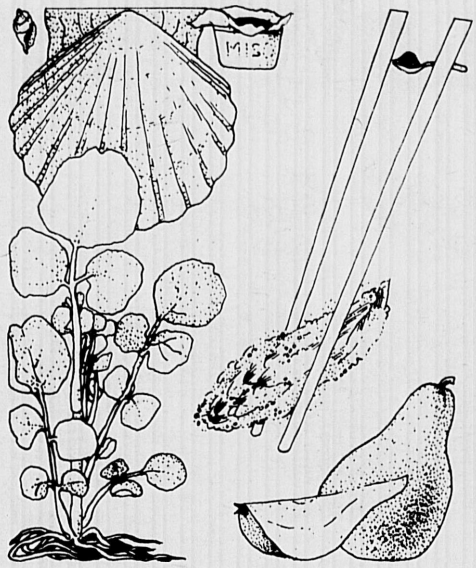

I trained with a French chef for whom the appearance, and above all the taste of any dish were the vital concerns. Thus, I never quite know what to say when someone asks me, "Yes, but is it healthy?" We'd never heard of wheat germ or tofu in France, nor had the foggiest notions of complementary proteins or the dangers of carcinogens. We always used the freshest ingredients and cooked everything from scratch, of course, but in France that's plain culinary common sense.

I'm not sure what old Chef Chambrette would make of what are usually, and not altogether accurately, referred to as "health food" or "natural-food" restaurants. Surely he'd grumble that you can't make decent stocks and sauces without meat or poultry. No doubt he'd pale at the thought of baked goods without eggs, sugar, milk, or cream. He'd probably bemoan the deliberate blandness of many of the health dishes, and the nondescript texture of most vegetarian casseroles. On the other hand, I suspect Chambrette would admire the resourcefulness of those cooks who satisfy their customers despite the gaps on the ingredient shelf. He'd appreciate the simplicity and cleanliness of most natural-food restaurants, and the care and attention of their employees. Who knows? If no one were watching he might even take a liking to alfalfa sprouts.

Well, whatever a French chef might think, natural-food restaurants are thriving in America. To check on the state of the art in Boston we visited four such eating establishments. It's too bad Chef Chambrette couldn't share our findings.

Seventh Inn

As a rule, natural-food restaurants are home-spun, comfortable eating spots — better suited for an informal lunch than night-on-the-town dining. The Seventh Inn at 69 Providence Street in Boston proves the exception to the rule, with class and style to match any occasion. It's a quiet, tasteful place with recessed lights and veritable hanging gardens — a pleasing blend of Zen purity and Scandinavian design. The fare of the Seventh Inn is macrobiotic, the branch of Japanese cooking which proscribes meat, sugar, and dairy products. Sticking to traditional Japanese dishes, we tried a feather-light, perfectly deep-fried vegetable tempura, and scallops steamed with soy, scallions and ginger. In their utter simplicity, the scallops attained the zenith of fishy perfection.

A strictly vegetarian dish, the baked tofu comes with a nutty miso-tahini sauce. Tofu is a mainstay of natural-food diets: the high protein, low calorie "cheese" made from soybeans, it tastes very bland and has the consistency of light custard. It's exceedingly "healthy." Equally "healthy" is the watercress salad, which has lots of mineral spunk and is best enjoyed with a tart, potent salad dressing made from salt-cured umeboshi plums.

Come dessert time, the Seventh Inn descends from its macrobiotic pedestal to offer ice cream and whipped cream atop such decidedly Western treats as apple pie, pear crisp, and Indian pudding. I tried the latter — a cream of wheat-like porridge loaded with maple syrup.

The Seventh Inn serves meals to fit all budgets: $4 will fetch you an ample vegetarian dinner; $14, a sumptuous New England seafood platter. The wine list — unusual for this kind of restaurant — makes dining more elegant.

The service is impeccable.

Sanae

The Seventh Inn has a baby brother on Newbury Street — Sanae — which is the oldest such eating establishment in Boston. Run cafeteria-style, the tidy basement shop has the rough-hewn feel of an alternative eatery.

Sanae offers more conventional fare, not nearly so delicate as that of the Seventh Inn. We tried pan-fried Soba — Japanese buckwheat noodles — with vegetable sauce. The fine flavored noodles had plenty of texture, but the vegetables were overcooked and sadly flaccid. The broiled tofu was better. A tuft of fresh ginger at one end of the plate provided the hotness, a dish of soy sauce at the other provided the flavor, while bright bits of slivered scallion kept eye and tongue amused.

The house salad features much from the vegetable kingdom, but it's back to the drawing board for the salad dressing. We sampled the nut dressing, a stroke of genius in theory. In practice, it needs lemon juice, or vinegar, or something to cut the creamy blandness of the nuts. The kayu, rice bread, was leaden. Devotees would argue that such "healthy" foods are an acquired taste. Unless you're one of the enlightened, you may find the fare at Sanae somewhat heavy and unenticing.

Conscious Cookery

Conscious Cookery at 30 Mass Ave in Boston is my favorite. The fare is imaginative and — most uncommon — highly flavored. The restaurant offers the best vegetarian dishes from a half-dozen of the world's great cuisines.

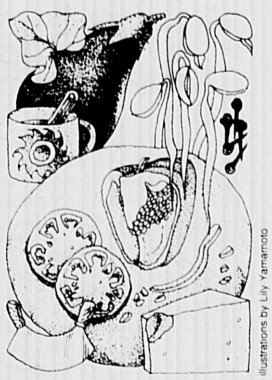

The finest offerings of Conscious Cookery are Mexican. One popular dish goes by the name of Sunburst — a colorful array of tomato, pepper, and grilled cheddar on an open-faced tortilla. The Old World Enchiladas — nicely sauced — surpass the enchiladas served by most Mexican places in town. The luscious black beans served on the side are all the more impressive because they're made without that sine qua non of Mexican cooking, lard.

Ingenuity and solid flavor carry over to the sandwich department. One copious offering — served in a whole-wheat pita — brings together lemony chick pea spread, mushrooms, tomatoes, alfalfa sprouts, and toasted cheddar. The "Big Macro" (free of dairy products) sandwiches hummus, mushrooms, sprouts, and tofu between two fat slices of whole-wheat bread.

Friday is the best day to come to Conscious Cookery for dessert, when the daily special is apple kuchen, a divinely rich cross between apple pie and cheese cake. Capriphiles will find several flavors of goat's milk ice-cream here, available by the dish or in frappes or "Mondays." I prefer my goat's milk as cheese, where you expect its sourish tang, but the ice-cream is worth a try at least once. Don't miss the house beverage, Yogi tea, an enchanting brew of cinnamon, cloves, cardamom, and black pepper. It's delicious hot or chilled. The Red Zinger punch, made with orange juice, pineapple juice, and rose hip tea, is as intriguing as it is refreshing.

Golden Temple

Conscious Cookery was, up until about a year ago, called the Golden Temple and owned by the Sikhs, those beturbaned holy men who run a Yogi Center, the Golden Temple Emporium, in Boston. They founded the restaurant, sold it, and now, have recently opened another, the Golden Temple in

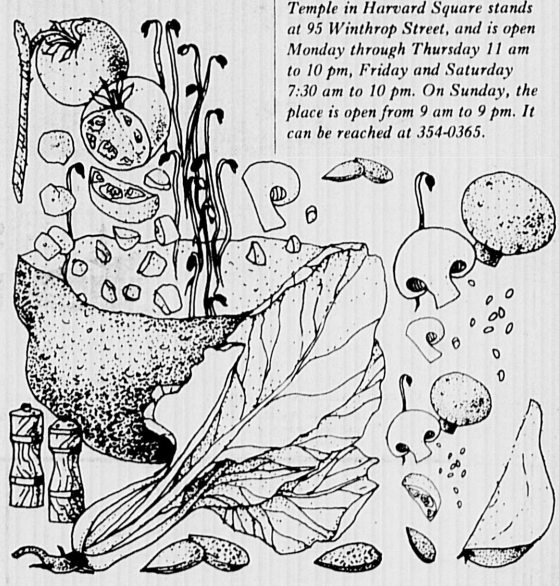

Illustrations by Lily Yamamoto

Cambridge's Harvard Square. Sharing a basement with a vast natural products/natural-food store, the Golden Temple operates cafeteria-style, with hot dishes cooked to order. Amid the hype and the hustle-bustle of most Harvard Square eating establishments, the Golden Temple provides a singularly pleasant place to break bread. As a matter of fact, it's named after the original Golden Temple in India, where worthy pilgrims can be cured of whatever ails them — simply by contemplating the building.

Notes:

Located at 69 Providence Street in Park Square, Boston, the Seventh Inn is open noon to 9 pm Tuesday through Saturday, 5 to 9 pm on Sunday. Its number is 261-3965. Over at 272a Newbury Street, Sanae (247-2475) stays open from 11 am to 9 pm daily except Tuesday, when it's closed. Number 30 Mass Ave boasts Conscious Cookery (247-7947). Its hours are noon to 9 pm Monday through Thursday, until 9 pm Friday and Saturday. Finally, crossing the Charles to Cambridge, the Golden Temple in Harvard Square stands at 95 Winthrop Street, and is open Monday through Thursday 11 am to 10 pm, Friday and Saturday 7:30 am to 10 pm. On Sunday, the place is open from 9 am to 9 pm. It can be reached at 354-0365.

Museums | Milling Around Lowell

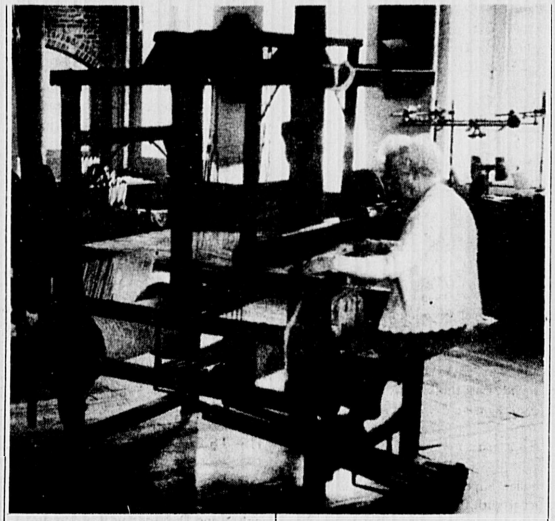

Just two years old, the Lowell Museum is definitely different.

By Maggie Hall

From the outside, it doesn't look much like a museum. There are no travertine terraces, no glassy vistas. You enter through a small door at the corner of an immense expanse of brick wall.

Just two years old, the Lowell Museum is definitely different. Unlike most of the small museums which are dotted around the New England countryside, its focus is not the American Revolution, but the Industrial Revolution, the effects of which were just as far-reaching as those of the War for Independence. In fact, the Industrial Revolution won its own measure of freedom: with her own flourishing textile industry, born and bred in Lowell, the United States was less dependent on the vagaries of international trade and blockade.

A standing exhibit at the museum is Spindle City: 1820-1940. It shows the growth of Lowell — an early "planned community," laid out by mill owners — and is a tribute not only to the owners, those Yankee captains of industry, but to the working people of Lowell, and especially to the working women, who made Lowell work.

These mill-girls, fresh off the farm or the boat and eager for their first opportunity to earn a little money of their own, staffed most of the mills. Model rooms in the Spindle City exhibit provide graphic evidence of how these mill-girls really lived. One room recreates a small dormitory bedroom. The mill-girls slept two to a bed and four — or more — to a room. One hopes that they slept well, because they worked hard at their looms — 14 hours in an average day, six days in a week.

The mills that dominated the lives of the mill-girls are the special feature of the Lowell Museum. The Wannalancit Mills, an operative mill in whose buildings the museum is housed, allows tours of its working floors to museum visitors. This privilege was formerly accorded only to the groups of school-children who visited, but it is now possible for individuals to join up with a tour and see the mills in operation. The tour by itself is worth a visit, and the museum's exhibits are the frosting on the cake.

The museum is connected to the actual mills by a circular staircase. As you climb it, look at the treads of each step, worn nearly smooth by the weight of many feet. When you enter the rooms where row upon row of looms are arrayed like infernal machines, the noise hits you like a wave. You can feel it in your ears, in your feet, in your bones, even though not all of the hundreds of looms are in operation at any one time (as they would have been in the old days). Try to imagine twice or three times the volume you are hearing, and see if you can still stand up straight. The floors shake with the sound and the steady slamming of the looms.

The looms are run by electricity now, but in the days before Thomas Alva Edison, the entire weaving process, from raw cotton to finished cloth, was powered by water, which is why the mill buildings in Lowell are strung along the course of the Merrimack River like beads on a chain. Despite a certain amount of mechanization (like fork-lifts) the human element is still important in the mills. Quality control, for instance, is all done by hand, or rather, by eye. Women who sit at a large frame, like a hollow drafting table only bigger, inspect every inch of enormous bolts of nylon. A small number of the microscopic flaws found are considered standard. Otherwise, the whole bolt becomes irregular, and the loom is corrected accordingly. You won't be able to see a fraction of the things the quality checkers find.

Back downstairs in the museum proper, let the ringing in your ears subside for a moment or two. Take a look at An Exhibit of Paintings from the City of Lowell's Collection, a show of works about Lowell and works by Lowell natives, which is up until February 28. If you visit between March 3 and 31, you'll see New England Quilts and the Part the Lowell Mills Played in Them, a show founded by the Mobil Foundation. The 50-odd quilts in the exhibit will range from miniatures (doll-house size) to full size. Some of them are made from calico that the Lowell mills produced in the late 1800s.

Notes:

The Lowell Museum, at 560 Suffolk Street, is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 am to 5 pm, and on Sunday from 1 pm to 5 pm. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for those under 15.

Tours of the Wannalancit Mills, are given Wednesdays, on the hour from 10 am to 1 pm. To make the necessary tour arrangements, call 459-6782.

Movies | Short Subjects

Cafe Society — Peter Firth, Marjoe Gortner, and in the background, Stephanie Faracy, adversaries in When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder, now at the Beacon Hill.

The Brink's Job

If William Friedkin had directed the movie as thoroughly as Dino de Laurentiis and his myrmidons promoted it, the result would have been much more satisfying. The Brink's Job glorifies the crime and the Boston of yesterday, and while it is nice to see Scollay Square again, the movie is sluggish and blunted. Peter Falk plays Tony Pino, an improbable mastermind. With Peter Boyle, Paul Sorvino, Gena Rowlands, and Allen Goorwitz, who gets the funniest scenes. Cheri.

California Suite

The movie, adapted by Neil Simon from his play, uses a kind of Grand Hotel conceit: one location, four acts, and variations on a love theme. Maggie Smith as an actress nominated for an Oscar and Michael Caine as her husband have impeccable timing and style. Jane Fonda is grim as an arrogant East Coast "intellectual," and Alan Alda is goofy as her ex-husband. Bill Cosby and Richard Pryor have a few good moments and many stupid ones; Elaine May and Walter Matthau are a couple from Chicago in the weakest and most old-fashioned of the sketches. Cheri; Braintree, Chestnut Hill, Danvers, Framingham.

The Deer Hunter

Michael Cimino's epic pulls no punches. The Deer Hunter is long, grueling, and exultant, the movie to see this year, if you can bear to. The story begins with five friends in a small town and moves shockingly, relentlessly into the war in Viet Nam, where nothing makes any sense. It's almost impossible to watch, but you can't tear yourself away. The war ends and those who have beaten the odds go home, but it is never the same. Robert De Niro and Christopher Walken are outstanding in an excellent cast that includes Meryl Streep, John Savage, and John Cazale. Charles, advance sales only.

The Great Train Robbery

From Michael Crichton's book, and directed by him, an intelligent caper movie with a lot of atmosphere. Set in Victorian times, before the invention of dynamite, the "perfect crime" is the heist of thousands of pounds of gold, from specially constructed safes inside a locked boxcar, while the train is moving. It all depends as much on setup as on execution, and Sean Connery is a cool mastermind. Donald Sutherland, as the cracksman, has a little trouble deciding what accent to use, but otherwise he comes off splendidly. Lesley-Anne Down is a decorative gun-moll in a part that is a write-off until the last scene. The sets that are obviously sets contribute to the period feel, and the robbery itself is alternately funny and thrilling. Charles; Brockton, Danvers, Dedham, Natick, Woburn.

Ice Castles

Invasion of the Body Snatchers

Movie Movie

Movie Movie is is really really two two movies movies, an old-fashioned double feature. Phase one, in black and white, is Dynamite Hands, the rags-to-riches saga of a poor but honest delivery boy who becomes a prize-fighter. Phase two, in color, is Baxter's Beauties, one of those little-girl-from-the-sticks-making-it-big-in-a-Broadway-show-when-the-star-breaks-her-ankle movies. Both segments have the same essential plot, the same cast, and many of the same camera angles. The script is very funny, although the actors sometimes give too much ponderance to lines that should be tossed blithely off. There are silly jokes, puns, malapropisms, mangled metaphors, and every cliche you've ever loved. Movie Movie is never rollicking; it's like a smile of recognition. With George C Scott, Trish Van Devere, Eli Wallach, Red Buttons, Barry Bostwick, and Harry Hamlin. Cheri; Braintree, Chestnut Hill.

Nea

Same Time, Next Year

Badinage about love and sex and manners, with Alan Alda and Ellen Burstyn as lovers who carry on once a year for 26 years. The film suffers from lackadaisical direction and never transcends its stage origins. Same Time, Next Year is entertaining in its own mild way, slick, and dopey, with a sound track that simply drips with corn. Cinema 57; Brockton, Lawrence.

Superman

Considerably slower than a speeding bullet, Superman gets off to a bad start, what with the longest credits in recent memory; and a tedious introduction on the planet Krypton in which Jor-El (Marlon Brando, looking like George Washington and sounding like a combination of Richard Burton and Rod McKuen) consigns his infant son to a space capsule (or a Christmas ornament, it's not clear) and a life on earth. Things don't really get going until Clark Kent walks into the city room of the Daily Planet; from then on, it's all pretty jolly. Christopher Reeve, who lays the Supe, has a stony face and a twinkle in his eye and he's terrific. Margot Kidder is a neurotic, vamping Lois Lane, and that's fine, too. As arch-villain Lex Luthor, Gene Hackman is just fooling around. The best scene in the whol movie lasts about three seconds and involves a telephone. Cinema 57; Brockton, Circle, Danvers, Dedham, Framingham, Hanover, Lawrence, Woburn.

The Thief of Bagdad

The re-release of a classic from 1940, in phantasmagorical Technicolor, with Sabu, Conrad Veidt (as a nasty magician), June Duprez, and Rex Ingram. For children and their parents. Orson Welles.

When You Comin' Back, Red Ryder

The edgily disagreeable story (madman terrorizes five in cafe) is redeemed by a handful of performances, notably by Marjoe Gortner and Stephanie Faracy. Gortner reels through his part with a kind of lunatic radiance: he emanates nastiness and there is an eerie method to his madness. Among his victims Stephanie Faracy is so charming with her little fluting voice, so nice with her fat pretty face, that she's a movie by herself. Peter Firth is the Red Ryder the title: he's a harmless punk, swaggering and smirky and still wet behind the ears. Directed by Milton Katselas with a screenplay adapted by Mark Medoff from his own play, there is much here that is extraneous and jerky, and a lot of power has been frittered away. See it for Gortner's rage and Faracy's loveliness. Beacon Hill.

World of Wheels

The International World of Wheels Show rolls into town today featuring hundreds of custom vehicles along with television celebrities. Some of the show's highlights include the Green Flame Mercury from Happy Days, and Scott Baio — Fonzie's cousin on Happy Days — who'll be there in person. The show is on from noon until 11 pm today and tomorrow, and from noon to 9 pm on Sunday. Admission is $4, $1 for kids six to 12 years old. It's all at the Hynes Auditorium, 900 Boylston Street, in Boston. Call 262-8000 for further details.

Brandenberg Ensemble

The Brandenberg Ensemble presents a concert of works by Telemann, Vivaldi, and Bach tonight at 8 in Symphony Hall, 251 Huntington Avenue, in Boston. Tickets range from $6 on up to $8 and are available at the box office (266-1492). The concert is given as part of the BU Celebrity Series.

Dance

There are two big deal dance performances beginning tonight. First, in Boston, the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theatre starts a three-day series of performances at 8 at the Music Hall, 268 Tremont Street. Tickets cost $6, $8, $9, and $10, and are available at the box office (423-3300). The troupe also performs tomorrow and Sunday nights at 8, and at 2 pm Sunday, as well. This stint is, again, part of the BU Celebrity Series. In Brockton, the Boston Ballet offers a preview of its upcoming series of concerts featuring Gaîté Parisienne, Symphony in C, and The Four Temperaments tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 at the Brockton High School, Route 123. Admission is $7, $3.50 for students. Tomorrow's 2 o'clock matinee costs $5, $2.50 for students. Call 587-1191 for all the details.

24-Sat

Jazz

The Dexter Gordon Quartet and the Woody Shaw Quintet make for a fine double-bill of jazz tonight at 7:30 at the Berklee Performance Center, 136 Mass Ave, in Boston. Tickets are $6.50 and $7.50, available at the box office (266-1400), Ticketron, Strawberries, and Concert Charge (426-8181).

Saturday Rock

Something old and something new is on tap for you tonight, musically speaking. Remember Tommy James and the Shondells? Well, they're back, hanky-panky and all, at 8 at the Weymana, Route 18 in Weymouth. Admission is $5 in advance, $6 at the door. Tickets are available at the box office (337-4700). Meanwhile, the group Angel, which has been described as a synthesizer-ized version of Black Sabbath, is at the Orpheum Theatre, Hamilton Place, in Boston at 8. Tickets are $7.50 and $8.50, available at the box office (482-0650), Ticketron, Strawberries, and Out-of-Town.

Young at Heart

Henny Youngman, who still reigns as the undisputed king of one-liners, is joined by Robbie Zeidman, a local soft rock performer, tonight at 9 in the Levin Ballroom at Brandeis University, in Waltham. Tickets go for $5 and are on sale at the Brandeis Student Service Bureau (647-2165) and also at Ticketron locations.

25-Sun

Craftsmanship of Japan

A new exhibit opening today at the John Woodman Higgins Armory Museum is called Craftsmanship of Japan. The exhibit features the work of Japanese artisans of the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries, and highlights their lacquer, iron and inlay work. You'll also see the armor and clothing of the Samurais, the legendary warriors of Japan. The museum is open today from 1 to 5 pm and is located on 100 Barber Avenue, in Worcester. Admission is $1.50, 50 cents for kids, and $1 for those over 65. Call 853-6015 for additional information.

African Dance

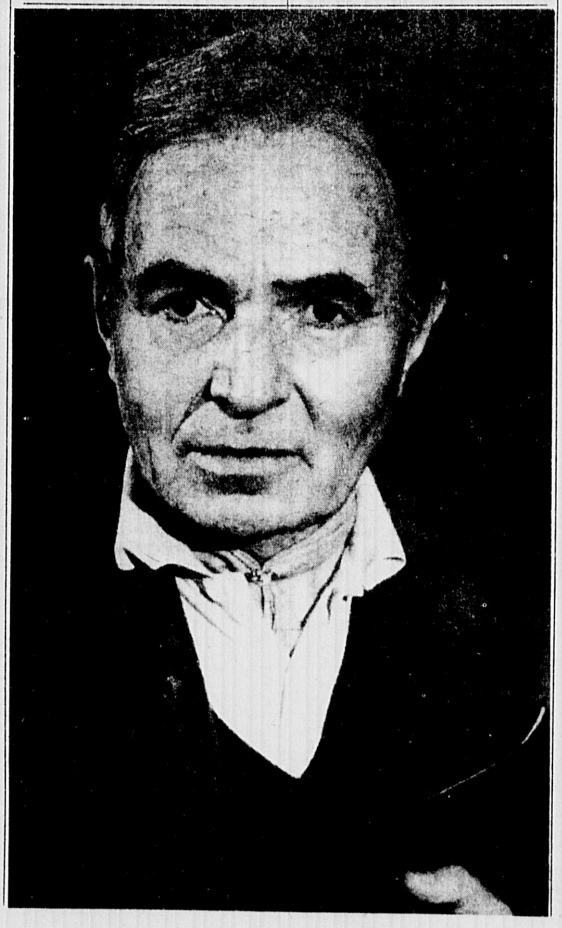

African dance and music is performed by a newly-formed group of dancers and musicians at 3 today at the Peabody Museum of Salem, East India Square, in Salem. There is no additional charge for this program above the regular museum admission charge of $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children and students. Call 745-1876 for further information.

26-Mon

$ Eclipse Watching

A partial eclipse of the sun, which occurs when the moon passes between the earth and the sun, can be seen in the Boston area between 11:05 am and 1:35 pm today. Do see it if you can, but please remember that it's very dangerous to view the eclipse without adequate eye protection. Dark glasses are not enough. It's best to use two layers of exposed, developed photographic film. If you'd like some company in viewing the eclipse, the folks at Chickatawbut Hill, at the Blue Hills Reservation in Milton, are holding an eclipse-watch at the appropriate time. Bring your lunch. Call 696-0920 for directions. There's no charge.

Bill Evans Trio

The virtuoso jazz pianist, Bill Evans, and his group do what they do best — play jazz — at Jonathan Swift's, 30 Boylston Street, in Cambridge tonight and tomorrow night at 7:30 and 10:30 pm. Tickets are $5.50 in advance, $6.50 at the door. Call 661-7945 for further information. By the way, the trio usually does a version of Michel Legrand's What Are You Doing the Rest of Your Life? in performance that'll just knock your socks off!

Faith Healer

James Mason stars in a new Broadway-bound play by Brian Friel called Faith Healer. The play concerns a faith healer who goes about the backwoods of Britain working his "miracles," and opens tonight at 7:30 at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston Street, in Boston. Tickets range from $9 to $16.50 and can be had at the box office (426-9366) and Teletron (426-8383).

Big Band

The big band sounds of the Herb Pomeroy Orchestra can be heard at the Scotch 'n Sirloin, 77 North Washington Street, in Boston tonight at 8. Admission is $5 for floor seating, $3 for gallery seats. Call 723-3677 for all the details.

27-Tues

Homage to Maestros

The New England Conservatory honors two of its faculty composers, Daniel Pinkham and Gunther Schuller, tonight at 8 when works by both are performed at the conservatory's Brown Hall, at 290 Huntington Avenue, in Boston. Admission is free. For more information call 262-1120.

Jimmy Witherspoon

Jimmy Witherspoon, the blues singer who puts his heart into everything he sings, performs at Lulu White, 3 Appleton Street, in Boston tonight through March 1. Sets are at 9:30, 11, and 12:30 each night. It'll cost you $3.50 to enter and if you want to know more, just call 423-3652.

28-Wed

$ Concert in Black and White

Concerts in Black and White features an explanatory dramatization of how Mozart composed his A Major Clarinet Concerto. The program is entitled That Wonderful Mozart and it features music as well as theatrics. The concert is expressly for senior citizens and students, and is presented this morning at 10:30 at John Hancock Hall, 180 Berkeley Street, in Boston. There is no charge. Call 482-2533 for all the details.

$ Plant Odyssey

The Arnold Arboretum features a slide/lecture presentation entitled Plant Odyssey, which takes you into gardens on the eastern seaboard as well as some in the midwest. The program includes very special gardens, and common ones, too. It's at 12:30 this afternoon at the arboretum, located on the Arborway, in Jamaica Plain. It's free. Call 524-1718 for details.

HUB

Benihana-201 Stuart St, Boston, 542-1166. Japanese cooked at the table by knife-wielding chefs. Hibachi steaks and chicken. Full bar, moderately expensive. Hours: Daily, noon-2 and 5:30-10:30 pm; Sun 4:30-9 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Cafe Budapest-90 Exeter St, Boston, 734-3388. Elegant and expensive, the fare is haute Hungarian: stroganoff, Wiener Schnitzel, tournedos, and rich, rich desserts. The Cafe is open Mon-Sat, noon-3 and 5-10:30 pm; until midnight Fri and Sat; 1-10:30 pm Sun. There is a full bar, and reservations are accepted every night except Sat, when the place is likely to be jammed. AE, BA/V, CB, DC.

Copley's Restaurant-In the Copley Plaza Hotel, 138 St James St, Boston, 267-5300. Continental favorites from more than one continent, curries rub elbows with clams Casino on the menu. Moderately expensive, fully licensed. Hours: Mon-Fri 11:30 am-3 pm, and 5:30-midnight; Sat and Sun 5:30-midnight, also noon-4 pm Sun. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Delmonico's Restaurant-710 Boylston St, Boston, 536-2200. Continental cuisine and tableside service. Full bar, reservations Mon-Thurs only. Hours: Mon-Fri 7 am-11 am and 5-10 pm; Sat 8-11 am and 5-11 pm; Sun brunch 8 am-3 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Gallagher-55 Congress St, Boston, 523-6080. The Dining Room, The Bar, and The Cafe, which turns into Truffles by night, can solve almost any eating exigency, from casual light snacks to formal American and European cuisine. An intriguing menu: the only one we know of that compares crepes to Rosencrantz and Guildenstern. Please call for the complete rundown on hours. AE, BA/V, CB, MC, DC.

Jimmy's Harborside-248 Northern Ave, Boston, 523-1000. Considering Jimmy's location on Fish Pier, it's no surprise that the specialty of the house is seafood. Fairly expensive. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-9:30 pm. Full bar; reservations are accepted Mon-Thurs. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Ken's At Copley-529 Boylston St, Boston, 266-6149. Good delicatessen food, including a long list of big sandwiches, is the order of the day at Ken's. The prices are moderate, the atmosphere informal. The line can be long, but moves along quickly. Gaze upon the dessert cases while you're waiting. Hours: Daily, 7-2:45 am. Beer and wine available. No credit cards, no reservations.

Locke-Ober-3 Winter Pl, Boston, 542-1340. For more than a century, Locke-Ober has been a bastion for local politicians and businessmen. Even today, ladies may feel more comfortable upstairs. Continental cuisine: everything is a la carte; impeccable service; expensive but not extravagant. Hours: 11 am-10 pm, daily except Suns. Full bar, reservations. AE, BA/V, MC.

99 Restaurant-125 Pearl St, Boston, 423-4792. One of a number of branches, sandwiches and burgers in a saloon style setting. Inexpensive, fully licensed. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-1 am. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

The Red Coach Grill-43 Stanhope St, Boston, 266-1900, and other locations. A steak place like a colonial tavern, with prime rib, lobster, steak, and other heartily American fare. Full bar, moderate prices. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-11:30 pm. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Seaside Restaurant and Bar-188 Faneuil Hall Marketplace, Boston, 742-8728. Intimate dining in a contemporary ambiance. Specialties include fresh seafoods, salads, sandwiches, prime sirloin, lobster, homemade desserts, choice wines. International bar on two levels. Popular and correspondingly crowded, so a reservation is a good idea. Full bar. Hours: 11-2 am, daily. AE, MC, House charge.

Top of the Hub-Prudential Center, Boston, 536-1175. On the Pru's 52nd floor, the Top of the Hub has the best of the views; prices are somewhat more down to earth. The cuisine is Stouffers continental: Veal Cordon Bleu, Rack of Lamb. Hours: Mon-Sat 11:30-3; Sun brunch 11-2:30; dinner Mon-Thurs 5:30-10 pm; Fri and Sat, 5:30-11 pm; Sun 5-9 pm. AE, BA/V, DC, MC, Stouffers Charge.

NORTH

Beef and Oyster House-143 Washington St, Salem, 744-4334. Beef and oysters, yes, but you needn't limit yourself to these eponymous delights, as there are other land and sea dishes to be had. Moderately expensive, fully licensed. Hours: Daily, 11 am-11 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Beverly Depot-10 Park St, Beverly, 927-5402. Take the Boston and Maine to the Depot, for steaks, chops, and all the trimmings, in railroad surroundings. Moderate prices, full bar. Closed on Mons, it's open for dinner 5-10 pm, Sun-Thurs; 5-11 pm Fri-Sat. AE, MC.

The Easterly Restaurant-87 Atlantic Rd, Gloucester, 283-0140. American and Continental cuisine, with New England specialities, and food for your eyes, too: a terrific ocean view. Full bar. Hours: Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-10 pm; Fri-Sat, until 11 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Hardcover-15A Newbury St, Danvers, 774-1223. American favorites like sirloin and shrimp, accented with French touches like crepes. Moderate prices. Full bar. No reservations Fri-Sat, but at other times, they are not a bad idea. Hours: Mon-Thurs, 5 pm-10 pm; Fri-Sat, until 11 pm; Sun, 4 pm-9 pm. AE, MC.

The Landing-At the Town Landing, Marblehead, 631-1878. Right on the harbor, a mostly seafood menu: Marblehead scrod, seafood casserole, fisherman's platter, and some landbound specialities as well. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: From 11:30 am Mon-Sat, from 10:30 Sun, until 10 pm weekdays, 11 pm weekends. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Pegasus Steak House-150 Newbury St (Rte 1), Ipswich, 356-9753. Among the specialties of the house are sirloin strip steak and lobster pie. Inexpensive, with dancing to boot. Hours: Tues-Sat 11:30 am-2:30 pm and 6-10 pm. BA/V, MC.

Proctor House-373 Lowell St, Peabody, 531-1598. In 18th-century surroundings, the menu is Yankee con brio. American and Italian specialties. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: 11:30 am-10 pm, til 11 Fri-Sat. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Stefan's Gourmet Inn-Daniel Webster Hwy South, Nashua NH, (603) 888-0342. European and American specialties, including four different kinds of caviar, in an elegant atmosphere. Fully licensed. No reservations on Sat, otherwise, they are a good idea. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-10 pm, until 11 pm Fri-Sat. AE, BA/V, MC.

WEST

Le Bourguignon-79 East St, Dedham, 326-8824. Everything here is French: the cuisine, the atmosphere, and the service. Specialités de la maison include boeuf bourguinon and coq au vin de Bourgogne. Full bar plus extensive wine list, reservations are recommended. Hours: Tues-Sat noon-10 pm; Sun 5 pm-10 pm. No credit cards, cash or personal checks only.

The Every Day Gourmet-Mill & Speen Sts, Natick, 653-8010. Not quite everyday, actually, it's only open on weekends. The menu from this teaching kitchen changes all the time. Make reservations, and bring your own things to drink. Hours: Fri-Sat, noon-3 pm, Sun, 10 am-2 pm. No credit cards.

Old Mill-Rte 2A, Westminster, 874-5941. Down by the old mill stream, and waterfall, a traditional setting for traditional dining. Duckling, prime rib, baked stuffed shrimp. Full bar. Open daily, 8:30 am-10 pm. AE BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Peking Garden-27 Waltham St, Lexington, 862-1051. Sino-American egg rolls and chow mein for the bashful, and a host of Szechuan, Mandarin, and Shanghai specialities for the initiate. A range of prices: House Special Duck tops the bill at $9. Full bar. Reservations are accepted for parties of eight of more. Open Sun-Thurs, 11:30 am-10 pm; Fri-Sat, 'til 11 pm. AE, DC, MC.

Sabra-45 Union St, Newton Center, 527-5641. Israeli and Middle Eastern specialties, in gustatory harmony. Specialties include hamin on Saturdays, and shakshuka for Sunday brunch. Not expensive, either. Full bar. Hours: Mon-Tues, 11 am-11 pm; Wed-Sun, 11 am-midnight. AE, BA/V, MC.

The William Paul House-Reservoir St (Rte 31) Holden, 829-6666. The specialty of the House is seafood, with a continental accent: baked stuffed filet of sole, seafood Mornay. Moderate prices, full bar. Hours: Tues-Sat, 5-10 pm, Sun, noon-8 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

SOUTH

Barnside Tavern-Assinippi Corners, Rte 3, Hanover, 878-9814. Sprawling and always crowded, it's Americana from the word go: prime rib and shrimp are among the favorites. Salad and dessert bars. Full bar. Hours: Daily from 11:30 am-10 pm; from 1-9 pm on Sun. AE, BA/V, DC, MC.

Ben White's-31 Providence Hwy (Rte 1), Norwood, 762-6740. Elegantly continental, with a greenhouse to enjoy along with things like chicken Jerusalem, veal Viennoise, and a full range of potables. Hours: Mon-Fri, 11:30 am-9:45 pm; Sat, 5:30 pm-10:45 pm; Sun, noon-9 pm. AE, BA/V, MC.

Christo's-782 Crescent St, Brockton, 588-4200. Huge and crowded, the accent at Christo's is Hellenic. A variety of Greek salads, shish kebab, moussaka and American favorites. Efficient service, inexpensive. Full bar. No reservations, no credit cards. Open Mon-Sat, 11-12:30 am; Sun, 12:30 pm-12:30 am.

The Greenhouse-8 Stagecoach Way, Cohasset, 383-6770. Continental and seafood specialities on the menu, lots of trees and plants to look at (not on the menu). Teriyaki brochette, veal, daily specials like snapper and swordfish. Full bar, reservations advised. Open for lunch Mon-Sat 11:30 am-2 pm, for dinner Mon-Sat, 5:30-11 pm; closed Sun. BA/V, MC.

Ken's Fish House-218 Dedham St, Norfolk, 384-8152. A fish house, with steak and chicken, too, for landlubbers. Moderate prices. Full bar. Reservations are required on holidays. Hours: Daily, 11:30 am-10 pm. AE, DC, MC.

Mal's Restaurant-Rte 53 (near Rte 18), Weymouth, 331-1919. Don't be put off by the exterior, inside, the food is good and cheap. Italian-American specialities, fresh seafood. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 9 am-1 am. No credit cards.

Plaza Inn-Rte 1, Wrentham, 384-2800. "The pleasures of the table are of all time, and all ages, of every country and of every day." Entrees, which are French, Italian, and American, start at $5.95. Full bar. Hours: Daily, from 11 am. AE, MC.

Plymouth 1620 Restaurant-158 Water St, Plymouth, 746-9565. Escargots, steamers, swordfish, lobster, steak, all manner of things that once trod the earth or swarn the seas, all at moderate prices. Full bar. Hours: Daily, 11 am-10 pm. Reservations are generally a good idea. AE, BA/V, CB, DC, MC.

Tinker's Dam-Rte 139, Pembroke, 826-5748. Cozy, candlelit dining in the upstairs dining room. A glowing pine bar provides a full range of drinks to complement a menu that is basically Continental: veal Oscar, beef Wellington, and homemade desserts. The prices are moderate. Open 11:30-2:30, Mon-Fri, and 6-10 pm Tues-Sun. Reservations for large groups only, eight or more. BA/V, DC, MC.

The Puzzle

#68 Billboards

By Don Rubin

Sure, you may snicker now, but some day you'll wish you'd listened to this puzzle and invested a few bucks on one of these magnificent highway canvases.

Go ahead, laugh. They bought Dada, didn't they? And Pop? Besides, you're really standing much too close to appreciate it. Art must be seen from a distance.

We'd like you to move back — way back — and try to identify the subject matter on this poster. (Sorry we don't have room to show you the whole thing.)

Rules of the Game

1. Names of the first ten contestants with the correct answer will be published in METROGUIDE. All contestants submitting correct answers to any of the puzzles through April 19 by the usual deadline will qualify for the Spring Lottery, and a grand prize of dinner for two with all the trimmings. The METRODINNER winner will be announced in the April 26 issue of METROGUIDE. The winner of the Valentine's Lottery will be announced in next week's edition.
2. All entries in The Puzzle Contest must be received at the METROGUIDE office, 227 Statler Office Building, Boston, MA 02116, by noon, the Thursday one week after publication.
3. All entries must be accompanied by the name and address of the contestant.
4. Employees of METROGUIDE and their immediate families are not eligible.
5. All entries must be accompanied by a tearsheet of the puzzle page. Whenever possible, the Puzzle answer should be entered on the form provided.

Answer to Puzzle #66
Hide and Seek

All we wanted was a little peace and quiet. You know, a few days of solitude without phones ringing, traffic jams, and the like. Where did we go? Antarctica. However, our solitude was short-lived. We were soon joined by more than 350 intrepid puzzlers who tracked us down to the frigid end of the world known as the South Pole. Thirty of you ended up in such places as the Philippines and Pitcairn Island. Nice places to visit, we're sure, but not right.

NOTICE TO DEALER: You are authorized to act as our agent for the redemption of this coupon in accordance with the terms thereof. We will reimburse you for the face amount of the coupon, or if the coupon calls for free goods, we will reimburse you for such free goods plus 5¢ per coupon for handling, provided you and the consumer have complied with the terms of this offer. Presentation for redemption without such compliance constitutes fraud. Invoices proving purchases of sufficient stock of our brand(s) to cover coupons presented for redemption must be shown upon request and failure to do so will at our option void all coupons submitted for redemption for which such proof is not shown. This coupon is non-transferable and good only on brand(s) specified. Coupons will not be honored and will be void if presented through outside agencies, brokers or others who are not retail distributors of our merchandise, unless specifically authorized by us to present coupons for redemption. Consumer must pay any sales tax. Coupon void if use is prohibited, restricted or taxed. Coupons may be presented to our salesman for redemption or mailed to: Colgate Palmolive Company, P.O. Box 1799, Louisville, KY 40201. Offer expires 8/31/79. Cash value 1/20 of 1¢. Limit one coupon per purchase.

ATTENTION CONSUMERS: Do not ask your dealer to redeem coupons unless you have made the required purchase since he must redeem coupons in accordance with our offer to get his money back from us. Coupons are good only on the product designated in the coupon. Any other use constitutes fraud on your part and the dealer's.
